BARRETT'S BEANERY?

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

At the hub of the Inner Harbor area which has already received substantial public funding for various improvement projects, the provincial government wants to operate . . . a sandwich bar.

Acting Mayor Ald. Alf Hood said today the proposal is to operate the food outlet in the Causeway Esso service station at the corner of the Causeway and Wharf, which the city purchased some two years ago as part of the overall redevelopment program for the Inner Harbor and later turned over to the Capital Improvement District Commission.

He first learned of the sandwich bar scheme when he was approached June 6 — "the anniversary of D-Day" — by the provincial government's executive chef, Yvon Chouinard.

Hood said he has since protested strongly to Public Works Minister Bill Hartley, pointing out that costly improvements have been carried out in the area to provide an attractive environment for pedestrians.

Even to think of installing a "beanery" there is "preposterous," he added.

Ald. Mike Young, the city's representative on the provincially-funded Capital Improvement District Commission, said the site was turned over to the CIDC on the understanding that the gas station would be demolished, the adjoining tower retained and the grounds beautified.

"Now it appears the title has somehow been transferred to the province, without any authorization from or consultation with the city," he said.

Hood said he understands the provincial food operation would not be preparing any hot foods. But a city official pointed out that a wider range of snacks would give Victoria its own version of Vancouver's PNE hamburger poll — complete with Barrettburgers, Bennettburgers et al.

Greenpeace Hit, Paris Court Rules

PARIS (Reuter) — A Paris court today ruled that a French warship deliberately rammed the Canadian protest yacht Greenpeace III near a nuclear bomb test site in the Pacific in June, 1972.

But the court declared it was not competent to judge another case brought by the Vancouver captain David McTaggart alleging that the French Navy illegally boarded his boat in the same area the following year.

The three-man tribunal ruled that the French government was responsible for damages caused to McTaggart's yacht when a French minesweeper, La Paimpolaise, rammed it near the South Pacific atoll of Mururoa. France was conducting atmospheric nuclear tests there.

McTaggart had sailed his yacht into the test zone to protest the tests, which provoked international complaints from many countries, notably Australia, New Zealand and Peru.

The court said that officials will be appointed to assess the amount of damages owed to McTaggart by the French government.

In a separate incident in the summer of 1973, McTaggart alleged in a plea to the court that French marines boarded his yacht, beat up his crew and seized the Greenpeace III.

The French government's defence was that the navy was entitled to board the yacht as a danger zone had been declared around the test site.

McTaggart, 42, said he was not satisfied with the verdict handed down by the civil court at the end of the two-month case, but that he will have to consult with his lawyers before deciding what further action to take.

McTaggart brought 24 civil charges against the French state as a result of the incidents during his incursions into the nuclear danger zone in 1972 and 1973 in a vain attempt to halt the atmospheric nuclear tests. The French government has since moved all its nuclear weapons tests underground at Fangataula Atoll and has abandoned the atmospheric test site at Mururoa.

The court said if McTaggart wants to pursue the case he can only do so through administrative channels and the French Council of State, a political body that functions as supreme arbitration tribunal in legal cases within the government.

McTaggart alleged that sailors armed with clubs attacked him and his crew and inflicted a serious eye injury on him.

The news that McTaggart has won a round in his fight with the French government comes only a couple of weeks after a British Columbia MP relayed a call for help to help pay his legal costs.

John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby - Richmond - Delta) released a letter from Paris, dated May 15, in which McTaggart said the case appeared headed for a higher court and that he was bound to win.

"My only problem would be that I have literally exhausted all my financial resources," the letter said. He asked Reynolds if he could name a group that could help with legal expenses.

McTaggart has sought $50,000 from the French government for damages resulting from the two incidents at Mururoa Atoll. He also sought $12,000 which the Canadian government gave him "exgratis" to have the Greenpeace returned to Canada after the French released the vessel in December, 1973.

Fish Offer Made

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

B.C.'s salmon trollermen could be back at work soon after an increased offer by some independent fish companies in the price for coho salmon.

The trollers' association met with Fisheries Association officials Monday in an attempt to negotiate a new price and Fred Young, manager of the trollers' association, said today that some of the companies have now made a new offer of 73 cents a pound, the same rate now in effect in Washington and Oregon.

Trollermen are meeting today in Bamfield, Tofino, Ucluelet and Kyuquot to decide whether to accept the offer and go back to work.

Results of those meetings will not be known until later today.

"All we wanted was for the market mechanism to function normally," Young said.

"If the companies want to buy fish they will come out with a sensible price and the fishermen will sell to those companies who have a sensible price," he said.

BORED BRUIN lounging in the branches at Vancouver's Stanley Park zoo has an eloquent expression too good for Times photographer John McKay to pass up. Is he so smug because he can look down on the crowd for a change, rather than up from his pit enclosure? Or does the breeze blowing through his fur up there make him superior? Is it possible he's not bored but worried because he's stuck?

Communists Gain In Italian Elections

Times News Services

ROME — Thousands of jubilant Communists waved red flags in downtown Rome today to celebrate stunning election gains that threatened to bring down the government and give the Communists a role in running the country from which they have been banned since 1947.

The Communists, carrying banners emblazoned with hammers and sickles, sang the International during night-long demonstrations that choked traffic in the heart of the city for hours.

With nearly 99 per cent of the ballots counted, the Communists won 33.5 per cent of the vote, an increase of nearly six per cent. The Christian Democrats polled 35.2 per cent, a drop of nearly three per cent.

Italians voted Sunday and Monday for 15 of Italy's 20 regional assemblies, advisory councils in 86 of 94 provinces and municipal councils in 6,300 of 8,000 cities.

The elections did not directly affect the makeup of Parliament but spelled trouble for the Christian Democratic-led government of Premier Aldo Mofo.

NEWS BRIEFS

Beating Fatal

BURNABY (CP) — Anna Magdolna Horvath, 37, was found fatally beaten in her apartment Monday. The woman's husband told RCMP he returned home from work and found the body of his wife on her bed.

Saipan Joins U.S.

SAIPAN, Mariana Islands (Reuter) — The people of the Mariana Islands in the western Pacific today voted heavily in favor of becoming United States citizens. The islanders, voting in a plebiscite supervised by the UN, came out 76 per cent in favor of Commonwealth status within the U.S.

Fumes Threaten 500

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI)— Rain soaked a trainload of fertilizer and caused decomposition that unleashed poisonous fumes, forcing evacuation of about 500 persons Monday night. Authorities halted railroad and highway traffic in the area until further rainfall dispersed the cloud and diluted the fertilizer.

ACCUSED KILLERS WALKING STREETS

TORONTO (CP) — Seventeen persons charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in Metropolitan Toronto are free on bail, says a survey made by the Metro police homicide squad.

"You might as well be handing out cards inviting killers to come to court," he said in an interview Monday.

Cuba Will Give Back Ransom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuba has decided to return to Southern Airways $2 million in hijack ransom money, thus removing one of six obstacles on the state department's list of problems between Cuba and the United States.

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro made known his intentions in a letter to Senator George McGovern (Dem. S.D.) who visited the island last month. McGovern released the letter Monday.

The Southern Airways DC-9 was hijacked in November, 1972, and forced to fly to Havana, where the passengers and crew were released in return for $2 million in ransom. The Castro government took the money from the hijackers.

Castro's decision to release the money after 2½ years caught the state department by surprise. Officials did not say whether it will prompt a reciprocal gesture by the U.S.

"He had no claim to it, ideological or otherwise," one U.S. official said. "All he achieved was to drive Southern to the edge of bankruptcy."

Drinking Delayed MLAs

HALIFAX (CP) — Labor Minister Walter Fitzgerald said today drinking by some members of the Nova Scotia legislature "without a doubt" impeded passage Monday night of a bill designed to force 1,000 striking nurses back to work.

He said the drinking occurred during a supper break at a reception given by Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger who began a four-day visit to Nova Scotia on Monday.

Members who had attended the reception "seemed to be in a jovial mood" when they returned to the house, Mr. Fitzgerald said in a CBC radio interview today.

Asked whether the drinking got in the way of serious house business, the labor minister replied:

"Yes, without a doubt."

MERGER PUSH OFF

The provincial government has decided to stop pushing for amalgamation of Greater Victoria municipalities, but will continue to support the merger of the outlying areas, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer indicated today.

In a meeting with mayors from the district last year he had said amalgamation would not be forced on area municipalities.

Today's comments confirm that policy and Lorimer also added that the initiative for amalgamation will have to come from local municipal governments or from the people themselves.

The minister said, however, that Langford, Colwood and View Royal are a "different kettle of fish."

He said he feels that if the existing core municipalities wish to live separately and apart and all are supplying the necessary facilities individually, "then that's their decision."

But in the case of the outlying areas, the minister said: "Here's a city that's completely organized and still classified as an unorganized area."

"In my opinion, action should have been taken many, many years ago and the department is having a study now on what action is necessary."

Lorimer said public meetings will be held soon in Colwood, Langford and View Royal to gauge the feelings of the residents.

Also during debate of Lorimer's departmental spending estimates, the minister said he had never defended the government's policy of providing grants in lieu of property taxes on government properties.

Responding to complaints from Liberal leader David Anderson that Victoria is losing from $2 to $3 million in revenue because of low government grants in lieu, Lorimer said Burnaby and Coquitlam probably lose more than Victoria.

Anderson said the mill rate in Victoria had gone up substantially and the government's 15 mill grant in lieu is totally inadequate.

Senior ICBC Man Fired For Interest Conflict

A top Insurance Corporation of B.C. executive was fired Monday because of a conflict of interest with his own business activities in a Regina adjusting firm.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan said D. A. Scrivener, ICBC vice-president in charge of claims, did not conform with conflict of interest standards established by the Crown corporation.

In a prepared statement, read to the legislature, Strachan also apologized to Socred MLA Bob McClelland (Langley) for attacking him when McClelland originally raised the issue of Scrivener's business interests outside B.C.

"I want to thank the member for Langley for drawing this matter to my attention," said Strachan, "and I apologize to him for any personal remarks I made about him."

When McClelland first raised the issue of Scrivener's interest in adjusting firms included on ICBC's list of preferred adjusters outside the province, Strachan told the house he had checked and was told Scrivener had sold his interests before joining ICBC.

The minster angrily denounced McClelland for being irresponsible and not checking his facts.

Last week, however, McClelland raised the issue again and said he had learned Scrivener sold interests in Scrivener, Countryman and Western Ltd. of Calgary and Saskatoon, after he joined ICBC, but he still held shares in D. A. Scrivener Ltd. of Regina.

Strachan replied that he had received his information from Scrivener and if the executive had not told him the truth he would be fired immediately.

The minister reported to the house, however, that D. A. Scrivener Ltd. is not in the adjusting business but another firm, D. A. Scrivener Adjusting Ltd., not mentioned by McClelland, is still controlled by the ICBC executive.

"Although Mr. Scrivener claims no conflict of interest in an adjusting company, I cannot accept that. In my opinion, a continuing interest in an adjusting company does not meet the standards required by ICBC," said Strachan.

Asked later if he believed Scrivener had lied to him when he first replied to McClelland's charges, Strachan said:

"I don't think so. He just didn't realize the importance of the answer he gave me . . . he should have given me a complete answer."

Scrivener could not be reached for comment Monday.

Final details of the executive's dismissal were to be worked out later, according to Strachan, and the minister would not say whether the $34,000-a-year employee would be entitled to severence pay. (He has been with ICBC since July, 1973.)

The minister said he did not believe the management of ICBC was aware of Scrivener's holdings in the adjusting firm.

TEACHER of Victoria children for five decades, Harry Smith, died Monday night at the age of 85. Smith's long career included 41 years at Victoria High School, 21 of them as principal, plus 10 years teaching at University School. He was to be honorary president of Vic high's centennial celebrations in 1976. (See story page 17.)

Lawson Urges Pay Restraint for Teamsters

Lawson told the convention of the Western Conference of Teamsters here that large wage increases are producing a form of "economic madness." Wage settlements in B.C. averaged a record 20.2 per cent for the first quarter of this year.

In a later interview the senator stressed he was not advocating wage restraints for all unions but was specifically referring to his own union.

He said there are about two dozen companies in Ontario and B.C. where the wages are higher than in the U.S. and the productivity is less.

He declined to name the companies, but warned continued large pay increases could drive companies to cease operations in Canada.

He said the situation has arisen because the Teamster locals have made a better case at the bargaining table. In calling for "sensible restraint," the senator said union leaders must be aware of the situation and it is no good negotiating large increases if "it drives our members into the ranks of the unemployed."

"There is going to have to be restraint by members of our union in industries that are higher paid than the U.S., but with lower productivity."

"We have a responsibility as trade union leaders to warn our members of impending economic disaster."

He said the net result is that companies paying higher wages and producing less will close down.

Meanwhile, C.C. McVeigh, who will take over as president of Construction Labor Relations Association later this year said he does not think wage settlements will fall from the first quarter average of 20.2 per cent.

McVeigh, who will replace Charles Connaghan in October said, "there is no evidence that it is going to change." He said he thinks the 20 per cent average will at least remain for the second quarter.

He bases his prediction on the attitude of forest unions at the bargaining table, a new two-year settlement with B.C. Hydro workers which he estimates will provide roughly 20 per cent in total benefits this year and the fact CLRA has placed a 22 per cent offer on the negotiating table in the current 10-week millwork strike with the International Woodworkers of America and the Carpenters Union.

Municipal Student Jobs Doubled

A total of 123 young people have been hired by Oak Bay and Victoria municipalities, double the number originally planned, as a result of extra funds becoming available to a program organized by the provincial department of labor.

The students will work during the summer on parks, community programs and other tasks assigned by the municipalities.

The Students Working In Municipalities (SWIM) program originally had a budget of $50,000 in Victoria and $15,000 in Iak Bay.

However, these totals have been increased to $93,691 in Victoria and $47,700 in Oak Bay. The additional funds came from the Student Temporary Employment Program, which is not being conducted by the regional district this year. Earlier, it had been feared these funds would go elsewhere in the province but the department of labor has agreed to divert some of the money for use by the municipalities to hire students.

The STEP program had been cancelled this year as an aftermath of the municipal strike-lockout. The effects of the labor dispute are also hampering the SWIM program.

For example, $53,000 has been earmarked for student jobs in Saanich, $10,500 in Esquimalt and $4,050 in Sidney. None of these programs are operating because the necessary approval from the union concerned has not been obtained. In the case of Sidney, the municipality indicated early it would not be participating.

If the three municipalities are not participating by July 1, the June portion of their budgets will be available to the other municipalities.

Most of the young people are high school students and they will begin working as soon as school is out. A small number are university students and they are already working.

Central Saanich has hired 12 students and has been granted an increase in its budget from $4,200 to $14,800. North Saanich has hired two and is only spending $2,080 of its $3,000 budget. It is looking for an additional student to hire.

Leslie Fiddler, organizer of the SWIM project for the provincial department of labor, said about $80,000 of the $197,090 of the STEP budget had been retained in the Victoria area so far and there was a chance that more of the money could be used here to hire additional young people.

She said she was hopeful that Saanich would join the program soon and she would also freeze the Esquimalt funds so that municipality could join, if it wished, at some point during the summer.

If all four core municipalities join the program, more than 200 young people would be hired for the summer.

Of the 83 students hired in Victoria, 30 were in grade 11, 33 in grade 12 and the remaining 20 were university students.

U.K. BOWING TO IDI?

LONDON (AP) — Britain will send an envoy to Kampala soon to try to persuade Ugandan President Idi Amin to save two Britons from the firing squad, informed sources said today.

The move comes after a demand by Amin that a British minister personally hand over to him a letter signed by Prime Minister Harold Wilson replying to his terms for pardoning the condemned Britons.

Amin has demanded that the British government expell all Ugandans who have sought refuge in Britain and bar all British media from criticizing him.

The two condemned Britons are lecturer Dennis Hills, 61, and businessman Stanley Smolen, 38. Hills in an unpublished manuscript, referred to Amin as a "village tryant." Smolen has been charged with hoarding.

Support for Socreds Falling Off: Survey

Social Credit support in B.C. fell substantially in the first three months of this year, says a University of Victoria sociologist.

"Something happened between January and March that cost Social Credit about 10 per cent (of the voters)," said Dan Koenig today.

He said support for the party has dropped from 37.5 to 26.9 per cent — figures taken from his new survey of voter opinion.

Koenig has conducted voter surveys in B.C. every year since 1972 and has twice successfully predicted federal election results in B.C.

NDP support has remained unchanged at 30.3 per cent of the electorate, he said.

Socred support was likely still ahead of NDP in March because of uncommitted respondents — most of whom go Socred provincially, he said.

"I think they were still ahead in March but I wouldn't like to say that now."

Respondents numbered 1,480 of an original 2,754 solicited, and Koenig says they were randomly chosen and accurately represent voters.

His results show Liberal support increased in the first three months of 1975 from 13.8 to 15.5 per cent and Conservative support from 10 to 11.3 per cent.

Instability in the Liberal party since that time may mean more Conservative support than was indicated in March, said Koenig.

Factors leading to decreased Socred support may have been the party's policy on natural gas, its wind-up for an election that never occurred, and recent charges and counter-charges in the legislature, he said.

More Join AA

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Membership in Alcoholics Anonymous is increasing at better than 10 per cent a year and includes growing numbers of women and young people, according to an officer of the organization.

Expanded membership also includes special new groups for gay, deaf and Spanish-speaking alcoholics, according to George D.

He said AA's basic philosophy of helping persons who want to stop drinking and protecting their identities has not changed even though increasing numbers of women and young people are changing the look of the organization.

Turkey Issues U.S. Ultimatum

ANKARA (AP) — Turkey apparently retaliated against the four-month-old American embargo on arms aid with a demand today that the United States begin negotiations within 30 days on the status of U.S. bases in Turkey.

If "action is not taken to initiate the talks," the 20 U.S. military installations in Turkey will be subjected "to a new situation," said a note delivered to the U.S. embassy. There was no elaboration.

Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil said Turkey "has waited in vain for reversal of the American decision, which is both unjust and wrong in all its aspects."

"It was finally imperative for Turkey to consider retaliatory action as our hopes were upset by a growing anti-Turkish attitude."

Sources report that Turkey's National Security Council has drawn up a timetable for the withdrawal of U.S. forces.

The council announced Monday night it has given Premier Suleyman Demirel a package of "proposals containing measures to be implemented against U.S. interests in Turkey."

Sources say the security council has called for the gradual shutdown of the 20 U.S. military bases. Three intelligence-gathering bases and the Incirlik air base for nuclear bombers are considered the most vital to Washington.

The ban on U.S. arms aid to Turkey was instituted because of the use of U.S. arms in the Turkish invasion of Cyprus last summer.

Use of U.S. arms in the invasion violated the terms of the agreements on which they had been furnished the Turks. Turkey has done nothing about removing its forces from Cyprus and instead has consolidated its hold on the northern 40 per cent of the island.

MORRISON DIES

The man who was the first lay administrator of Royal Jubilee Hospital, Charles Morrison, died Thursday in West Vancouver.

Morrison, who was 89, came to Victoria at the end of the first World War and worked for the Jubilee about 30 years, until a stroke forced his retirement in 1948.

He and his wife Ida, who survives him, moved to West Vancouver upon his retirement.

Surviving him, besides his wife, are stepdaughters Mrs. A. F. C. Hean of West Vancouver, Mrs. C. C. Tompkins of Markham, Ont. and Mrs. R. H. Jupp of Victoria.

A private family service was held, followed by cremation.

Family Fire Hall Opening

Mrs. Ernie LeQuesne has had close links with Langford's fire department for many years and that will be recognized next Sunday when she cuts the ribbon to open the new fire hall.

The $261,000 hall at 2775 Millstream stands where the LeQuesne family home once was. Three of her sons have worked for the volunteer fire department and one of them, Al LeQuesne, is now chief.

Just about everything in the new hall is new except the fire trucks and the 34-member force has already completed its move from the old quarters at 716 Goldstream.

Games Budget Held

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Olympic organizing committee announced approval Monday of its $34-million operating budget for the coming year, but the total games budget was not discussed.

It also caused a sharp drop in stock prices.

Such big industrials as Fiat, Pirelli, Montedison anid Snia Viscosa fell 10 per cent.

Industrial circles foresaw negative repercussions for the Italian economy, with a further slowdown in investment and a sharp increase in the illegal export of capital.

Politicians said the results could bring down the seven-month-old Moro government if a majority of Parliament insists on bringing the Communists into the coalition and the Christian Democrats oppose the move.

Christian Democratic leader Amintore Fanfani, who has opposed Communist calls for a voice in the government, called an emergency meeting of party leaders Thursday to consider the results.

The Christian Democrats, who have ruled Italy for three decades, dominated a coalition that included the Socialists, Republicans and Social Democrats.

West Coast 'Bottleneck'

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Increased processing of raw materials in B.C. and the Prairies and more use of bulk handling operations are important considerations for the future development of transportation systems to West Coast ports, according to the federal transport policy paper tabled in the House of Commons Monday by Jean Marchand.

The paper identified access to the Pacific Coast as one of the major problems facing transportation in Canada.

Congestion in the Port of Vancouver and the movement of large numbers of rail cars through the city detract from the urban environment "and result in inefficient rail and ship operations," it stated.

The provincial government's desire to encourage development in Northern B.C., coupled with port and rail congestion in the Lower Mainland, show the need to increase rail and possibly highway capacity west from Alberta and the B.C. Interior, according to the paper.

However, it noted that the increased processing of products now shipped through West Coast ports from B.C. and the Prairies could influence the timing of new investments in transportation facilities in the province.

"It is also important to consider the further use of bulk handling operations such as the use of unit trains to move grain directly to ocean ships through ports in British Columbia, whether at Vancouver or Prince Rupert," the paper added.

It suggested that the full costs of providing the transportation services should "as a general rule" be recovered from the users or the foreign beneficiaries of the system, since many of the commodity flows are for export.

But it acknowledged that "other government objectives" may dictate that the full costs should not be covered by user charges.

Expansion Planned For Ports

OTTAWA (CP) — The tonnage capacity of West Coast ports will have to be increased by almost 50 per cent at an estimated cost of $228 million to meet shipping demands by 1990, a federal transport study says.

Vancouver, Prince Rupert and other B.C. ports now can handle an estimated 40.55 million tons, although they handled only 25.06 million tons in 1974, says the report, a background document to Transport Minister Jean Marchand's transportation policy announcement Monday.

To meet the anticipated demand by 1990, however, the ports would have to be expanded to handle an annual load of 60.17 million tons.

The Port of Vancouver handled 22.02 million tons in 1974 and has the capacity for 37.9 million tons a year. A capacity of 47.39 million tons will be needed by 1990 and this will cost about $119 million (in 1975 dollars) to achieve, the report says.

No port expansion is planned or underway at Vancouver, the report says.

Prince Rupert handled 400,000 tons in 1974 and has the capacity for 500,000 tons. This would have to be increased to 5.6 million tons by 1990 at a cost of $80 million. Expansion already planned for Prince Rupert will raise its annual capacity to five million tons, the report says.

Other unspecified British Columbia ports worked to their capacity of 2.64 million tons in 1974. They would have to be increased to an annual capacity of 7.18 million tons by 1990 at a cost of $29 million.

Opposition Hits Transport Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition critics registered extreme disappointment Monday as a sparsely-attended Commons began debating the government's new transportation policy.

"I find this, after seven years of waiting . . . a most incredible and unbelievable submission by a minister of the government," said Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina Lake Centre). "I don't know whether to call it a swan song or a hesitation waltz."

Jack Murta (PC—Lisgar) said Transport Minister Jean Marchand's 40-minute speech was "not a statement of policy. It was a statement of the obvious. We are disappointed in the extreme."

Attendance in the 264-seat Commons was 50 members during Marchand's policy statement, with the majority Liberals only slightly outnumbering opposition members.

Attendance later dipped as low as 22, two more than a quorum.

Marchand gave a broad outline of policy objectives, including greater government control over transportation, but his statement contained few specifics.

The policy later was referred to the Commons transport committee for further study.

Murta said the opposition had expected more specific policy.

"The government has, in effect, taken a step backward," he said. The government intended "to study the problem to death before anything concrete comes out of it."

Murta said Marchand's statement contained no mention of national trucking policy, the National Harbors Board or pilotage.

The opposition also had been waiting for some sign of the Liberals' 1974 election promise of $270 million for urban transportation.

"There is no mention of this whatsoever."

Murta said the transport department is "sadly lacking in any direction" and Marchand's statement "demonstrated that the minister is not in control."

Benjamin said the policy, the result of two years of study, is nothing but "a hodge-podge, a pot-pourri."

"The principles are messed, if not mashed."

Any idea of new direction in transport policy "has been put on the back burner to simmer for a while," he claimed.

Marchand, he said, had "inserted himself like a spoon into the recipe and just stirred up the mess."

Benjamin said he welcomes the commitment to remove some freight rates that discriminate against the West and the Maritimes.

"But I'm not going to hold my breath waiting for implementation of it," he added.

There was nothing in the policy about the Maritimes, nothing about coastal shipping and nothing about urban transit, Benjamin said.

The government had made no important changes in the transport policy, preferring to stick to the old system which mixed private and public ownership.

'Wonderful News'

OTTAWA (CP) — Transportation industry spokesmen expressed tentative approval Monday of the government's new national transportation policy.

The plan for a $35-million cargo ship for Arctic use is "wonderful news for the shipbuilding industry and for the Canadian shipping industry," Louis Desmarais, chairman of the 17-company Dominion Marine Association, said in an interview.

Spokesmen for the air, rail and trucking industries also tentatively endorsed the government's plans, which include expanding Ottawa's management role in transportation.

The Arctic cargo ship will be operated jointly with private industry and the government may build up to 10 during the next decade.

New Crime Unit Set

A special crime-fighting unit will go into operation on Vancouver Island July 1, deputy attorney-general David Vickers announced Monday.

With headquarters in Victoria, the unit, a Joint Forces Operation comprising RCMP and Greater Victoria municipal police officers, will be headed by Saanich police inspector Charles Trueit and RCMP Staff-Sgt. Dave Staples.

A location for the unit's office has not yet been decided although there is speculation it could be in the provincial government's newly-acquired building on Cadboro Bay Road.

The four Greater Victoria police chiefs — Bob Peterson of Saanich, John Green of Oak Bay, Jack Gregory of Victoria and Art Burton of Esquimalt — and RCMP Superintendent James Nelson will be responsible for developing policies for the unit.

They will report directly to the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit policy board set up last fall by the attorney-general to fight organized crime in the province.

Up to now CLEU operations have been centred in the Vancouver area and have had considerable success, particualrly in the drug field.

However, it is assumed the 11 RCMP members and four municipal police officers who comprise the seven-year-old Greater Victoria drug squad led by Staples will form its initial complement.

Staples said he does not "envision any major change in responsibility except perhaps to broaden it.

PAY CLAMPS URGED

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Economic Policy Committee called for strict limits on the expansion of government spending in a report today.

The committee of business and labor leaders is sponsored by the C. D. Howe Research Institute.

The report also attacked price-and-wage controls, recommended a redistribution of income and cautioned against indexation.

It said Canada cannot buy its way out of the current recession through excessive spending by the government or the private sector.

"Such an approach simply delays the time when the basic issues must be faced, and would be a serious risk of creating still greater instability, inflation and unemployment in the future."

Governments should review and eliminate obsolete programs, increase efforts to achieve efficiency and postpone introduction of new spending plans until the economic climate is more favorable, the report said.

"Specifically, the target should be that total spending on goods and services by government at all levels not be allowed to expand at a more rapid rate than the over-all real growth potential of the economy."

Capital formation should be stimulated by adoption of several accounting and technical adjustments, including "'last-in, first-out" accounting, changes in capital gains taxation and the use of investment tax credits, the report said.

LORIMER ANTICIPATES HIGHER BUS DEFICIT

Municipal Affairs Minsiter Jim Lorimer said today the provincial government's deficit for transit systems in 1975-76 will surpass the $21 million loss in 1974-75.

Lorimer told the legislature a substantial increase in transit services to rural areas will likely account for most of the increase.

During 1974-75 rural services were provided for Nanaimo, Nelson, Powell River and Kitimat, he said. Expansion to Prince Rupert, Prince George, Kamloops, and Kelowna in 1975-76 will not make any money, he said.

The provincial government, he said, makes a profit on charters and express services and although there may be some expanded charter services, he does not expect it to cover losses experienced in the rural systems.

Elbow Rooms

That's what you get on our wide-bodied jets to Toronto. Elbow Rooms. Our L-1011's have 3. And our 747's have 4.

We call our economy passenger compartments Elbow Rooms because that's what they are. Because all of our seats are 2 inches wider than anyone else's. Which may not sound like much, but it can make a big difference on a 4, 5, 6 hour flight.

You don't have to worry about that intensely polite competition with your fellow passenger's elbow on the same armrest.

And, you don't have to worry about whether or not you smoke. Because our Elbow Rooms have sections designated as smoking and non-smoking.

And, you don't have to worry about having something to do. Because we've got movies on our 747's and free stereo music on our L-1011's.

So all you have to do is get on a plane to Vancouver, make the easy connection to one of our wide-bodied jets. And relax. In an Elbow Room.

Transport Mess

Much was made of Transport Minister Jean Marchand's remark last year that federal transport policy was a mess.

Heads nodded sagely at the minister's candor. The statement was accepted as an admission of past failure but a determination to come up with the perfect policy for the future. Marchand made public his new transport policy on Monday. After looking it over, and mulling his frank disclosure last year in our minds, we're left with one question.

Will transport policy in Canada ever be more than a mess, albeit a more or less workable one?

Apparently it took a departmental committee two years to come up with the new policy the minister unveiled this week. The old policy took eight years to reach fruition, from the 1959 royal commission to the revamping of legislation in 1967. The timetable has improved, but has the policy? Can the wisest transport minister or the committee of sharpest minds ever devise a transport policy for Canada that is not in many respects a mess?

Has anyone considered the impossibility of cobbling together a transport policy for a country 5,000 miles wide which has such a hybrid network of privately- and government-owned railroads, airlines, waterways, ferries, trucking firms, shipping lines and bus companies?

Not only is transport policy fractured by conflict of ownership (private, profit-seeking concerns versus often-subsidized government lines), but has any other nation a transport grid similar to Canada's, responsible for serving the population concentrated in several strung-out urban masses along the southern fringe and also the remote regions where the resources are?

This conflict between deciding whether to allocate resources to the prairie wheat farmer's specialized transport problems, or the urban commuter's, or the national manufacturer's, almost guarantees a built-in schizophrenia for any transport policy.

It also guarantees a fragmented authority and decision-making power at the top. Marchand's departmental organization reflects it. It must, to survive. The DoT touches almost every aspect of travel or transport. Marchand's main complaint when he said transport policy was a mess was that he lacked control over transport. But can any minister master a department with so many diverse and divergent branches?

His new policy implicitly seems to recognize this fact. Far from being a new comprehensive transport policy, what Marchand announced on Monday is just as remarkable for what is left out. There's no mention of grain movement problems, ports, urban transit or local air carriers. Also, there's not a word on some major Liberal campaign promises of 1974 — a national passenger railway transportation corporation and a federal agency to lease rail cars.

One of its major recommendations — stripping the Canadian Transport Commission of its policy-generating authority and returning it to the department, where it rightfully belongs, subject to parliamentary review — is a sensible reform. The CTC will keep its regulatory powers, and in this area perhaps Marchand could ensure the CTC is more responsive to the public. Recent commission activity seems to point in the other direction.

Other recommendations of the transport policy — Marchand wants all transportation companies to be Canadian-owned, a high-speed commuter route somewhere in central Canada, low rape seed commodity freight rates, separation of Air Canada and the CNR — seem to be small steps toward, if not a new and better transport policy, at least a more manageable mess.

Lift Inquiry Restrictions

The public inquiry into incidents at the B.C. penitentiary last week which left a woman hostage dead is unsatisfactory on several counts. First it has been left to the discretion of Mr. Chief Justice J. W. Farris whether all inquiry sessions will be in public. In the federal view it may not be in the interests of the public to disclose certain portions of the evidence. How many times have we heard this specious paternalistic reasoning from Ottawa? Fifteen innocent citizens had their lives at stake during the 41-hour tragedy in New Westminster. Many politicians are using the incident as a vehicle to fan the flames of hard line law and order. To hold one session in private is a disservice to Canadians who must have the facts to make up their own minds.

On second count the inquiry is not going to look into the federal government role in the ordeal. This is precisely the area that remains murkiest. Solicitor-General Warren Allmand told the Commons last Wednesday of a partial breakdown of communications in the five hours between the time an offer to accept the criminals arrived in Ottawa and the time the hostages rushed their captors. What caused this lack of communication? How will it be resolved if future incidents occur?

Limiting the inquiry to the incidents in New Westminster will only explain decisions at the lowest level. If the public is to be enlightened it must know how and why decisions are made in the solicitor general's department.

Warren Allmand is an elected official. His department and its decisions are very much a public concern. They should be an integral part of this inquiry. An innocent person was shot twice at the end of the affair and the government imposes conditions on its "public inquiry." Ottawa should lift its restrictions while there is still time.

Negative Gov't

Put aside for now the right or the wrong of "crossing the floor," of deserting one's constituents as well as one's conscience, a conscience which fostered the convictions upon which the constituents based their support. History may never rule upon this controversial practice.

But the motivation leading to and following such impulsive behavior can be examined with some care and perspective; and historically the motives have proved to be, in the main, identical: political gain, not political conscience. The more these A.W.O.L. politicians argue in defence of their actions and in support of a holy alliance of free enterprise parties solely out to destroy the NDP, the less will their credibility be acceptable. They are revealing, in true perspective, their true intent, that of obtaining favor in this hopeful revival of the sterile, unstable and useless form of coalition government of the Harts and Anscombs. Would that British Columbia be spared a return to that kind of un-government.

Vancouver Sun, Dec. 18, 1962: Point Grey byelection winner Dr. Pat McGeer, today dared Premier Bennett to call a general election in 1963. Flushed with victory, McGeer said his landslide win Monday night (21,669 votes) is convincing proof that his party can flatten the Social Credit government. McGeer said in an interview an election is necessary for the health of the province.

Vancouver Sun, May 21, 1975: Dr. Pat McGeer states: "There's no difference in policy and there's no difference in platform between the (non-socialist) parties, but there are loyalties that we have to consider."

What loyalties, Dr. McGeer? We're confused. Loyalties to the Liberals you have left? Loyalties to the legislature? Or loyalties to another party, yet unnamed? And vive le difference! If there is no difference, Dr. McGeer, it took a mighty long time (13 years) for this illuminating discovery! And if it is true today, why were you fighting Social Credit so courageously in the 1960s, and not advocating unity with the NDP to save British Columbia from the Socred horde?

The House now has three independents, three members who have refuted their well-founded and well-respected political convictions and now may place their remaining credibilities in a bargaining position, the interesting results of which will all but reveal the overall strategy of the "free enterprisers." This strategy, nurtured by a fanatical urge to rule once again, if continued on its present course of building hate, may well plunge British Columbia into a dark age of ultra right-wing reaction, the result of so-called "unity," which in actuality will be anything but.

Coalitions, above all, provide poor, negative government, and, make no mistake, all of this leads to coalition, whether agreed to prior to or after an election. Should this disaster ever befall us, then really the entities left with any dignity of purpose surely would be the NDP and the Conservatives. Only time and history will tell. — Terry Reid, Vancouver, B.C.

Hungarian Ideas

I emigrated from Hungary 18 years ago and brought with me three ideas that I think should be followed:

Paint cans should be kept upside down so that they would be heaviest at the top.

Coats and heavy jackets should have a light, short piece of chain as a hanging loop at the neck.

Mail that has been put into the mail box should be picked up in such a way that nobody sees it. The collector would carry a special frame that if pushed into the mail box shall open the bottom of the box, the contents of which shall fall in the bag supported by the frame. — Ed Apt, 1896 San Pedro Avenue.

Beware the Tyrant

I read the column by Richard Gwyn in the Times of June 11. I feel we are all agreed that John Diefenbaker needs no defender and is head and shoulders above any politician today, but Gwyn's writings left me with the impression that he was trying to tell us something. Could it have been: Beware, the tyrant? — Philip Saville, 515 Foul Bay Road.

Steady Flogging

I was considering replying to the June 11 column by Richard Gwyn, Skilled Politician, Small Man. I realized that nothing I could say would change the opinion people already had about the prime minister of Canada. He has been steadily flogged for all the years he has been in office and if as has been stated he is mean and tasteless, he has been well taught by the press of this nation.

I wonder what kind of government Canadians want? The aged Diefenbaker and Stanfield have been well and truly defeated by the people. The NDP might win approval if only they did not want to nationalize all the American-owned industry.

The Canadians love a father-figure, except in government. We want security and larger social benefits and at the same time we must have independence except from the Americans. I suspect that deep in their hearts Canadians would like to join the U.S.

After watching the political scene in Canada for 61 years I must admit I haven't a clue as to what the people want. — Kathleen English, 740 Burdett Street.

Time to Review All the Myths About Wage, Price Controls

By Richard S. Malone

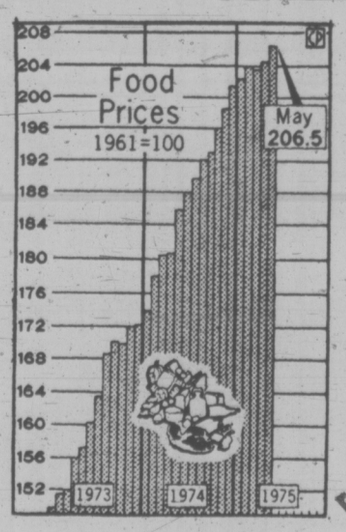
TORONTO — There are many myths surrounding the effectiveness and value of price and wage controls. Many politicians, amateur economists and others largely blinded by their own self-interest or limited study would argue that controls can never work except in time of war, that they are impossible to administer, that they only postpone things and produce a greater price explosion later or that, once established, you can never get rid of them and you are left with a permanently state-controlled society.

In view of Canada's precarious situation it is timely to review the reality of all these myths.

Certainly controls are a denial of all our cherished principles of freedom, democracy, liberalism and the rights of the individual. It is also correct that a price and wage control program, in practical terms, is not a cure by itself. Like a tourniquet for an injured person, however, it may not produce a cure but it can prevent the patient bleeding to death, when all else fails. Sometimes in an emergency, it is the only answer, even though temporary.

To begin with, there have been countless examples of price and wage control programs throughout recorded history in times of both war and peace. Controls were exercised as far back as Elizabethan times, in the Plantagenet period, also in the days of the Roman Empire, quite apart from our own wartime period and then more recently in Britain and the Unites States. In no instance were these various states locked into a permanent program of controls.

In fact, immediately after wage and price controls were discontinued under Queen Elizabeth I, England's economy recorded its greatest expansion in history. Its currency recovered in all the capitals of Europe, the ports of the world were reopened to its trade and such free traders as Francis Drake and Walter Raleigh led the way to England's greatest free enterprise development on record. So much for that myth.



English writer Peter Jenkins, writing recently in The Guardian, deals with the myth that recent wage freezes and statutory incomes policies don't work, can't work or are socially destructive.

He comments: "Certainly it cannot be proved that they do not work, for invariably they have been abandoned or relaxed for political convenience before given a full try." He suggests that government intervention in collective bargaining may be socially and morally preferable to raging inflation.

Then there is the myth that always after a period of controls comes an explosion of prices and wages, worse than might have been experienced if inflation had just continued its course. If this is the case how does one explain the fact that following the end of price and wage controls in the United States a short time ago price and wage indexes did not catch up to Canadian indexes and are still running well below our figures? Its inflation has continued, but there was no huge explosion as forecast. Quite the reverse. There was a definite slowing in the rate of increase.

In light of our current situation it might be wise to review the effects and lessons of the recent U.S. period of controls. Perhaps the most reliable assessment of this U.S. experience is by Arnold R. Weber. He was executive director of President Nixon's Cost of Living Council and subsequently took the time to review the results.

While he concludes that controls in themselves do not produce a cure, he does confirm their substantial psychological value in the public mind. Not only do they demonstrate that a critical point has been reached but also that the government has the power and will to act when there are no voluntary restraints, and they do "influence expectations."

Other pertinent observations by Weber are that:

- Controls for a temporary freeze can be administered without a "huge bureaucracy."
- "There is little doubt that a comprehensive freeze can restrain wage and price increases effectively in the short run."
- In the U.S. experience, public tolerance proved to be greater than expected.
- "Public opinion polls taken during the freeze strongly indicate that most people accept the program."
- "A freeze does buy time to develop more substantial economic (monetary and fiscal) policies."

A temporary freeze should not be attempted unless it is absolute, despite some inequities and unfairness. If exceptions are made (except in cases of disaster or "to prevent gross inequities") the entire program could collapse. During the U.S. freeze there were numerous complaints but only five exceptions were granted to avoid bankruptcy.

There should be no advance warning of a freeze, otherwise clever or selfish groups will rush to get under the wire at the last moment with unreasonable hikes which could send the indexes rocketing to create greater distortions.

A freeze should not be attempted for a longer period than 90 days. A longer period allows the cheats and cheapjacks time to discover loopholes and it is impossible to police.

A high degree of public support must be promoted by government leaders. People are prepared to make sacrifices as long as they feel others are sacrificing equally.

A period of freeze should not be attempted unless the government has developed a proper plan to follow up immediately. Such a program, including fiscal and monetary policies toward balancing the budget, cutting government spending and reducing the rate of growth of the money supply, should be announced and explained during the freeze period.

In respect to a follow-up program, or Phase II as it was called in the U.S. experience, many of the observations of C. Jackson Grayson Jr., chairman of the Phase II, U.S. Price Commission in his book, Confessions of a Price Controller, are both revealing and to a degree terrifying. It is apparent that no effective program for Phase II had been developed before the temporary freeze was imposed.

Indeed, Grayson was given only 16 days to suddenly produce the plan, the regulations, and policies apart from recruiting an enormous nation-wide staff of commissioners, accountants, lawyers, inspectors and clerical staff, for the mountainous task of policing manufacturing, retail and wholesale prices, rents, health financial, education and all aspects of the nation's services.

Clearly this second program was far too complex to remain effective very long as there were just not enough fingers to plug the dike. Even with this expanding bureaucracy its real effectiveness could never be measured, as political pressures and panic in Washington caused all programs to be abandoned too soon.

The obvious lesson from this experience is that any follow-up plan must be far less complicated and much easier to administer.

A more simplified and flexible follow-up program now suggested by some experts is that the government should rely principally on its own monetary and fiscal policies to enforce restraint on such matters as the national budget and taxes, with tighter credit and money controls and a strong continuing campaign to enlist public co-operation. Then establish strong regional boards, independent of politics, with full powers to investigate and order rollbacks, where warranted, in any flagrant cases of flouting the guidelines recommended by the government.

The view is that this continuing threat of using this latent but real power to intervene until the disease of inflation is checked, plus explaining fully the consequences of abuse, could prove a realistic approach.

Beyond this, the government should declare that should breaches of the guidelines get out of hand, it would not hesitate to reimpose further periods of freeze, until some sanity emerged. Essential to such steps would be a concurrent program to encourage investment toward creating more jobs.

It must be recognized by the public that when the legitimate bargaining process creates a jungle of special interest and all sense of self-discipline is abandoned, it is the plain duty of the government to act. If the government fails to grasp the nettle, the restoration of our trade, maximum employment, stable prices, a growing economy and increasing gross national product are all lost causes.

Toward some such national purpose the parade is slowly starting to form, but is still not clear exactly what direction the parade will take or who may be leading it.

OTTAWA — The Dominion government announced that settlers on Crown lands in the west are to be given an opportunity to increase their holdings, by way of helping out the unemployed. The federal authorities, with the settlers' consent, will utilize the services of the unemployed to clear large areas of scrub land and make the cost a first charge on the settlers' land. The area under cultivation will thus be greatly increased and large numbers of unemployed men will gain useful knowledge of the work required as homesteaders.

Federal NDP Leadership: Nobody Cares

By CHRISTINA NEWMAN
The Globe and Mail

(First in a series about the present state of the NDP federally and provincially.)

It's a Friday night in Sudbury, the end of one of those first warm days in May that bring with them laughter, irrational hopes and kids with bare knees yelling to each other in the streets.

Inside the Steelworkers' Union Centre on Frood Road, sitting in serried rows on hard chairs, a group of dutiful people have gathered to breathe the stale air and feel the pain — the unrelenting, mind-numbing, very nearly exquisite pain — of righteous boredom.

These are the local faithful of the New Democratic Party come out to judge the candidates who will be offering themselves for the party's leadership at the convention called for Winnipeg in early July. Just now the speakers are yammering away behind a long table at the front of the room, displaying their sincere beliefs in democratic socialism for a designated 10 minutes each. Nearly every time a touchstone phrase is uttered ("the priorities of the working class," say, or "the weight of corporate capitalism") there are faint cries of hear! hear! in the hall. But the reality hits hard.

If you don't count the six candidates, the meeting chairman, a couple of heavy-lidded journalists, the television cameraman and the two little girls with yellow curls kept out of bed for the occasion, there are only 38 people in the room.

Think of it. Thirty-eight. In a labor town with a population 100,000 strong built by J. S. Woodsworth! What has the NDP come to?

When this question is posed to the party's federal and provincial officials, members of its Ottawa caucus, leadership candidates, emphatic left-leaning academics and other supporters of various backgrounds and socialistic persuasions, the answers swarm back in a contradictory profusion that sorts itself out to two points of agreement.

In particular, what the party has come to in this spring of '75 is the dullest leadership contest in the CCF-NDP's 40-year history of struggle for an egalitarian society. In general, it's obviously in a peculiarly schizoid stage between the scattered glories and swallowed failures of its past and the uncertainties of its long-term future.

Federally, the party is at a

BROWN
. . . brave but losing

low ebb — which the lack of interest in the leadership reflects — with only 16 members in the 264-seat House representing 15 per cent of the popular vote, a caucus made up mostly, as one young Ontario NDPer puts it, "of tired individualists grown old fighting wars they've so often won and so rarely been given credit for." Provincially, it's never been so strong, holding power in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba and with a scrappy Ontario wing facing an election in a mood that combines edginess and hard-eyed pragmatism.

This surprising dichotomy between federal weakness and provincial strength is, on reflection, no surprise at all but part and parcel of the effect political events of the last decade in Canada have had on the democratic left.

The provincial parties have been able to seize on the growing regionalism in the country, gaining power through providing a focus for parochial discontents and by looking like responsible alternatives to worn-out regimes.

The federal party, on the other hand, has been unable to look like an alternative to anything. It has been outmanoeuvred by the Liberals' continuing brilliance in straddling the centre through co-opting the social democrats' best ideas and electing as its leader Pierre Trudeau who drew, through sheer flash, the fervid admiration of the restless voters of the Sixties who might have turned to the NDP but for him; bruised by its terrible internal fight in the early Seventies with the far left in the shape of the Waffle; and laid low by the minority situation of the 1972-74 period which left it looking foolish — accused of complicity when all it was attempting to do was show responsibility, like some hapless fundamentalist preacher caught as a found-in while passing out tracts during a raid on a run-down bordello.

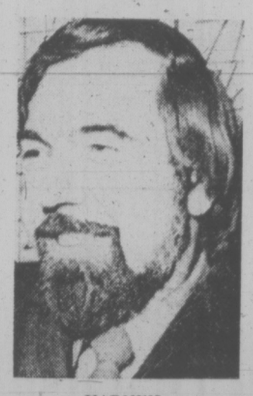
Added to the dispirited "where did it all go wrong?" feeling that is endemic in the federal party now is the fact that for the first time it has to choose a leader from among people who weren't present at the creation of the CCF in the Thirties, who didn't cheer when they produced the Regina Manifesto, who don't have the aura of the true-suffering and came down the true path on the long road to the New Jerusalem.

Even old party diehards have recognized that the era of Woodsworth, Coldwell, Douglas and Lewis has gone forever. This time the leadership has to pass to a new generation that as Cliff Scotton, the party's national secretary, says "may be no less idealistic but is certainly more pragmatic," a generation that understands it's facing a very different society, urban-industrial rather than agricultural in character and ridden with problems that no one conceived of when the CCF was new. (Who would have believed in the Thirties that the dicta of John Maynard Keynes, for instance, would have been questioned or that nationalization across the board might not be the best way to control an economy?)

None of the four serious candidates for the leadership — Ed Broadbent, Rosemary Brown, John Harney and Lorne Nystrom — who range in age from Harney's 45 to Nystrom's 29, has anything like the commanding aura of the four prophets who went before.

As they trundled their leadership road show up and down the country they've seemed unable for the most part to generate excitement, draw crowds or define clearly recognizable personal policy positions.

The night before the Sudbury meeting, they spoke to scarcely more than 200 people in Toronto, the week before to only 60 in Brandon, a fortnight later to 150 in Halifax and so it went all month long as they tried to fight their own fatigue and ennui and to make hay out of slippery issues of the day, such as John Turner's mismanagement of his inflation controls policy, or of the decade, such as the Americans' domination of so much of the economy. (During June, each candidate is campaigning individually rather than as part of the troupe, going back to areas he or she feels delegates' votes can be wooed through private meetings of varying sizes.)



HARNEY

While the collective meetings were taking place, the fifth and sixth candidates, William Bedwell and Douglas Campbell — who are called "the others" by the cautious and "the kooks" by the irate and represent some farther-left constituency that exists mainly in their own minds — occasionally rocked the small crowds with laughter or more rarely, short-lived rage at their wilder pronouncements.

Otherwise, the main interest came out of the brave and very often brilliant performance of Rosemary Brown, who acted as though she refused to believe what the party sages have been saying since she declared her candidacy in mid-February, that any candidate who's a black, a woman and a British Columbia MLA rather than a member of the federal caucus has too much against her to be credible as a winning candidate. Instead, she gave pithy speeches in the 10 minutes allotted each candidate at every meeting, going easy on the feminist issues and leaning hard on the economic ones, and often turned the question period that followed into a personal triumph wherein she displayed a first-rate intellect and a quick perception of the human factor involved in nearly every query raised. (Once, when a member of the audience asked about the candidates' attitudes to immigration and one of "the others" answered that everybody knew the NDP was a party for the "middle-class WASP," she simply stood up, waved and then bowed her head so all the audience could see the top of her frizzled Afro.)

Still, for all the Brown Is Beautiful buttons and all the $5, $10 and $25 donations that are sent to her campaign headquarters unsolicited through the mails, most convention delegates are expected to be like the union man who came up to her in Toronto and said he thought she was a fine speaker, and a true socialist but that "the party just isn't ready for a woman as leader" and he himself would make his choice from among the three men.

To an outsider who did nothing but attend the leadership meetings, this would appear to be a difficult task. The speeches and answer-session performances of the three men, despite their strained efforts to carve out individual positions, seemed uniformly drab in style and discouragingly similar in content.

Lorne Nystrom, in a black suit, white shirt and narrow dark tie, managed to look young and sound old, which might be considered a great trick in view of the new conservatism across the country, even in the NDP. Unhappily, he often put on the dullest act of any evening and despite his indefatigability in making personal contacts with riding associations, working the country as though it were a raspberry patch in late July, it's generally believed he's making a trial run for the convention next time round.

Harney, whose strong point, in his own view, is his empathy for Quebec (he grew up there, bilingual and bicultural, the child of a French-Canadian mother and an Irish-Canadian father), tried hard to draw the NDP's weakness in that area into nearly every speech and answer he gave. But only on rare occasions was he able to bring off the eye flashes and wittily relevant barbs that caused him to be called "charismatic" when he ran for the leadership in 1971.

Broadbent, the NDP's House leader and the establishment's candidate, the professor whose majorities in the working-class city of Oshawa grow ever larger, who's so earnest and appealing as a human being in private and so impressive in the House of Commons in his grasp of economic problems and his determined questioning of government decisions, appeared on platforms to be merely pedantic, as rigid as his navy-blue blazer and wearier than his 39 years.

Still, though the race so far has seemed dismal even to the dedicated, party insiders, like politicians of every coloration, can't resist making book on the outcome. One of them was running through this exercise for a journalist recently, saying: "Of course Broadbent will come out on top on the first ballot, since he has union endorsements and all the hard-core establishment support, with maybe Brown next but she'll fall off on the second ballot because of chauvinist fears and then maybe Nystrom will move up . . ."

Then his voice trailed off and he shrugged and said, "Oh, hell. Nearly everybody thinks Broadbent is a shoo-in. But it wouldn't have been like this if one of the provincial leaders had seen fit to run. They would have turned it into a real race. Those guys are new-style NDPers. They aren't conditioned to thinking power is somehow evil and losing is good for the soul."

That sentence is probably as succinct a summation as one could wish for of the difference between the federal NDP movement and the provincial New Democratic parties.

Trade Union Militancy a Millstone for the Socialists

By ANTHONY WESTELL
Toronto Star

OTTAWA — Three guesses to identify the source of this current quotation:

"British trade unionism has thus become a formula for national misery."

The London Times at its most reactionary? Wrong. The Federation of British Industries, which is the voice of big business? Wrong. An aging Tory member of the House of Lords? Wrong.

The quotation is from a remarkable article in the New Statesman, the most respected journal of the left in Britain, by the former editor, Paul Johnson.

In what must strike most members of the Labor party as the most appalling heresy, Johnson declares: "Trade unionism is killing socialism in Britain, and it is time socialists did something about it."

Johnson goes on: "The trade union movement may be dressed up with economic committees and so forth, but its only real purpose is to bargain for better wages within an all-powerful capitalist system. The British trade union movement has now been taken out of that context and placed in an entirely new one. Yet it is still carrying on doing the only thing it knows how to do — ask for higher wages. As it has beaten all its opponents, as it is for all practical purposes the state, it naturally gets them. A subject government prints the money, and the result is inflation on an unprecedented scale."

Johnson is writing about the situation in Britain where the unions are ignoring what is supposed to be their social contract with the Labor governwont.

But the argument has application in Canada where the New Democratic Party was founded in 1961 on the model of the British party — that is, as an alliance between parliamentary socialists and the union movement.

Jonhson says, "People often assume that trade unionism and socialism are roughly the same thing; that a trade unionist is a socialist, and vice-versa; and that trade union and socialist activities are designed to secure the same objects. I would like to show that these assumptions have always been dubious and are now demonstrably and flagrantly false."

He argues that unionism emerged as a defensive league of desperate and exploited working men against the ruthless power of 19th century capital. "Its great weapon, the strike, was essentially negative, destructive and desparing, like the riot. It might fail at appalling cost or, even if it succeeded, might damage those who wielded it almost as much as its opponents. It was used because there seemed no other way."

The trade union is not a socialist or political instrument at all, says Johnson, but part of the capitalist system. In Britain, the union movement has become so powerful that it has not only beaten the employers, but brought governments to their knees. It is now plundering the economy, often at the expense of the poor and weak, and ruining the country.

The union movement in Canada is not nearly as powerful as it is in Britain. There is no labor government in power in Ottawa. And capitalism has hardly been brought to beg for mercy — as, says Johnson, is the case in Britain.

But the view that unions in the long term really have nothing in common with socialists is probably just as true in Canada as in Britain or anywhere else.

In theory, for example, one would expect to see socialists campaigning for great state control of the economy to halt inflation by regulating wages and profits and to redistribute wealth — in other words, for an incomes policy. But Canadian unions want no part of controls because they have the bargaining power to do very nicely in the free market.

So the so-called socialists in the NDP are reduced to opposing an incomes policy and defending "free collective bargaining," which of course is the free capitalist market.

Socialists are supposed to believe also in the public ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange. Revolutionaries want to achieve this overnight; democrats hope to achieve the transformation from private to public ownership gradually, by a process of persuasion and experimentation.

One might expect, therefore, to see the NDP advocating industrial democracy — that is, the development of a system in which workers begin to share power and responsibility for managing the private companies in which they are employed.

In fact, the once and future leader of the party, Ed Broadbent, used to advocate industrial democracy until the unions made clear they didn't want any of that nonsense. The unions see themselves as adversaries of management, and if industrial democracy worked, they might be out of business.

The NDP is probably suffering in other ways from its alliance with the trade unions. In Quebec, unions are associated with corruption and violence. In English-speaking Canada, they are blamed for strikes and, rightly or wrongly, for inflation.

The union movement has never been popular in Canada, but after a quarter-century of relative respectability, it may now be entering a period in which it will be a popular villain.

The NDP will then find itself in the role of defending a movement which — according to Johnson — is essentially capitalist and opposed to socialist ends.

Government on Its Butt

By GEOFFREY STEVENS
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA — A three-year-old boy is shot and killed while riding in his parents' car on a highway near Renfrew. No one seems to know what happened. Perhaps it was a stray shot from a careless hunter banging away at groundhogs in the bushes along the highway. Or perhaps it was some idiot, a latter-day cowboy, trying to shoot a groundhog from another car. A heart-rending accident.

An apparently normal 16-year-old student wanders home in the morning from class at Centennial Secondary School in Brampton. He goes to his room, packs two rifles in a guitar case and returns to school where he loads the weapons and starts shooting. Three dead, including the student himself. A dozen or so injured. An inexplicable tragedy.

Why? Why? Why?

Why do we allow anyone who is so stupid, so selfish, so thoughtless, so criminally incompetent as to fire a gun near a busy highway or, worse, from a moving car to have possession of a firearm? Why do we allow teenagers to have rifles?

Why does the government of Canada not bring before Parliament without a moment's delay a gun control law that would do the following: require the registration of all firearms of all types; make it illegal for anyone to have a firearm in his possession unless he has first passed a stiff test to prove that he knows how to use the weapon and how to use it safely; make it illegal to sell, give or loan a firearm to anyone who has not passed such a test; require anyone who wants a firearm to establish that he has a legitimate need of a gun?

To put it crudely, why does the government not get off its butt?

But wait a moment. Let's try to be fair. Maybe the government is doing something. We take you to Lindsay, Ontario, where recently Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was answering a question from a student about capital punishment. In the course of his reply, Mr. Trudeau indicated a certain vague sympathy for gun control legislation. "On the one hand," said the prime minister, "we think that laws relating to the protection of the citizen must be strengthened — gun laws, laws relating to parole or conditional absences and that type of thing — but on the other hand I suppose there is a reluctance on the part of the government to face the necessity of hanging somebody."

I find myself in complete sympathy with Mr. Trudeau's reluctance to execute murderers. I'd feel a great deal better about his fleeting reference to "gun laws" were it not for a suspicion that it was just a stray thought that vanished from his mind the instant he mentioned it. He's had eight years — seven as prime minister and one as minister of justice — to write a gun law.

But wait another moment. We take you to Solictor-General Warren Allmand who was speaking to the press about the shootings in the Brampton school. He is probably the strongest proponent in the cabinet of gun control. Right there, where all the nation could see and hear, Mr. Allmand said that, yes, his department is making a study of gun control legislation. Hurry? No. His office told me the same thing a year ago when I inquired about the possibility of legislation. The matter was under serious study.

The sad thing is that Mr. Allmand's study, far from advancing a cause he believes in, is actually retarding it. Three times, Senator Donald Cameron, an independent Liberal from Alberta, has introduced a gun control bill in the Senate. This time, his bill got second reading and was scheduled to be considered by the Senate committee on legal and Constitutional Affairs immediately after the government's cannabis bill. The committee has finished with the cannabis legislation but consideration of the Cameron bill has been postponed indefinitely because of the "possibility" the Mr. Allmand's study might lead to government legislation in the fall.

One wouldn't want to bet his bus fare on this possibility because the real obstacle to gun control legislation is outside the purview of the Allmand study. The main obstacle is Justice Minister Otto Lang who is as flatly opposed to gun controls as he is to abortion.

Of course, Mr. Lang does not run the government. If anyone does, it's the prime minister. If Mr. Trudeau means what he seemed to be suggesting he thought he might mean in Lindsay, he has only to give the word. A small act of leadership. In Ottawa, in these days of majority and somnolent Liberal government, however, leadership is an elusive item.

Reap some benefits from all the cheques you write.

If you write ten or more cheques a month, consider a Commerce Key Account.

Because at 16¢ each, ten cheques already cost you $1.60. That's for the cheques you write, period.

But an extra 90¢ makes it a whole different story.

With a Commerce Key Account you can get a preferred rate on most consumer loans, (and that's a nice thing to remember). You can get this summer's travellers' cheques for no extra service charge.

You'll have an identification card which allows you to cash a personal cheque, up to $100, at any of our 1600 Commerce branches in Canada.

And that's not all. There is no service charge when you use 24-Hour Cash Dispensers, you'll get special cheques, money orders, domestic drafts, and a whole raft of other services.

All for a flat $2.50 a month. Or, in your case, maybe 90¢ more than you are paying now for cheques alone.

But hold on. We don't think everybody should get a Commerce Key Account. If you're not writing ten or more cheques you could be wasting your money.

And that's exactly what a Commerce Key Account doesn't want you to do.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Links to Be Revamped

The new design of the golf course will also make it safer for golfers and pedestrians using the Derby Road footpath through the municipal course.

It is also designed to produce more revenue from clubhouse facilities.

The plan was presented to council by the parks and recreation committee on Monday. Its author, Gerry Chaster, Saanich's assistant parks administrator, estimated the revamping will cost $150,000 over five years.

He suggested $44,000 be spent this year, $31,000 in 1976, $59,000 in the third year and $15,000 to create a driving range. Chaster said the range would be located almost in the centre of the course. It would be about 210 yards long and be surrounded by a 40-foot fence, the base being of wire and upper portion of fishnetting.

Course professional Bill Goldsworthy said a driving range could not help but make money for the municipality. He said the new range at Burnaby Mountain had netted $28,000 for Burnaby in 1974 and is expected to make $35,000 this year.

The new plans call for the pro shop to be relocated so that Goldsworthy can keep closer watch on the first and 10th tees as well as the ninth and 18th greens, allowing a smoother flow of players.

"I'm glad to see Mr. Chaster has come up with an ultimate plan," observed Ald. Sandy Noel." This is a good rearrangement. It protects the public and it protects the players. The (Cedar Hill golf) club wants participation in providing additional lockers and other facilities for the clubhouse.

"I would support it (the revamping) over a phased program if we can hack it (financially)."

Chairman Ald. Fred Severson said the club had intimated it would be willing to spend $25,000 on improving club facilities.

He and Chaster asked for quick approval of the plan because of the time needed to plant new greens and trees and to ensure any new sprinkling systems are co-ordinated with the changes in layout.

Severson observed that $41,000 is already in the budget for work on the course this year.

Chaster's plan has one disadvantage a long walk between th 12th green and the 13th tee past the clubhouse but he and Noel observed that it would allow golfers a convenient rest stop.

The plans will be submitted to club members for their study.

Supporting Chaster's plan, Mayor Ed Lum noted:

"These are flexible and the golf course is the only recreation facility in the municipality that is making money for us."

Boost Saves 3 Jobs

The jobs of three people employed by a small cable television system in Saanich have been saved by a rate increase approved Monday by the Canadian Radio and Television Commission.

Vincent Mielen, president of Davin Enterprises which operates the cable system, said he had to lay off his three employees Saturday because of financial difficulties.

But he started hiring the employees back Monday after word of the increase which raises rates from $4.50 for urban services and $5 for rural to $6 a month.

Mielen appeared at a CRTC public hearing in April to fight for the rate increase which he said was necessary if the system was to continue.

After waiting almost two months for a reply from the commission, Mielen wrote a strongly-worded letter to the commission saying "bureaucratic lag is killing me and our system."

After the Monday decision Mielen began hiring back his staff and said the rate increases would probably go into effect Sept. 1.

Trustees Order Report On Old Area Schools

A report on the usefulness of older schools in Greater Victoria School District will be made by district staff this summer

The report was ordered by the school board Monday on a motion by trustee Phil Perry.

The study will be made with a view to possible consolidation of schools, closure of old, obsolete buildings or their conversion to other uses, and possible adjustment of school boundaries.

The report is to be ready for the September board meeting, so that long-term operating and capital economies in school operations might be made starting in 1976, Perry's motion said.

The motion got the support of most of the newer trustees on the board, who have often voiced concern about continual expenditure on building and maintaining school buildings in a district with a declining student enrolment.

"It's time we had an in-depth look at the system," said trustee Dr. Mark Fisher.

In other business, the board agreed to pay half the salary of James Bay community school assistant principal (community schools), Janey Allan, for the September to December 1975 period.

This $3,054 will be the board's contribution toward the community program that operates at the school.

The board also agreed to write the James Bay Community Resources Board, saying that the school board's "considerable financial contribution in the past" shows its support for the community school, but saying the resources board must seek fundisg from other community agencies in future.

The whole community school questios will be discussed in committee next month.

The board also:

All three bids on the project had exceeded the $309,000 funding available, so part of the work in the project will be dropped so that Bate's original low bid of $355,494 could be cut back to $308,763.

Approved a $2,000 grant for the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

C. Saanich Reminder Sent to the Province

A handful of letters from rate payers complaining of property tax increases led Central Saanich Council Monday to remind the provincial government of an earlier promise.

Council decided to forward one of the letters to the province with a covering letter explaining at least part of the problem is climbing education costs, over which it has no control.

And the government will be reminded that one of its promises was removal of the school levy from the property tax bill.

Aldermen also decided to press the Capital Regional Board on the matter of equalization payments for municipalities such as Central Saanich where much of the land is zoned for agriculture.

Of 90 miles of road only about 10 miles directly serve residential areas yet all must be maintained by taxes on largely agricultural land, said Ald. Percy Lazarz.,

Mayor Jean Butler said today the equalization grants were to come from the province through regional boards.

Heavy Load For Spring Clean-Up

Oak Bay residents heaved a heavy load of garbage from their homes during Spring Clean Up Week May 26 to 30.

Municipal crews picked up 1,210 yards of material compared with 510 yards last year, Committee B was told Monday night.

Church Backs Natives

QUEBEC (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada called upon the federal and provincial governments Monday to halt planned developments in northern areas until the claims of affected natives are settled.

It also asked the governments to treat seriously the demands of Indians, Eskimos and Metis and to open negotiations aimed at reaching a settlement "without conditions."

In a related resolution, approved unanimously after a sometimes-heated two-hour debate, the 27th general synod expressed its convictions that "no new policies of action relating to native peoples be initiated or developed" without consultations in depth with native peoples.

Arch. A. W. Scott, primate of the Anglican Church, was directed to send the message of the church to Ottawa by telegram immediately.

DRUG OFF SHELVES

OTTAWA (CP) — A prescription drug, Furadantin Oral Suspension, is being recalled voluntarily from the Canadian market because of its possible adverse effects, the health department said Monday.

The lemon-yellow suspension, manufactured by Eaton Laboratories in Paris, Ont., is used to treat genito-urinary tract infection, including prostatis, a statement said. It might only be identified with a drug identification number: 100099.

Furadantin has a potency from six to eight times the strength listed on the label and possible adverse effects include nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. Prolonged usage might lead to blood disorders or jaundice, the health department said.

Crisis Eases But...

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The world's food shortage, which aroused widespread alarm last year, is easing — but paradoxically causing more concern to experts here.

Instead of the current deficit of grain consumption over production estimated at 20 million tons, the U.S. agriculture department predicts a surplus next year of 25 million tons, including a sharp increase in consumption.

However, analysts fear that a big surplus of grains will drive down prices and discourage the world's big producers from producing so much in future.

Author and food analyst Lester Brown, who estimated last year that the world had enough grain reserves to cover consumption for 26 days, said the biggest problem is rapidly rising populations in developing countries increasing their demand for foreign food.

"Until we put the brakes on population growth, there will be no supply solution to the world's food problem."

Brown said that until recently, the U.S. had about 50 million acres of untilled land in reserve. "But as of 1975," he said, "we find we have not only tapped the reserve, we have committed the whole thing and we are still having difficulties in rebuilding food reserves to a satisfactory level.

One solution being considered here is a tripling of short-term government credit for U.S. food exports to about $1 billion, in a bid to increase sales and avoid a grain glut.

Arson Suspect Changes Plea

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) Halting his trial during jury selection, Peter Leonard pleaded guilty to 28 counts of murder, arson and burglary in connection with the deaths of 24 persons in a Port Chester discotheque last June 30.

The judge immediately gave Leonard a temporary sentence of 15 years to life pending final sentencing July 16.

Most Stocks Gain, Metals Retreat

The widely-based industrial index was up .79 to 186.65, golds .55 to 406.40 and western oils 1.11 to 188.14. Moving against the trend, base metals fell .19 to 72.56.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.13 million shares, increased from 778,000 at the same time Monday.

Livingston Industries gained 1¼ to $9½. The company reported net income for the year ending April 30 $1 million higher than the previous year.

Noranda Mines A rose ⅞ to $35¾, Algonquin Building Credits ¾ to $5, Atco A ½ to $20, Imperial Bank ⅜ to $24⅞ and Home Oil A ⅝ to $22⅜.

Quebec Sturgeon River lost 15 cents to $3.05, Falconbridge Copper ⅛ to $5⅜ and Cyprus Anvil ⅛ to $7½.

New York

Analysts noted some buying interest on President Ford's optimistic assessment of the economic outlook.

Ford told a business group the recession was bottoming out, and said the U.S. government report on May housing starts due later in the day would provide further evidence of an improving economy.

Gulf Oil, the NYSE volume leader, picked up ¼ to $23⅛, and Rockwell International 1¼ to $25⅛. The two companies announced after Monday's close that they were discussing a variety of possible agreements, from joint ventures to a merger.

Montreal

Prices were higher in most sectors in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange today.

The composite index was up 0.47 to 189.29. Banks were up 2.15 to 260.77, industrials 0.47 to 195.50, and papers 0.05 to 109.10, while utilitie swere off 0.25 to 130.32.

Pan Ocean Oil was up ⅞ to $12¼, Alcan Aluminium ⅛ to $23½, Bell Canada ⅛ to $45, Husky Oil ⅛ to $19 and Alberta Gas Trunk Line ⅛ to $12⅝.

London

The London stock market moved lower today amid growing concern about the threat of a national rail strike June 23. Trading was light.

The Financial Times index, which lost five points the previous session, was down 4.7 to 330.8 in mid-session trading.

Canadian stock prices were mixed in quiet activity.

Mine Stocks Take a Beating

By AL FORREST

Mining stocks are taking a beating on the Toronto Stock Exchange as analysts are becoming increasingly pessimistic about metal prices.

Mining stocks are in their worst slump since November.

Investors had been looking for signs of an economic recovery later this year but inventories of metals are so high that prices are expected to be low for many months after the recession ends.

Copper prices are down to 51.8 cents a pound, about eight cents below the forecast in January. Zinc is in surplus and a decline in prices is expected.

In British Columbia, mining officials said the current price of 51.8 cents is two cents below the break-even level for major B.C. open pit copper mines. Small underground copper mines would be losing money at any price below 60 cents.

The losses could force one or more major B.C. copper mines to close before year's end, although all companies have indicated they will sustain the present losses as long as they can.

The pessimism knocked the industrial mine index in Toronto to 115.52 on Friday, down 4.32 for the week, the sharpest decline since November. The base metals index fell 1.14 points to 72.48.

During the week Falconbridge Nickel fell $2.37, Noranda A was down $2, Inco A slipped $1, Inco B and Pine Point fell $1.50 and Texasgulf was down $1.12.

Despite the price slump, trading was relatively light and the market remained orderly.

Most other sections of the market were also on the downside. The TSE industrial index fell to 185.28 at week's end, down 2.13 points on the week, the biggest drop since April 25. Trading activity continued to be light across the board with volume so far this year hitting 251.58 million shares, down from 332.8 million in the same period a year ago.

Dollar value is down to $2.2 billion from $2.7 billion despite some brisk selling by large traders.

For the second straight week, a large block of MacMillan Bloedel shares was sold. Canadian Pacific has an open order for MB shares as they come on the market.

A $232,500 order of MB shares was sold in the form of 10,000 shares at $23.25 each. On the same day, a block of Cominco shares was sold. Cominco is controlled by Canadian Pacific. The Cominco shares sold for about $234,000, in the form of 8,000 shares at $29.25 each.

Other large blocks sold in the past week include 60,000 Placer at $18, 15,000 Toronto Dominion at $42.12, 40,000 Canada Permanent at $18.25, 10,000 Trizac at $16.75 and 7,000 Trizac at $16.25, 35,800 Alberta Gas Truck A at $12.25, 6,000 Hudson's Bay Company at $17.37, 10,000 Bank of Montreal at $15.75 and 25,000 CPI at $15.75.

Also sold were 6,000 Imperial Oil A at $28.75, 5,700 Pan-Canadian Pete at $13 and 20,000 Union Gas preferred at $20.25.

Gold was the only major index to show an upward trend in Toronto with industrials, base metals and western oils tending to the down side.

Of the subsections, only three of 16 were trending upward. They are beverages, oil refining and trusts.

Merchandising, construction, real estate and communications were sharply down along with steels. Inventories of steel have been building up as the recession continues.

business

Molson Companies

Molson Companies Ltd. reports increases in sales set records but profits dropped in the year ended March 31.

In a release the company said net earnings before extraordinary items were $19,620,000 or $1.43 a share, down from $21,848,000 or $1.60 a share a year earlier.

Final earnings were reduced to $18,618,000 or $1.36 a share by a loss of $1 million from closure of the company's unprofitable Italian operations of Bennett Pump Co.

Sales increased 20 per cent to a record $740,337,000, up from $618,590,000 in 1974.

Molson's brewing operations rose 9.4 per cent to a record 5,800,000 barrels, with sales up 20 per cent to $357.1 mil-

Sales of the retail merchandising group increased 21.3 per cent to $211.8 million. Total sales of the commercial products and services group were $148.9 million.

Laatt's

John Labatt Ltd. reports net earnings for the year ended April 30 were $22,176,000 or $2.09 a share, down from $22,564,000 or $2.15 a share the previous year.

In a release, the company said gross sales increased 20.6 per cent to $727,457,000 from $603,014,000 in 1974.

Labatt's beer sales volume increased 2.7 per cent in Canada, slightly ahead of the industry's growth of 2.4 per cent.

Kaiser Resources

Kaiser Resources Ltd. shareholders on record June 20 will receive a 20-cent dividend June 30.

In a statement prepared for the company's annual meeting, company president Edgar Kaiser said the dividend represents a five-cent increase from the dividend paid in the first quarter of 1975 when earnings were reported as $15.2 million.

Kaiser told shareholders that because of new prices for coal exported to Japan, the company expects second-quarter earnings to improve and earnings over-all in 1975 to improve significantly.

Giant Mascot

Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. reports that although the number of company shares outstanding increased in the six-month period ending March 31, the company declined further investment.

A statement from company president L. P. Starck says 2,245,605 shares at .58 cents a share were sold during the period to Cempt Investments Ltd. for $1,302,540, bring the total number of Giant Mascot shares outstanding to $14,779,322.

Starck's statement says the company now has no outstanding debts, but declined an $842,837.50 investment for 67,427 shares in Panarctic Oils Ltd., with which Giant Mascot has already participated in five expansion agreements.

Gas Trunk, Valve Firm Negotiate

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. is negotiating to acquire the majority interest in the assets of a United States valve manufacturing firm which is proposing a western Canadian operation.

AGTL announced it is dealing with Valve Systems International, a subsidiary of I.U. International of Philadelphia, for a majority interest in the assets of Grove Valve and Regulatory Co., of Emeryville, Calif.

Grove has made a commitment to establish a valve manufacturing operation in western Canada to service Canadian and export markets, said J. D. Kadlec, AGTL vice-president.

The firm produces valves for gas and oil transmission lines, compressor stations, refineries and utilities throughout the world.

He Attempted Suicide . . . So Police Shot Him

LONG BEACH, Calif. — La Verne Hoyt had some unexpected help with his suicide attempt. After he shot himself, the police who had been sent to stop him shot him again.

Police said officers were sent to prevent Hoyt, 25, of Redondo Beach, Calif., from carrying out a threat to shoot himself. As police argued with him, trying to talk him out of it, Hoyt shot himself in the stomach. An officer who thought Hoyt had opened fire on police shot Hoyt in the hip.

Hoyt was in critical condition at County-USC Medical Centre, where he was held in the jail ward on a charge of brandishing a firearm in a rude and threatening manner.

NEW YORK — Former Beatle John Lennon, fighting a 1972 deportation order, has filed suit against the justice department, former attorney-general John Mitchell and other officials, charging they singled him out for "improper selective prosecution."

Leon Wildes, Lennon's attorney, said Monday he has documents showing Lennon's deportation was ordered from Washington because of a Senate internal security committee report which sought to link Lennon with plans to disrupt the 1972 Republican national convention.

EDMONTON — Florence Agnes Brownlee, wife of J. E. Brownlee who was premier of Alberta from 1925 to 1934, died Friday in Edmonton.

Mrs. Brownlee, 87, was a native of London, Ontario, but moved to Alberta in 1908 to accept a teaching position. She met her husband that year as he articled with the law firm of R. B. Bennett, the man who became Canada's prime minister from 1930 to 1935.

EDMONTON — George H. Steer, who practised law in Edmonton for more than 50 years and was awarded the medal of the Order of Canada in 1971, died Monday aged 89.

A native of Hamilton, he came to Edmonton in 1912 and was admitted to the Alberta bar in 1915.

Dr. Steer was a partner in the firm of Milner and Steer since 1934 until his retirement in 1970.

NEW YORK — Time magazine says Israeli officials who accompanied Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin to Washington last week thought their rooms were bugged.

Time says that the Israelis staying in Blair House, the official United States guest residence, spoke in lowered voices and used cryptic references, Hebrew slang and sing language to converse because they feared eavesdropping.

LOS ANGELES — David Hartman, star of the television series Lucas Tanner, is a father. His wife, Maureen, gave birth to a boy Sunday night. The couple named him Sean.

PAY BOARD, ROOM, RICH CONVICT TOLD

DETROIT (UPI) — A Wayne County circuit court judge has ordered a convict, whose mother left him $50,000 in her will, to pay for his room and board at Southern Michigan Prison.

The amount, state officials said, is $12.33 a day.

The convict, Donald Crenshaw, was sued for his expenses by attorney General Frank Kelley under a little-used 1935 state law. The law stipulates that prisoners reimburse the state for room and board while behind bars.

But officials said the law is rarely used since most prisoners could not afford to pay for their keep.

Circuit Court Judge Harry Dingeman ruled Friday that Crenshaw, an alleged "hit man" serving a six-to-10-year term for wounding a businessman, must pay for his keep.

ROLLING STONE

It's been a long time — a rock and roll generation, it seems — since we've visited the home of the Jefferson Airplane, now Starship. The band — Paul Kantner, Grace Slick, the returned Marty Balin, fiddler Papa John Creach, drummer Johnny Barbata, bassist Pete Sears, keyboard player David Freiberg, and guitarist Craig Chaquico — had just done a free concert in Golden Gate Park in front of 25,000 people. (A couple of weeks before, they had played for 60,000 at Central Park — again at no charge. "We just thought it would be nice to go to New York and not work," said Paul, by way of explanation.) Anyway, they were celebrating the San Francisco park concert with a party at their mansion on Fulton Street, and it felt like another time.

Inside the two-story house, nothing seemed changed. Billiard table in the dining room, amps and speakers throughout the living area, and the usual madness-gathering of guests. But the real party this night was upstairs, in the room used by the Starship's label, Grunt Records. Here, Grace, Paul, David, and manager Bill Thompson hosted those who could penetrate the knot of stairway guards. Here was the Dom Perignon (downstairs we sipped Charles Krug), and here was Maurice, the faithful engineer, bearing an acetate, direct from the airport, of the latest Starship album, "Red Octopus." Grace, behind a huge desk, had on what she calls her "obnoxious" mask, glaring at strangers (and familiar faces) and snarling at the first notes of the new album. Later, she gave us a hug of a greeting. "I do strange things a lot," she said. As for "Red Octopus," it'll be out in late June and feature more of Marty Balin, who in fact thought up the title. "He was at the zoo," said Thompson, "and found out that octopuses turn red when they're eating."

David Bowie visited the Neuropsychiatric Institute at UCLA recently — but he was just doing research. He is studying kirlian photography, a process that translates energy impulses from living organisms onto film; K.P. is being used in a movie Bowie is making in New Mexico, called "The Man Who Fell to Earth." The film is being described as a "contemporary suspense drama" and is not a musical. Bowie stars and portrays, he tells us, "a space-age invader."

Was Fax: Joni Mitchel is at work on a new album. One of the songs she has written, "The Boho Dance," was inspired by Tom Wolf's recent magazine piece of art ("The Painted Word," in Harpers). Another song is about a pimp and three of his pimpees . . . Joni appears, with Neil Young, on David Blue's next album, underway . . . Bonnie Raitt's long search for a producer for her next record is over, and she's in the studios with Paul Rothchild, whose credits include the Doors' first and Janis' last.

★ ★ ★

IN CONCERT: Elton John may be doing more than the five-show benefit series at the Troubadour in Hollywood in late August; his people have been talking to the Anaheim Stadium about a huge show there the same week . . . Neil Young is planning a fall tour, and he'll be trying to recapture the past, travelling by bus, doing smaller halls, and sharing the stage with Crazy Horse . . . When Bad Company played Miami, they set up a jukebox next to the hotel pool and played Ace's "How Long" all day long. No one counted, but the best guess is that the song played 200 times. The song, by the way, is about Ace's long-frustrated career, and not about a romance . . .

Brief Vacation Gentle, Simple

A Movie Review By Nora Hutchison

A Brief Vacation, Vittorio De Sica's last production before his death last November, is a simple little film with a gently romantic plot. The heroine, Clara (Florinda Bolkan), is an overworked, deeply depressed working-class woman, harassed by a family of ne'er-do-wells whom she supports with an exhausting laboring job in a factory in Milan. When she collapses from a long-running fever, a clinic doctor diagnoses her illness as tuberculosis and recommends that she be sent to a sanatorium in the mountains to recuperate.

The family objects to the doctor's plan. Her mother-in-law, a whithered crone, mutters darkly that the children will suffer without their mother's care. Her husband, who berates her and uses her sexually as if she were just an animal, suspects she's just trying to shirk her duty. Clara grieves over the prospect of leaving the children but decides to go anyway — she's desperate for some peace.

The hospital is located in a beautiful mountain valley and looks like a resort. The staff is kind, and the patients, some workers like herself, others paying patients suffering elegantly in their couturier-designed sports clothes, help to draw her out of her anxious, depressed state. She goes to concerts, starts to read Anna Karenina, and even takes part in a demonstration organized by the working-class patients who want their salaries continued while they recover. A patient whose career is fashion modelling teaches her how to make herself up. Clara blossoms under the attention. She falls in love with another patient, a quiet young mechanic who treats her with a tenderness she's never known before.

Then suddenly it's over — she's cured. Or is her cure a kind of death sentence? De Sica leaves the question unresolved. She travels back to Milan with a thoughtful look on her face — perhaps this first glimpse into a decent life will give her the strength to endure her existence or even to change it.

Florinda Bolkan is a handsome and affecting actress. She has an extraordinary mask-like face — watchful and reserved — that reflects her anguish and pleasure without extravagant gestures. In the movie's best sequence she wonderingly explores her bright hospital room, savors a beautifully prepared supper, and then climbs into a clean white bed. The contrasts between this haven of rest and her noisy, grimy apartment in Milan provide her with a constant source of delight but she knows she dare not get used to the changes.

De Sica's film might be described as a gallant old Italian's gesture towards the women's liberation movement — with atmosphere courtesy of Thomas Mann's The Magic Mountain. The movie shifts between a grimly realistic view of an oppressed, enraged working-class woman and a kind of ethereal romanticism common to films of earlier eras. The vaporous love affair between two TB patients is a little dated but De Sica handles every detail with such restraint that you never feel awash in sentiment.

PAIR SHARING SHOW NOW AT OPEN SPACE

Opening tonight at Open Space Gallery, 506 Fort, is a two-man exhibition of paintings by Victoria artists Toby Nilsson and Jose Polutnik.

The paintings will be on view through Saturday, July 5, daily except Sunday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Polutnik, well known as a sculptor, has been experimenting with paint on cheesecloth and gauze. The effects of texture and lighting are quite subtle and add a soft, airy dimension to Polutnik's abstract designs and colors.

$2 Bill Comeback In U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon thinks the government will decide this summer whether to print a $2 bill.

"I kind of like the idea," he added Monday.

Thomas Jefferson is the leading candidate to appear on the new $2 bills, since his portrait was on the last issue before the government suspended printing them in 1966. Feminist organizations, however, have launched a campaign on behalf of suffragette Susan Anthony.

Simon said the treasury secretary technically can order printing of a new denomination of currency, but in this case President Ford will have the final say and the federal reserve board will be consulted.

Simon said so few $2 bills were issued in the last printing that they failed to catch on and became a collector's item. A similar pheonomenon occurred when the first John Kennedy fifty-cent pieces were placed in circulation.

Carr House Art Exhibit

Oil paintings by Margaret Bayliss are being shown at the Emily Carr Arts Centre, 207 Government.

The artist has had several years of study in Canada and the United States and her paintings include landscapes, and flowers and abstracts.

Hours for viewing are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays until June 29.

NATURE PAINTINGS SHOWN

A travelling art show which has become an annual event since its inception in 1971 is on view at the Provincial Archives in Heritage Court.

Titled Canadian Nature Art '75, it is sponsored by the Canadian Nature Federation and National Museum of Natural Sciences.

This year the show features 40 works by 29 Canadian artists, including two by internationally famous Victoria bird painter Fenwick Lansdowne, three watercolors by Victorian Joan Ward-Harris, an acrylic by Saanich's Frank Beebe and a watercolor by Miss P. F. Wright of Salt Spring Island.

Art Songs Keynote Program

An evening of art songs will be presented Wednesday at 8 at the University of Victoria's MacLaurin Building auditorium.

The artists are Susan Word, soprano, and Brian Benn, bass, assisted by pianists Mary Des Roches and Frances Crampton.

Both vocalists are members of Amity Singers who have done solo work with the ensemble as well as appearing on other concert programs. Miss Word was runner-up to Pierann Moon in the Victoria Music Festival Rose Bowl competition this spring.

Benn received one of the highest marks in the adult vocal classes and the male oratorio award.

Among highlights of the program will be the Dvorak Biblical Lieder sung by Miss Word and Benn's performance of the Schumann Liederkreise and Milhaud's Chanson de Negresse.

Rubbings on Display

An exhibition that dips into history and is at the same time an immensely popular art is occupying Open Space, 510 Fort, for two weeks.

Monumental Brass Rubbings from English Churches consists of more than 40 rubbings from tthe aisles and walls of historic churches and the tops of tombs. Rubbings are from 1½ feet to eight feet high.

The exhibit is from the private collections of Mrs. Pamela Odgers, Mrs. Helen Tudor, and Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver, all of Victoria.

Popularity of the art among visitors to England as well as residents is such that some important brasses must be booked for rubbing several months in advance.

Only a small portion — about 8,000 — of these commemorative and funerary brasses still exist in England, many having been destroyed during the reformation or melted down to make cannons in early wars.

The exhibition will be on view from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily except Sunday until June 28.

Sorry Penguin Story Tops NHL Worry List

MONTREAL (CP) — When the National Hockey League board of governors got together today, one of the major topics of discussion was expected to be the sad shape of the Pittsburgh Penguins franchise.

Last Friday, the Penguins went into receivership and it was reported Monday that Equibank, the largest single creditor of the financially-troubled club, filed writs of execution to attach the bank accounts of the club's owners.

The Penguins owe creditors about $6.5 million, including $5 million to the bank.

The NHL governors will also consider the plight of California Seals, as well as a bid by Greg Neeld to play in the league despite the fact he only has one good eye.

The NHL is proceeding on the assumption that a group headed by Mel Swig, a San Francisco businessman, will operate the California team next season.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said last Monday that Swig has been able to make financial arrangements to purchase the league-operated club, adding the transaction could be completed in a "matter of days."

Until the Pittsburgh and California problems are settled, it will be difficult for the league to draw up a schedule for the 1975-76 season.

The Neeld case presents another tricky problem for the NHL. Neeld, a defenceman, was drafted in the fourth round of the amateur draft by Buffalo Sabres. He played last season with Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League using a face mask to protect his right eye.

Neeld lost his left eye while playing for Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series in 1973.

An NHL rule bans players with less thas 25 per cent vision in any eye from competing in the league. Campbell is already on record as saying he is strongly opposed to any change in the sight rule.

Neeld demonstrated his mask Monday at a session of the NHL's joint rules committee. Nine members of the committee voted to accept the mask while eight voted against it, including the three Canadian teams— Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

"I hope the governors will have a broader and more worldly view," said Roy McMurtry, a Toronto lawyer representing Neeld."

Neeld and his father Norman designed the mask which has undergone several tests. Neeld had two reports from doctors saying that chances of injury to his right eye were remote.

There is little available in the intra-league draft. Each of the 18 clubs was allowed to protect 18 skaters and goaltenders and first-year professionals are exempt from claim.

Among players available are veteran forward Glen Sather of Montreal Canadiens, defencemen Gary Doak of Boston Bruins and Gary Bergman of Detroit Red Wings along with Darryl Edestrand of New York Rangers.

Marcel Dionne of Detroit, Eddie Westfall of New York Islanders, Rod Gilbert of the Rangers and John Bucyk of Boston were also left off the protected lists, but they and about 10 others cannot be drafted because they are free agents.

DEMONSTRATING mask approved Monday by National Hockey League's joint rules committee is former Calgary Centennial Greg Neeld, who lost sight in an eye two years ago while playing with Toronto Marlboros. Drafted by Buffalo Sabres, he must still have mask approved by NHL's board of governors before eligible to play in league. (CP Wirephoto)

Basketball: A Tale Of Two Dynasties

The anniversary waltz is over for another year, but the melody and the memory linger on. It was ever thus. It was two weeks ago, believe it, and while the famed Edmonton Grads were getting together here and celebrating the 60th anniversary of the founding of that famous women's basketball club, the Victoria Dominoes at virtually the same time were etching year 44 into their track record book at Vancouver, this despatch being delayed because of various other vacation commitments.

So these were the two great teams of the Canadian basketball world, past and present, and with just dues to the present Canadian national men's team, which is ranked eighth in the world, and moving up.

The Grads, who gathered here for their reunion as detailed earlier on these pages, were, for the record, world champions on 17 occasions, unbeaten in 27 games in four Olympics in a demonstration role, and winners of 502 of 522 games, among other sundry honors listed and theirs is truly a remarkable record of achievement, bar none.

The Dominoes, nee Blue Ribbons, to be equally brief, Canadian champions on five occasions from 1932 through 1946 and nearly always otherwise a contender, meanwhile were renewing their recollections on the mainland. And if the girls had a ball here, it was likewise over there, wives being invited for the first, but perhaps not the last, time.

He Played His Ball At . . .

It was a fun-and-sometimes-fib-night rolled into one, which is what anniversaries are all about. And some old foes and friends turned up to trade barbs with their former foes. There was Ran Matheson, the former Adanac from New Westminster; Jim Bardsley, a household name in that time; Norm Gloag, still involved in the game and a man who perhaps has done more than any other to keep senior basketball alive since that era; Ralph "Hunk" Henderson, the burly Clover Leaf centre; Basil Sands, who proudly announced "I'm the world's best referee"; Frank Mylrea, brother of John, a former Domino; Wink Willox, an ex-official, now in charge of rules . . . plus many of the old guard themselves.

Richie Nichol, for instance was reminiscing about the time the old Vancouver Hornets, B.C.'s first and probably last professional basketball team, were having their thumbnail sketches done. And when it came to Norm Baker, the designation of historical significance said simply: Nanaimo High School. And U.S. players and teams just couldn't believe that a player with that ability, and who was to play professionally in the Eastern U.S. and on tour against the Harlem Globe Trotters, didn't have a university to call his alma mater. Besides, where-the-hell was Nanaimo?

It's old hat now, I suppose, to repeat that Norm was rated the best of his time, and could shoot some, which is probably why he was selected as Canada's basketball player of the half century. But then, that's what the Dominoes were all about too, and judged the best that B.C. has produced over a similar period of time.

When the Flyers Pranged

Even Reggie Clarkson, Victoria's latest member to the B.C. Hall-of-Fame, admitted his role with the Hornets, who were mostly ex-Dominoes, was a nominal one.

"The only reason I got on the team was they needed someone to sit on the bench in case one of the starting five got tired," he quipped at the self introductions. It wasn't true, of course, but that was the lilt of the evening.

And with due respect to the sentimentalists, male ego section, that is, perhaps the Grads should have been tuned in to some of the talk from this geritol set. They would have smiled benignly in their dynasty. And therein, as the story goes, hangs a tale.

During the last conflict between nations, much of B.C.'s hoop talent went on display elsewhere and, in particular, Edmonton was singularly honored. The Air Force there had a better-than-fair basketball team, including at one time, the late Busher Jackson of the Dominoes, Jim Bardsley, a big centre named Kamisky, all-coast from Washington; Jack Forrest of Port Alberni, Sid Watson, also a Domino, and a "discip" named Torchy Peden, "who used to feed us glucose," recalled Watson. There were others.

At any rate the fly-boys, needing a workout, decided to take on the Edmonton Grads in an exhibition.

Sure, it probably would be no contest because, after all, they were mere girls. But why not? They had the name!

Well, to make a long story short, the flyers shouldn't have bothered. The Grads won, and that's just another example of how the nostalgia dripped on . . . and will again next year.

Jenkins Winner; Miller Nears Ryder Cup Berth

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There was only one winner—longshot Tom Jenkins—but two other players got what they wanted out of the weather-plagued Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Johnny Miller all but secured his place on the American Ryder Cup team, regained his deft putting stroke and put his confidence at a high point going into this week's United States Open.

"Everything seems to be falling into place," Miller said after Monday's double-round windup. "I'm hitting the ball good. This does a lot for my confidence. And my putting is really coming around."

And even disappointed Bob Wynn, who blew a golden chance for his first official pro victory with an eight on the 71st hole, found a figurative ray of sunshine amid the rain that hit the 6,687-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course.

"I'm disappointed but I'm not disgusted," said the 35-year-old Wynn. "I got what I came for. I came in hoping to make a cheque big enough to put me in the top 60 (money winners for the year). I did that, so I can't complain."

Jenkins had a five-stroke lead when Monday's double with a two-under-par 69 in the round began. He retained it morning round, then held off Miller by one stroke with an afternoon 72. He finished with a 275 total, nine under par.

The key was a clutch, 15-foot, par-saving, downhill putt on the 71st hole.

It sent him to the last hole with a two-stroke lead and made his closing bogey meaningless.

Orr Bumps Harvey From Record Book

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Orr has been in the National Hockey League for nine years and the brilliant Boston Bruins defenceman has been voted an all-star in each season.

Orr, a second-team choice in his rookie year, was named Monday to the NHL's first team for a record eighth consecutive year, breaking a mark he shared with Doug Harvey of Montreal Canadiens. Harvey was a first-team choice for seven years in a row from 1951-52 through 1957-58.

Joining Orr on the first team were goaltender Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers, defenceman Denis Potvin of New York Islanders, centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia, right winger Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens and left winger Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres.

The voting, conducted among members of the Professional Hockey Writers Association in the 18 league cities, is for regular-season play only and is based on a point system of five for a first-place vote, three for a second and one for a third.

Orr, Parent and Martin were the only repeaters on the first team from last season. Parent's selection marked the first time since 1962-63 and 1963-64 that a netminder has been named to the first team in consecutive seasons. Glenn Hall of Chicago Black Hawks was the first goaltender in those seasons.

Only Orr and Lafleur, who was making his first appearance on the all-star list, managed to receive unanimous point totals of 270 for 54 first-place votes.

Potvin, Salming, Vachon, Robert and Vickers were also making their first appearance on the all-star squad. Potvin became only the seventh player to be selected as an all-star after winning the Calder Trophy as the league's best rookie a year earlier.

While post-1967 teams gained prominence on the two teams, there were some notable absences. Chicago Black Hawks did not have an all-star representative for the first time in 16 years while Detroit Red Wings missed having a player on a team for the third time in 31 years.

Goss on Target Against Adanacs

COQUITLAM — New Westminster Salmonbellies climbed into a first-place deadlock in the Western Lacrosse Association Monday with a 16-11 win over Coquitlam Adanacs before 375 fans.

Victory gave Salmonbellies 18 points and tied them with Vancouver Burrards for the league lead. Victoria Shamrocks, who meet the Burrards Wednesday at Memorial Arena, trail by four points in third place.

New Westminster scored five power-play goals and had four shorthanded tallies. Coquitlam scored three times on the power play but did not match the Salmonbellies' shorthanded output.

Wayne Goss, who had three shorthanded markers, collected five goals and added four assists to lead the Salmonbellies. That put him into second place in the scoring race with 71 points, seven behind leader Ron Pinder of Vancouver.

Paul Parnell added three goals and five assists for the Salmonbellies as he moved into fourth place in the individual scoring. Larry Henry also had three markers and Bill Mosdell chipped in with two. Gord Jung, Walt Weaver and Bill Robinson, with the 300th of his career, had singles.

ODD COUPLE BREAKS UP AND JABBAR GOES WEST

MILWAUKEE (AP — Together, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and the city of Milwaukee were the odd couple.

Their marriage, arranged through the vagaries of a coin flip and sustained by multi-million dollar contracts, has ended after six roller-coaster years. Many wonder how it endured that long.

Milwaukee Bucks reshaped the face of the National Basketball Association Monday when they traded one of the most dominant figures in the history of sport to Los Angeles Lakers.

They also terminated a relationship that ranged from 1971's giddy honeymoon—an NBA championship in the Bucks' third season of existence—to frustration as the team plunged to last place in its division this year.

Abdul-Jabbar asked the Bucks to trade him several times since they had won draft rights to him in a coin flip with Phoenix Suns in 1969. Separation from his wife more than a year ago and the team's misfortunes intensified his disenchantment, and he made his feelings public for the first time last March 14.

The Bucks accommodated him with a trade which brought them four players—centre Elmore Smith, reserve-guard Brian Winters and the Lakers' first two draft choices this year, Dave Meyers and Junior Bridgeman. Going with Jabbar to the Lakers is Walt Wesley, his backup at Milwaukee.

Jabbar signed a five-year contract with the Lakers which reportedly will bring him $250,000 a year. There was a report that the Lakers also gave the Bucks cash to complete the deal, but no guess was made about the amount.

Milwaukee fans worshipped Abdul-Jabbar the player, but few knew or understood the man, whose interests and tastes include his orthodox Moslem faith, black culture, heavy reading and jazz music.

None of those pursuits is particularly visible in Milwaukee, a city of about 15 per cent black population which is stereotyped for love of beer, bratwurst, basketball and polka bands.

He seldom tolerated even the briefest insights into his personality or private life. He once purchased a home in a tree-shaded suburb, but retreated to a lakefront apartment after a few days because the home attracted throngs of curious persons.

Baxter Makes Lone Try Count

Tom Baxter connected for a double in the eighth inning to drive in the winning run during his only time at bat Monday night as Seaboard Construction nipped Mike's Sports Shop 2-1 in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game at Central Park.

Baxter, who replaced Paul Morrison at first base in the seventh inning after Tom Robertson had batted for Morrison in the sixth, drove in Vern Benn with the winning tally. Benn had gained base on a single.

The other Seaboard run came in the sixth when Scott Sinclair, who had two hits in three trips to the plate, clouted a home run.

In the Victoria Senior Women's League, Donna Blackstock hurled a two-hitter to help CJVI Vicettes to a 6-0 shutout over Ingraham Hotel at Hyacinth Park.

Esquimalt Combos, led by the five-run production of Lindy Birthwhistle, tumbled Seaboard Construction 19-14.

Tonight's Foes Possess Power

Six of the top 10 scorers in the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League will be in action tonight when Victoria McDonalds and Burnaby Cablevision clash at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Victoria's Kevin Alexander tops the league with 80 points with clubmate Norm Baker tied with Coquitlam's Gary Holte for second with 59 points.

Another Baker among the leaders is team captain Bob Cool, who is in a four-way tie for fourth place with Ray Durante of Richmond and Burnaby's Kelly McLenaghen and Mike Holden. All have 54 points.

Dan Perreault is the other Burnaby player in the top 10. He has 45 points for eighth position.

The game is an important one for the second-place Bakers. They trail Burnaby by five points and a loss tonight would all but shatter their first-place hopes.

The two clubs have met three times this year with Burnaby winning twice and Victoria once. In their last encounter, the mainland club took a 12-10 decision.

Brentwood Crew Posts Rapid Time

BURNABY — Brentwood College and Victoria City Rowing Club had 13 victories Sunday in the B.C. open rowing championships on Burnaby Lake.

Brentwood captured nine events with its time of five minutes, 59 seconds for the 2,000-metre heavyweight eights marking only the second time a crew has broken the six-minute barrier on Burnaby Lake.

Two of the club's triumphs came in the singles with Mike Cullin taking the senior division and Patrick Walton the youth class.

Too Bad About Nelford But the Format's Fine

Jim Nelford's victory in the B.C. Amateur at Nanaimo has revived an old argument about the selection format for the provincial Willingdon Cup team.

The format is fine as it is, even though the new B.C. champion won't be included on this year's squad. Nelford has waived his chances by deciding to accompany the Brigham Young University team for a tour to Great Britain.

The tour happens to coincide with the B.C. Invitational the two trial rounds that are used, along with the four in the B.C. Amateur, to determine the B.C. team.

It is unfortunate. Only a few days short of his 20th birthday, Nelford would be an asset to this year's squad. He was medallist in the interprovincial matches last year. He won the B.C. title on a tough course that has gained the respect of the province's amateurs.

The Marine Drive youngster has proven he can play any course.

That's why the team selection format should remain unchanged.

The requirement is for good golfers who can play any course. Nelford qualifies, but there have been times when other provincial champions did not fall into the same category.

One-course golfers, playing their home track, have been known to win the B.C. title. Automatically elected to the B.C. team, the one-course champions generally fail to do much when they go off to the Willingdon Cup wars.

Nelford happens to be caught up in unusual circumstances . . . the choice of a trip to Britain or a crack at Willingdon Cup team selection.

It's a problem, but not one that should affect the present format.

SHORT CHIPS: He's going to ask how you found out, but Oak Bay's Mike Turyk managed to score another hole-in-one . . . His ace on the 14th is Turyk's 19th of his comparatively-brief golfing career . . . Also counting an ace recently was Victoria clubmate Ted Cabledeu, on the seventh . . . The Painters of Colwood, Vic and Onaugh, were easy winners of the city husband-and-wife tournament played at Colwood at the weekend . . . Wayne Farmer and Merlin Hawes teamed up for a net 56 to win the J. C. Matheson Trophy at Oak Bay . . . Hawes, a 19-handicapper, set the tempo for the runaway win with an individual gross of 79 . . .

Ben Parsons, a former captain of B.C.'s Willingdon Cup and junior teams, is relocated in Port Alberni . . . Counting the doctors, the golf traffic in and out of hospital is enough to make up two foursomes . . . In, and coming along nicely, is former Uplands president Gord Pellow, after suffering a heart attack . . . Out now are former District Committee executives Harry Young and Ab Robertson . . . Harry suffered a nasty fall while holidaying up-Island . . . Ab underwent minor stomach surgery . . . Touring pro John Morgan, who plays out of Uplands, may have to cut down on his wandering . . . He's scheduled to get married next week . . .

Dorothy Squeaks In

Mrs. DeGirolamo, who tied at 85 with Diane Phillips, won the laurels on a countback.

Three other qualifiers for the championship round also missed a chance because of one bad hole. Ruby Niemeyer, who fired an 87, had a seven on the par-three eighth hole; Shirley Naysmith, another former winner who carded an 86, had a six on the par-three 15th; and Gert Pumfrey, who finished with an 88, had a nine on the par-five 16th hole.

Other players gaining a berth in the championship round were Maureen Hibberson, Peggy Matthews, Doreen Brunsdon, Juanita Turner, Flo Macintyre, Eileen Anderson, Mildred Green, Dianne Desnoyer, Helene Dye, Jean Smith, and Bea Breffitt.

Mrs. Anderson was runner-up last year to Dale Shaw, who has won the event for the past five years and didn't enter this time around because she was playing in Europe.

Edna Hay was another victim of a countback. She finished in a three-way tie at 94, but there was only room for two in the championship.

Match play began this morning and continues through the week with quarter-finals scheduled for Wednesday, semi-finals Thursday and the final Friday.

Loser Blasts Records

Ray MacDougall of the Victoria team set a pair of event records Sunday, but lost to Nanaimo's Charlie Veasey in a duel for the top individual award in a centrefire rifle competition sponsored by the Vancouver Island Shooting Leage.

Firing at the new Malahat facilities of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association in the three-position match, MacDougall, competing in the metallic-sight division, finished in a deadlock with Veasey, each with a score of 298 with nine bull's-eyes.

Under the countback system, under which the scores shot in the standing position are used to break a tie, the Nanaimo sniper, who was shooting in the any-sight section, came out the winner of the King-of-the-Match Award.

MacDougall, who also took the master event in the open-sight division of the prone-position match, and Charles Jackson, in the junior event, were the only winners from the Victoria club in the meet that attracted 91 contestants from seven clubs.

Results:

PRONE MATCH: Metallic Sight — Master, Ray MacDougall (Victoria) 298-11X; Expert, Alex Prodan (Alberni) 294-9X; Sharpshooter, Bob Kerr (Qualicum) 294-10X; Marksman, Fred Fitzgerald (Nanaimo) 291-8X; Lady, Claire Brown (Campbell River) 293-11X; Any Sight — Master, Fritz Salevsky (Nanaimo) 296-14X; Expert, Tom Dawes (Alberni) 297-13X; Sharpshooter, Harley Horrocks (Campbell River) 297-13X; Marksman, Barry Pilkington (Campbell River) 295-12X; Junior, Charles Jackson (Victoria) 289-5X. Winning Team, Campbell River, 1,174-36X.

PREPARATION for participation in annual Y-Times track and field meet next weekend at Centennial Stadium includes practice from starting blocks for Victoria athlete Brian Hawksworth, provincial champion in 400-metre hurdles for past two years. Hawksworth will compete in open division of meet, which is again expected to attract more than 1,000 younger contestants in age-class events. Competition is scheduled Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8:15 p.m. Saturday and 9:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. (Times photo by Irving Strickland)

The Twins Turn Rollie Into a Charlie Brown

By The Associated Press

No matter the weather in Bloomington, Minn., it always seems to be raining on Rollie Fingers at Metropolitan Stadium. When Oakland A's visit the Twins, the all-star reliever almost always pitches like Charlie Brown does in the Peanuts comic strip.

"I must be about 1-9 here at best in the last six years," said Fingers after losing, 7-6.

"I have more trouble in this place than any place else. I think things will begin to even up and start going my way, but something always happens."

True to form, something happened Monday night. Fingers worked the count to a ball and two strikes to Steve Braun in the ninth with Oakland leading 6-4. Braun fouled off the next pitch by a splinter on his bat.

"When he let it go, I heard (A's catcher Gene) Tenace say, 'Oh, no!'" recalled Braun. His sixth home run of the season brought the Twins within 6-5 before Larry Hisle's tie-breaking single gave Minnesota the victory.

In other American League baseball action Monday, Baltimore Orioles beat Cleveland Indians 8-3, Boston Red Sox defeated Detroit Tigers 6-2 in 12 innings and New York Yankees beat Milwaukee Brewers 10-7. California and Kansas City were rained out in the only other game scheduled.

Reggie Jackson and Tenace had hit successive home runs in the eighth inning to put Oakland on top 6-4 after Phil Garner's homer had tied it for the A's in the seventh.

Hisle and Dan Ford also homered for the Twins.

Brooks Robinson and Lee May hit three-run home runs and Jim Palmer became the American League's first 11-game winner in Baltimore's victory over Cleveland. Palmer, who has lost three, got relief help from Grant Jackson in the seventh inning.

Robinson homered in the fourth and May in the fifth, while George Hendrick hit one out for the Indians.

Rick Burleson, who was picked off third in the ninth inning, redeemed himself with a sacrifice fly that broke a 2-2 tie and started the four-run 12th that lifted Boston over Detroit.

In the National League, home runs by Willie Stargell, Rennie Stennett and Al Oliver highlighted Pittsburgh Pirates' 15-hit attack in a 10-2 win over St. Louis Cardinals that gave the Bucs a two-game lead over idle New York Mets in the East Division; Andy Thornton, Manny Trillow, Jerry Morales and Tim Hosley slugged homers to propel Chicago Cubs to a 9-7 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies; San Diego Padres counted six runs in the sixth inning to hand San Francisco Giants their sixth loss in a row, 7-1; Joe Morgan rapped a single, double and homer to help Cincinnati Reds to a 9-2 victory over Atlanta Braves that kept the Reds 3½ games ahead of Los Angeles Dodgers in the NL West, and the Dodgers got homers from Willie Crawford and Steve Garvey in a 4-2 win over Houston Astros in which pitcher Don Sutton became the league's first 11-game winner.

Gorge Plays Colwood

After suspending play for one week because of the B.C. Amateur championship, the Inter-Club Golf Club resumes action Wednesday.

Leading Gorge Vale will play at last-place Colwood, second-place Cedar Hill will be at home to Victoria and Uplands visits Glen Meadows.

With league play scheduled to wind up next week, Gorge Vale leads Cedar Hill by three points.

Victoria at Cedar Hill

Uplands at Glen Meadows

Bob Hunt and Eric Hibberson vs Rick Kent and Keith Swetnam; Don Billsborough and Ken Nott vs Marty Richards and Brian Sluggett; Mike Gray and Tad McDiarmid vs Hal Jacobsen and Don Gowan.

Gorge Vale at Colwood

Cec Ferguson and Bob Beauchemin vs Steve Hambleton and Marty Holman; Earl Davies and Mike Kolb vs Bruce Pelmore and Laurie Kerr; Laurie Carroll and Grant Milliken vs Ron Howard and Vic Painter.

Optimists Win

One-Shot Win

Eileen Mann, Shirley Sutherland and Joyce Caddell were deadlocked for second place, each with 131.

Pair Leads Farmers

Al Moir and Wayne Krimmer drove in eight runs together Monday as they helped Farmer Construction of the Senior Amateur Baseball League to a 9-3 triumph over Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars at Lambrick Park.

Moir knocked in six runs with a two-run double in the four-run first inning and a grand-slam home run in the fifth.

Krimmer hit a two-run homer in the first.

—Before the Judge—

Wayne Nelson Griese, 29, Russell William Griese, 28, and Patricia Lee Frankham, 23, all of 3598 Shelbourne, and Bill Fuller, 34, and Rhona Christine Fuller, 28, both of 3380 Rolston Cresent, were arrested following a raid at the Shelbourne Street home late Saturday night.

Both Grieses and Frankham were released on their own recognizance in the sum of $3,000 and ordered to report weekly to the probation office. The Fullers were released on their own undertaking to appear. All were remanded to next Monday for election and plea.

The Fullers were further charged with two other offences.

Bill Fuller was charged with possession of marijuana and hashish following a raid at his Rolston Crescent residence late Saturday. On this charge, he was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $500.

Rhona Fuller was charged with another possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking after a drug squad raid on her car Saturday night. She was released on her own recognizance in the sum of $2,000.

A pre-sentence report was ordered for an 18-year-old youth who, on the day of trial, had a change of mind and pleaded guilty to breach of recognizance, six charges of food and lodgings by fraud and 13 charges of false pretences by writing worthless cheques.

Joseph Dean Maday, of no fixed address, received over $1,000 in goods and services. The largest cheque written was to the Bayshore Inn in Vancouver in the sum of $399.03.

Nine Victoria businesses were also recipiants of Maday's cheques. They were cashed between March and May of this year.

Maday remains in custody until sentencing June 30. He was refused bail by Judge Fred Green May 26 as Maday was on probation from a 1974 conviction in Lytton and was out on bail, awaiting trial on the lodgings by fraud offences when he was again arrested for the false pretences offences.

A 17-year-old Ottawa youth received a suspended sentence for car theft because Campbell found he was not the leader but a follower in the theft which also involved two juveniles.

Kenneth Stephen Berry had pleaded guilty June 3 to stealing a car May 31 belonging to Evelyn Brigamore.

In addition to the suspended sentence, he was placed on one-year probation and ordered to perform 10 hours community service work.

Seabrook, of 2739 Quadra, pleaded guilty to stealing two packages of tobacco from Safeway, 2635 Quadra, March 23.

Lang said he could see nothing in the case which would warrant a conditional discharge as a suspended sentence would not drastically damage the career of a woman on pension, nor would it be of great consequence to her future.

"Shoplifting is a disease plaguing society, and I see nothing to distinguish this case from dozens of others," Lang said.

"She has contributed to society for years and now has made one mistake . . . will society benefit by a sentence?" asked Campbell.

Lang answered the judge by saying a conditional discharge is not a deterrent and therefore would not be of benefit to the community, to which Campbell said, "She is 65, unwell, remorseful and has no previous allegation of any impropriety, . . . I think her present status in the eyes of her peers must also be considered."

In traffic court, Judge Jorre de St. Jorre sentenced 53-year-old Fred Taylor to 14 days in jail after he pleaded guilty to improper care and control in a motor vehicle.

Taylor, of 310 Robert, had pleaded not guilty Nov. 6, 1974 to the charge, but changed his plea Monday.

He was found by police asleep in the driver's seat of his car while the motor was running October 29.

Taylor was also placed on six months probation and prohibited to drive for six months.

James Alan Ratchford, 18, of no fixed address, was not sentenced to one year in prison for three break-ins May 13 at businesses in Saanich as was stated in the Times June 13. It was his co-accused Ronald William Mench, 17, of no fixed address, who received the sentence. Ratchford pleaded not guilty to the charges May 16 and is awaiting trial July 28.

Biker Falls Into Gorge

A 10-year-old Sidney youth is in satisfactory condition in Victoria General Hospital Monday after accidentally riding his bicycle over an embankment and four-foot retaining wall into the waters of the Gorge Saturday.

Kevin Winia, 2080 Piercy, was in Victoria visiting a friend when the accident occurred. He and his bicycle fell on rocks at low tide near Gorge Bridge and he was swept a short distance by the current.

His cries were heard by a man in the Gorge Hotel pub but the youth had managed to pull himself out of the river by the time help arrived.

He suffered severe head cuts, abrasions and several broken teeth, and a hospital spokesman said he was under observation for possible head injuries.

'Official' Hookers Unionize

PARIS (AP) — A group of French prostitutes called a news conference in a Paris cinema Monday to announce the formation of a national federation of the estimated 20,000 "official" prostitutes of France to help them fight police persecution.

"We have nothing to do with the unofficial prostitutes, amateurs and part-time streetwalkers," said a woman from Lyons who identified herself as Barbara. "They are competing with us without taking any of the risks."

Man Who Missed Two Trials Ordered Held in Custody

Larry Alan Preston will remain in jail but his new laywer can make a bail application between now and his jury trial in the fall, county court Judge E. J. C. Stewart decided Monday.

Preston, 731 Thomasset and also of Surrey, missed his jury trial May 7-8 and June 4-5. He was on bail and both times was in hospital after falling.

He is accused of two counts of breaking, entry and theft from the King John Inn at Colwood last November. The next jury trials do not begin until October.

After he missed his second trial date, he was ordered arrested and brought before court.

In his third court appearance since then, court was told he has changed lawyers, with Bruce McConnan replacing Peter Klassen.

McConnan said it was an "unfortunate coincidence" that Preston missed both trials and that on the second time the accused was enroute to Victoria when he fell on a ferry.

Judge E. J. C Stewart said there was "every indication" it was a "deliberate attempt" to avoid a court appearance on both occasions and he renewed his request for medical evidence.

He also said he didn't think Preston will appear in court "unless he's under some kind of condition he cannot avoid."

ROCKY REMAINS FORD'S TOP CHOICE

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Ford Monday endorsed Nelson Rockefeller as his running mate in 1976, but he left open the possibility that the Republican party might want to reach a different decision.

"The president will be for Nelson Rockefeller for the nomination," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

"The delegates will make the decision."

Nessen also read a formal statement from the president declaring his "great admiration" for Rockefeller and adding these words: "Both of us in these coming months will be submitting ourselves to the will of the delegates at the Republican national convention. I am confident both of us can convince the delegates that individually and as a team we should both be nominated."

However, some presidential intimates gave indications that the stated decision to keep Rockefeller was less than iron-clad. They said that Ford had carefully kept his options open on a decision he will not have to make for some time.

One White House official said that Rockefeller's retention on the ticket largely will depend upon whether the vice-president can defuse opposition to him within his own party.

Rockefeller, a target of mistrust among GOP conservatives ever since he opposed Sen. Barry Goldwater (Ariz.) for the party's presidential nomination in 1964, has had difficulties with the right wing of his party since his nomination.

Lately, however, he also had been the subject of in-house criticism among White House aides for his handling of the controversial report on the Central Intelligence Agency.

There are also some objections to Rockefeller, based on his age. The vice-president will be 63 next year, and some GOP strategists think that the ticket would be stronger with a younger man as the nominee.

Church Hit By Vandals

NANAIMO — Damage of about $5,000 has been reported at Mount St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church here after vandals broke in late Sunday or early Monday.

A door was pried open and a window panel removed by the thieves who stole cigarettes and chocolate bars from the basement hall and damaged several large doors and frames, said police.

2-Year Sentence

A 23-year-old Victoria man was sentenced Monday to two years less a day in jail by Judge E. J. C. Stewart in county court.

William Michael McGragh, 1076 Marigold, pleaded guilty May 8 to robbery with violence against Hugh Richard McPherson involving the theft of a wallet containing $285 in Esquimalt Dec. 3.

Defence lawyer Peter Freeman told court McGragh has had a great deal of instability in his life but he has made a change for the better. He had a job, was looking after his family, has curbed his drinking and will make restitution to McPherson.

Judge Stewart said he is bound by court of appeal decisions and "this was a particularly reprehensible sort of event. The victim thought he was among friends and then there was this violent assault and robbery on his person."

Drinking, he said, is "most certainly not an excuse."

Pen Hostage Was to Quit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mary Steinhauser, 32, had decided three days before her death to quit her job as a classification officer at the B.C. Penitentiary, a friend said Sunday.

Nat Hickerson, a Los Angeles schoolteacher, said she told him of her decision as she saw him off at the airport here a week ago Sunday.

She also joked with him about the possibility of being taken hostage by a prisoner called Andy Bruce, Hickerson said in a telephone interview.

He said the problem of what to do with Bruce, who had been added to her case load two weeks earlier, was heavy on her mind. Bruce had been spending three or four hours a day in her office and had even asked her how she would feel if he took her hostage.

Less than three days later she was killed by a bullet when armed prison guards burst into the classification area where three knife wielding prisoners — including Bruce—had been holding Miss Steinhauser and 14 other hostages for 41 hours, demanding safe passage to a foreign country.

Hickerson said he is concerned that the prison establishment which Miss Steinhauser battled during her 1½ years as a classification officer may use her death to promote a more brutal prison system and a return to capital punishment.

"One of the last things she said to me on Sunday was that our talking that weekend had made the whole thing clear," he said. "She was going to quit her job and re-enrol at Simon Fraser University (where she got her undergraduate degree)."

GUN FAILS FROM AGE

Police reported that the two suffered head wounds but were in good condition in hospital. Police said the man shot his wife in th head with an old .22-calibre pistol — unused for 50 years — but the bullet richocheted off a hair curler and the woman suffered a scalp laceration.

Then he put the gun to his right ear and fired, but the shot was so weak the bullet merely lodged in his right ear, police said.

Price Fix By Brewers?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four breweries and three other companies were accused Monday in a civil suit that opened in B.C. Supreme Court of conspiring to fix the price of used beer bottles.

Jack Giles, lawyer for 15 companies dealing in used beer bottles, said the action was for damages and a permanent injunction against the seven companies charged.

Arena Vote Proposal

A proposal to hold another referendum on the Sooke arena will likely be presented to the Capital Regional District board at its June 25 meeting, executive director Denis Young said Monday.

Three tenders for the arena project opened earlier this month were all $375,000 or more over the $850,000 for the project approved by referendum two years ago and approved by the regional board.

Young said talks are now going on with the low bidder, H. E. Fowler and Sons ($1,224,856) to determine just what figure should be included in a new referendum.

The arena, to be built on a seven-acre site beside Phillips Road, is to include a standard ice surfacer, seating for 400, a concession booth, offices and change rooms.

TOWN TALK

Mayor Peter Pollen, we suspect, isn't going to be too pleased when he returns from a European holiday late this week to read the report that the city's morality squad produced in his absence.

The special sub-committee, consisting of Aldermen Malcolm Anderson, Bob Ellis and Bill Tindall, was set up by Pollen about six weeks ago to study the whole question of possible controls on nude entertainment in licensed premises, and on Sunday store opening.

The aldermen finally submitted their report last week — it was to be discussed in detail at today's caucus meeting — and the two-page document is as skimpy as a topless dancer's g-string.

While recommending no action to curb either beer parlor stripping or Sunday trading, it states not a single reason for arriving at this conclusion.

Sounds like excuse enough for Pollen to trot out that immortal phrase, which he always uses to preface his most scathing comments: "With the greatest respect . . ."

O'GRADY

Former city solicitor Terence Pitt O'Grady is back where he started on the local municipal scene.

Before joining the city of Victoria legal department, Terry served Esquimalt back in the 1950s.

When the Insurance Corp. of B.C. was being set up, Terry resigned as city solicitor to become corporation counsel in Vancouver, a post that led to a difference of opinion, termination of his services and subsequently a breach of contract suit against ICBC.

Recently, Terry returned to the city in private legal practice and he has been retained to serve as part-time solicitor for Esquimalt.

The job starts officially July 1, but Terry got his feet wet by attending council meetings Monday night. Welcome back, T.P.

In an age when it seems easier to brew trouble than goodwill, Mrs. Winifred Harding believes "the old and the young have got to learn to live together."

She did her part last week in arranging a band concert for patients at Memorial Pavilion, formerly Veterans' Hospital, where she does volunteer work, although she is older than many of the patients, cheerfully admitting to having more than "three score years and ten."

About 75 men, many in wheelchairs, were taken into the front garden where the Lansdowne Junior Secondary band played for a half-hour that was too short for most of the ex-military audience. Afterward, the youngsters drank pop donated by Goodwill Bottling after Mrs. Harding tried to buy a couple of cases.

"There's so many bad things happening . . . I think this band should have a good deal of praise," she said.

And to prove her faith was not misplaced, two of the youngsters went to her later and thanked her for the pop.

A Vancouver resident, Helen Whiteside, sends along a letter of sympathy, following a story in the June 4 Times wherein it was explained that it rains a lot in British Columbia in June.

Her letter included a newspaper photograph of sunbathers at Vancouver's Kitsilano Beach plus a card with a suggested symbol for a possible June festival in Victoria.

Despite the ribbing, the weather office says that Vancouver has been as damp as Victoria this June.

"Canada is a colorful and picturesque country whose complexion changes with every season, which is never the same, yet never so different; a land we love and whose name we are proud to bear as a Canadian."

About 55 visiting Japanese Rotarians met in The Empress Thursday, a stop-off on their way home from the world conference in Montreal.

In a neighboring Empress room, about 100 local Rotarians were holding their meeting, but the two groups didn't get together — language problems prevented a joint meeting.

But one of the visiting club members got a royal tour of Victoria, all because he speaks Esperanto, the international language.

Wally du Temple of 930 Ardmore, local Esperanto advocate, said the visiting Rotarian had received similar tours in Montreal, Calgary and Vancouver, special guest of other Esperanto buffs in those cities.

All the other Japanese Rotarians, du Temple said, were all right in Montreal at the conference where they had headphones to provide simultaneous translation of the proceedings, but outside the conference rooms communication was difficult.

Du Temple suggests that both groups, visiting and local, should have a look at Esperanto.

And speaking of the Town and Country shopping centre, a young man and woman climbed into their car over there recently.

Before turning the motor on, the man tossed the cellophane wrapping from his cigarette package out the window. Then the woman tossed an empty coffee cup out the window on her side. Then the man emptied the ashtray out his side.

Then they drove off.

You could tell by their licence plate they were from out of town. It read: Ontario—Keep it beautiful.

A power failure at Town and Country Shopping Centre Monday which forced Woolco and Shoppers Drug Mart to close was an expensive experience . . . not only for the stores and B.C. Hydro who had to pay overtime to crews . . . but to one young would-be lady shopper.

A taxi drove to the front of Woolco, the young woman paid her bill and headed for the door. She seemed to be bewildered by the locked door, read the sign made a few comments and jumped right back into the cab. The driver read the sign before her and realized he had a repeat customer.

B.C. Hydro said this morning that burned connectors were responsible for the outage at the centre and an adjoining street.

Power was off between 4:30 and 7 p.m.

Board Bows To Dailly

Greater Victoria school board heeded Education Minister Eileen Dailly's wishes Monday and agreed to spend $65,000 to provide access for the physically handicapped to Spectrum community school.

Dailly told the legislature May 1 that she wanted to see ramps and other facilities for the handicapped in the school, which is now under construction.

The board decision means an elevator will be installed to give access to upper floors of the school to people who cannot use stairs.

Trustee Phil Perry, who made the motion approving expenditure of the $65,000, expressed mixed emotions.

"We're giving special privileges to a very, very small group," Perry said.

He said there are only 12 known paraplegic high school students in the district, and the board has already planned to provide facilities for the physically handicapped at the new Lambrick junior-senior secondary and at Frank Hobbs elementary.

Perry said he couldn't help feeling the money could be well spent on some school facility that would meet the needs of 400 or 500 students, not five or six.

However, if the board refused to provide the elevator now, it might be forced by the education department to build in handicapped facilities at a later stage, he said, and that would cost a lot more.

After the board meeting, Perry said he thought Dailly had reacted to a small pressure group in demanding handicapped facilities at Spectrum.

Construction and maintenance department head Sig Dietze told trustees that even with an elevator, the fire marshal would limit the number of wheelchairs on upper floors to only a few.

"By putting this in (the elevator) we have at least some accommodation for these people, but not a very large number," he said.

DRIVER KILLED

A 25-year-old Colwood man died early this morning one hour after his car ran into a ditch at Goldstream and Hartsdale Drive and rolled over.

Dwayne Ramsey, of 596 A Langholme, was pronounced dead at Victoria General Hospital at 2:41 a.m.

RCMP in Colwood said Ramsey, who was alone at the time, was thrown out of the vehicle and apparently struck by the car as it rolled over.

Okay, So What's Nutritional?

Vending machines in Greater Victoria high schools will carry nothing but nutritional foods and beverages as of Sept. 1.

Decision to eliminate "junk" foods from schools was taken at Monday's school board meeting.

Only query came from Trustee Susan Brice, who asked just what will be considered nutritional.

Will cheese and crackers pass the test, she asked, or must it only be dried nuts and dates?

Goldstream Guns Found On Mainland

Vancouver City Police have recovered 12 of 36 valuable handguns stolen June 7 from McCallums Guns and Tackle, 784 Goldstream.

Owner Bill McCallum said today he was offering $1,000 for the return of all guns and arrest and conviction of the person or persons who stole them.

Mother Jailed for 3 Years On Drug Trafficking Count

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A 22-year-old mother of twin two-year-old children, three months pregnant with her third child, was sentenced Monday in county court to three years in penitentiary for possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

Also sentenced to three years in penitentiary was her co-accused, Robert Harold English, 27.

English and Gardiner were married May 9 and lived at 774 Sayward.

They were arrested Dec. 4 after police broke into a room at the Islander Motel, 35 Gorge, and found English, Gardiner, her two children asleep in bed, and various items indicating a heroin "capping" operation was in process.

The defence argued that while Gardiner planned to cap heroin she bought for $500 to assist in withdrawing from methadone, English knew nothing about it until just before the police broke in.

Immediately after Judge Stewart passed sentence, the accused kissed each other, said goodbye to friends and relatives, and were escorted holding each other's hand by sheriff's deputies.

The twins, who will be three in August, are being cared for by Gardiner's sister in Ontario.

Judge Stewart said if he could put off the moment of sentence "I would gladly do so."

Although both had misled the court, "or attempted to do so," he had formed a "not unfavorable" view of them.

"I wish there was a solution other than incarceration in our prison system but there isn't."

"It is almost heartbreaking when I think of the children involved but regrettably neither of you has considered the children in the past.

"It is simply a question of how long. I sentence each of you to three years," the judge said.

On the possession aspect of the charge, Judge Stewart said "in every single instance" the explanations of the accused were difficult to believe and "taken together, impossible to believe." He called it a "contrived defence."

He said the same comments apply "to a very substantial extent, and particularly on the matter of credibility" on the trafficking aspect.

There was, he said, a "powerful motive to give false testimony and I conclude that each succumbed to that temptation."

There was no reasonable interpretation of the evidence except that English and Gardiner had possession of the heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

Prosecutor Mike Hutchison said the heroin found in the motel room, diluted on a 10-to-1 basis, would amount to 407 caps. With the price of heroin then being $40 to $45 a cap there was "an immense profit available" for an investment of $500.

Defence lawyers Don Laughton, for Gardiner, and Doug Christie, for English, stressed that the amount of pure heroin found was 1-700th of an ounce.

Christie said the heroin was a very low quality and for the crown to say it was worth $16,000 "is the most incredible aspect of this case."

Court was told both English and Gardiner have criminal records and both were on probation when arrested.

Hutchison said he has "the utmost sympathy" for English and Gardiner "but regret and sympathy cannot stand in the way of protection of the community" and deterrence of others.

Over Half a Century At Front of the Class

He was Vic High's longest serving teacher, having taught at the school from 1914 to 1955, with more than 20 years as school principal.

Smith was to be honorary president of the Vic High centennial celebration planned for the school's 100th birthday in 1976.

Born July 12, 1889 in Charlotetown, P.E.I., Smith began teaching in Prince Edward Island in 1907.

In 1909 he entered McGill University, graduating in 1912 with first rank honors in English and winning the Shakespearian medal.

He returned to McGill in 1926 to get his M.A.

He began teaching at Vic High, where he was to stay for 41 years. There he met and married his wife Alice, a fellow teacher, in 1919.

Smith became vice-principal in 1926, principal in 1934.

When he retired from Vic High in 1955, at the age of 65, close to 1,100 former students and colleagues gathered at the school to honor him.

His retirement didn't last long. For the next 10 years, until 1965, he taught at University School.

Smith was active in athletics at McGill, and in Victoria played several years with the Victoria Rep Rugby Club and with the Victoria Senators hockey team.

He is survived by his wife Alice; sons H. Paul and Dr. Peter Smith, both on the faculty of the University of Victoria; and by daughters Mrs. Gordon (Brenda) MacDonald of Ottawa, Mrs. Benjamin (Barbara) Peterson of Victoria, and Mrs. Donald (Winsome) Oliver of Victoria.

DOCKYARD: 185 TODAY

Refit operations at the naval dockyards in Esquimalt and Halifax have been halted since the rotating strikes began June 5.

The Dockyard Trades and Labor Council has been negotiating for a new contract with the federal treasury board since March.

A mediator has been appointed in the dispute and talks are expected to start soon.

The 185 workers off the job today are from nine shops pipefitting, tool and dye making, lagging, sheet metal, painting, electrical systems and batteries, sonar, crypto and electrical plating.

Sporting and Profitable —That's Fish Farming

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

Fish farming combines the best aspects of sound land use and economic opportunities with production of a delicious foodstuff. It also affords fine recreational and sporting experiences for cityfolk. It is a relatively new enterprise in the United States, with the most rapid development occuring since the Second World War.

Two major factors are helping to expand fish farming. The first is that the quality of fish grown can be higher than that of fish which may be suffering from the effects of water pollution. Secondly, the cash returns from fish farming can be far greater with less work than for many other types of conventional farming.

Fish farming can be handled by a very small amount of labor. In fact, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) reports that with the exception of temporary help needed at harvest time, one man can operate a 20-acre fish farm. (Twenty acres is considered by the USDA as the minimal size needed for a truly profitable operation). With an entire family assisting, the work of tending a fish farm would be very light.

The USDA estimates that a typical 20-acre enterprise would cost approximately $20,000. This amount would cover the land, the preparation of the pools and all necessary buildings and equipment, including a well, pump and motor, where natural water supplies were not available.

Annual costs of the following items were calculated to average about $6,000 for a 20-acre operation: amortization of equipment, feed, purchased labor, fuel, fingerling fish and other miscellaneous items.

While these sums are a substantial outgo, let's take a look at the profit factor. A normal yield from a 20-acre fish farm would be about 30,000 pounds of fish. At a conservative wholesale price of 50 cents per pound, the annual gross income would be $15,000 or two and a half times the total cost of operation.

It is obvious that a fish farm of this type would soon be able to pay off the initial investment.

One of the easiest fish to grow is catfish. They are well suited to first-time fish farmink since they are less sensitive to temperature changes as are, for example, trout. Furthermore, they grow rapidly and make a good sport fish. As with any farm operation, it is best to start small and increase the size as you gain experience.

Your first consideration is water, which must be considered both as to quantity and quality. Determine if your well, spring or other water supply is sufficient to fill the pond and keep it filled despite leakage and evaporation losses. Water quality must be high.

The best way to check this is to have a test.

The temperature of your pond water is important. If measures 70 degrees F. or more, your catfish will grow rapidly. Below this temperature growth is slow. Thus, it is obvious that most of the growth of your fish crop will occur in the warm months of the year. Low temperatures won't harm catfish but they simply won't grow as fast.

If your farmstead has no natural declevity, then you can use a bulldozer, skip loader or other piece of earth-moving equipment to scoop out your pond. The pond need not be deep . . . two or three feet deep at the shallow end with a slope to five or six feet at the outlet end would be adequate. Where winters are severe, a depth of eight feet will prevent loss of fish due to cold weather. Another way to create a catfish pond is to dam a small stream or creek.

The best time to stock your pond is in early spring. Then you'll be sure that your catfish will grow to eating size by autumn. The number to stock per acre depends on the size desired at the end of the growing season. Feeds are sold as finely ground mash and as floating or sinking pellets. Feed only enough to satisfy, i.e., feed your catfish the amount that they clean up in about 30 minutes.

As with any new venture, the greatest expense will come the first year. However, the USDA calculates maintenance cost for your pond at about $20 per acre per year. If you have your own water supply from a well, then you can figure on pumping costs of about $10 to 15 per acre foot of water. Feed will cost between $100 and $150 per ton, and about 3,000 pounds of feed is needed to produce 1,500 pounds of fish. Analyze all costs before you start—taxes, labor, pond construction and maintenance, water supply development including pumping and quality control, harvesting and marketing. If all of these elements appear favorable, then go!

ORGAN REJECTION REMAINS PUZZLE

HOUSTON (UPI) — Since the first heart transplant, the world has looked to the surgical process for a glimpse of immortality, giving hope to the dying and making international celebrities out of a handful of surgeons.

It has been almost eight years since Dr. Christian Barnard astounded the world on Dec. 3, 1967 by cutting out the failing heart of a living man and replacing it with the beating heart of a woman pronounced neurologically dead.

But today heart disease still claims half a million lives annually. Researchers pursue the seemingly endless task of learning why the body process destroys itself and rejects the gift of life from another of its own kind.

Some physicians debate the merits of heart transplants others continue to perform the operation and have even expanded the process to include the double-heart operation.

Rejection is the body's defence mechanism against foreign substances. Unable to identify intruding friend from foe, it attacks both. The problem is common to any tissue transplant — heart, kidney, liver, lung, even skin grafts.

In Cape Town, Dr. Barnard and Dr. Jacques Losman, 33, of the Groote Schuur hospital, pioneered the "piggy-back" or double-heart transplant in December, 1974.

This is a procedure in which a new heart is implanted in the patient's chest to work alongside his own ailing heart, acting as a booster. It is placed slightly over and behind the old heart.

Barnard describes it as a piggy-back process because the new heart contributes between 40 to 50 per cent of total cardiac output within 12 hours. The hearts are joined atrium and aorta to aorta. Holes about the size of 50 cent coins are cut and the two hearts sutured at these points. The two hearts fit comfortably in the chest cavity, Barnard says.

The advantage of the twin-heart operation, Barnard says, is that if rejection cannot be controlled by immunosuppressive drugs, the new heart can be removed and replaced with less harmful results than with a complete transplant, because the old organ can keep the patient alive.

Dr. Michael E. DeBakey and Dr. Denton A. Cooley are two physicians linked to the surgical mystique surrounding the heart transplant era.

Working at adjacent hospitals in the ultra modern Texas Medical Centre six miles from downtown Houston, the two are poles apart personally and professionally, but both, for the present, have abandoned the dramatic procedure that captured the world's imagination.

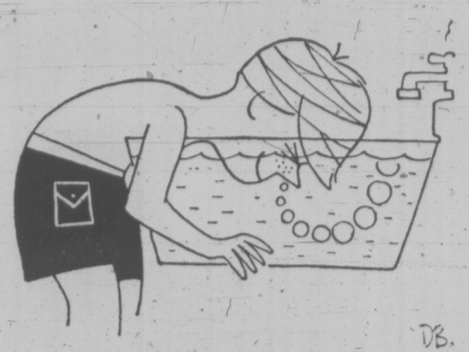
"I think the general interest as far as heart transplants is concerned has diminished greatly because of the experience that we had," DeBakey of Baylor College of Medicine said recently. "As a method it has a very limited application."

DeBakey stopped after 12 transplants saying the results were not sufficiently good to justify the effort.

Cooley at St. Luke's Hospital Texas Heart Institute also professed discouragement. But he believes experimenting with heart transplantation is necessary to further medical knowledge.

"There was some discouragement with the results that were obtained," says Cooley. "I think the pendulum, however, has swung too far toward the negative side of the coin. The heart transplant program produced some very interesting results."

A CHILD LEARNS TO SWIM



This is the third of 10 lessons in which a young child learns to swim. We started with a legend of how Freddie Frog learned to swim. With you telling and showing how Freddie's mother taught him, your youngster will be anxious to learn.

In the second lesson you showed him he has nothing to fear when he takes a big breath, holds his nose and puts his face in the water.

Now's the time to demonstrate he can safely put his face under water without holding the nose. First take an exaggerated breath, then put your face into a basin of water without holding your nose. Next, breathe out gently through your nose so the child can see the bubbles. This will amuse him and he'll understand when you explain that so long as you're breathing out, water can't get into it.

You'll have to be patient, perhaps demonstrate several times because it's instinctive in humans to not submerge our breathing apparatus in water. Freddie Frog to the rescue if your child doesn't seem to overcome the fear of water in his nostrils. You might remind your child he's never seen Freddie hold his nose when swimming under water.

When the child has got so he can submerge the face in water and breathe out gently for five seconds, he'll have to overcome your biggest obstacle in all the lessons. Too, you'll have laid the groundwork for learning the six beat crawl, the fastest way to swim.

Counsellors Found Ill-Equipped

VANCOUVER (CP)—School guidance counsellors often are ill-equipped to advise teenaged women because of their own attitudes toward acceptable jobs and lifestyles for women, a government adviser on sex discrimination says.

Reva Dexter, a counsellor and adviser to the British Columbia Education Department, told a workshop of the Canadian Guidance and Counselling Association that counsellors should be agents of social change.

"If your female students come in to you and say they want to be nurses or housewives, it's not realistic to just accept that at value," she said.

Psychological studies have shown that teen-aged women are subject to enormous pressures to conform to traditional sex roles and it is the counsellor's job to help them look at how society is changing and how they can combine various roles, Dexter said.

School counsellors should be aware of major social trends in guiding young people, she added.

"First, that there is going to be an end to sex discrimination in jobs — it may take a long time, but it will come. You only have to look at the progress that has been made in the last 10 years in terms of opening up posiitons in medical schools and the professions to women.

"If a counsellor is not aware of this trend, he or she probaly is not letting young women know what is rally available to them in terms of a career."

Counsellors also should be aware that alternative lifestyles to that of the nuclear family are developing in Candian society, she said.

"Other cultures outside North America have coped with women working far better than we have, either through a form of extended family or through comprehensive day care.

"Here, biological parents have been made unduly responsible for the growth and nurture of a child."

Despite poor day care and the nuclear family, between 1961 and 1971 the number of women in the Canadian work when full-time day care is inforce increased by 63 per cent, while the number of men in the same period increased 21 per cent, she said. Fifty per cent of working women have children, she added.

"We should be preparing our women to realize that family relationships are changing — that the relationship of mother and child is different when full-time day care is involved, that relationship between husband and wife is being altered as more men assume traditional homemaking roles or tasks," she said.

Counsellors should be preparing young people for a society in which families are smaller or in which many families have no children, she added.

"Additionally, women now have a longer lifespan, as do men, and we should be making young people aware that it's no longer realistic to make a career decision at 14 or 15 and expect it to last all your life," Dexter said.

Increasingly, men and women will be changing professions, returning to university later in life or taking time off to spend with their children, she said.

But to prepare students for these social changes, she continued, guidance counsellors must change their own attitudes toward women, and make an attempt to understand the psychology of women and pressures placed on them.

It's Confusing Without Rules On Etiquette

By JUDITH MARTIN
The Washington Post

Since the regrettable relaxation of the high standards of etiquette which used to guide our ladies an dgentlemen in the sacred performannce of their public and private duties, things sure have gone to hell in a hurry.

Receiving lines get so snarled up these days, what with no one even knowing his correct place, let along being willing to stand there rooted while the punch bowl is drained elsewhere, that the only solution is for the caterer's representative to direct everyone to return to the front door and start fresh.

The table situation is so bad nowadays that the only thing a hostess can safely serve for dessert is bananas, because no matter how many dessert forks and spoons are put at each place, they all get used up earlier.

But what is most frightening about the disappearance of etiquette rules is that people no longer have to spend every waking moment worrying about which ones they might be inadvertently transgressing.

Thus, their minds are left free to worry about silly things, such as their psyches. When people worried about how to eat grapefruit without covering themselves with disgrace, they didn't worry about whether their lives were full of meaning.

Since things have been going downhill all century, one must go back a ways in the etiquette library to find rules worth living by. None of that permissive Emily Post stuff, which suggests that making others feel comfortable is more important than doing things by the book.

One good book to go by is The Correct Thing in Good Society by Florence Howe Hall, a 1902 gem which doesn't fool around. Left-hand pages contain instructions under the heading of "It is the correct thing . . ." and right-hand under "It is not the correct thing . . ."

Sin is more readable than virture, however, so the best advice appears under "It is not the correct thing . . ." — "For young men to carry plates and dishes carelessly through a crowded supper room, spilling their contents on the clothes of the guests.

— "To tuck gloves in at the wrist, instead of removing them altogether, or to put them on the table or in a wineglass.

— "For a gentleman to put letters or parcels in his hat — since they will be liable to drop out when he removes it.

— "To allow children to affect a blase, 'slangy' tone, drawling out 'What are you giving us?' 'Chestnuts!' or other odious slang expression.

— "To write a dunning, threatening, or faultfinding communication on a postal card.

— "To put the spoon or fork so far into the mouth that the bystanders are doubtful of its return to the light.

— "To sudy the effect of a costume in front only, forgetting to take into consideration the side and rear views of the same.

— "For a gentleman to keep hold of his partner, where he finds himself falling.

— "To tread on other people's feet or deposit baskets or bundles on them.

— "To serve raw oysters of whose antecedents one is doubtful, since typhoid fever may be the result of eating oysters grown where they are affected by sewage.

With these adages in mind, a person could lead a correct and comfortable life, without a moment free to worry about what is the true meaning of happiness.

'Brain Life, Marks Fetus Viability

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Dominick Purpura, a neuroscientist, says a human fetus is not "alive" until between the seventh and eighth month, if "brain life" is used as the determinant.

Purpura, chairman of the department of neuroscience at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, defined brain life as the ability of the cerebral cortex, the thinking part of the brain, to develop consciousness, self-awareness and other functions normally associated with the formation of nerve-cell circuits.

"Cerebral life, as defined by neurobiological criteria, emerges during the relatively brief period between the seventh and eighth months of gestation," he said.

He said that since the complete absence of brain waves —so-called brain death — has increasingly become the chief standard for deciding when a person is dead, "brain life" or the point at which brain waves are first detected, should determine the viability of a fetus.

Purpura said this would lengthen the generally accepted 24-week standard at which life begins to at least 28 and perhaps to 32 weeks.

Purpura said he studied the brain wave responses to light of 30 infants delivered prematurely between the 24th and 32nd week of pregnancy.

Purpura said he found that infants between 24 and 28 weeks had "immature" brains that "evoked potential" but lacked the circuitry necessary for human thought. He said their brain waves were primitive and disorganized.

"In the older premature, at about 32 weeks, we find a response that resembles in form the response of full-term infants" with well-developed nerve circuitry, he said.

NORTH TO GET FM SHOWS

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission has approved a CBC application for FM radio and television licences to broadcast programs to six Northwest Territories communities.

The communities are Cape Dorset, Igloolik, Pangnirtung, Eskimo Point, Pond Inlet and Resolute.

The FM radio licence, effective Monday and expiring March 31, 1979, allows the CBC to broadcast English and native-language programs on the Anik communications satellite.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Because I read in your column about that tollfree number, which allows runaway kids to call to let their parents know they are O.K., I re-established contact with my parents, went home and had the most wonderful Easter in my life. (I'm a 19-year-old boy who dropped out of school and hit the road 15 months ago.)

Will you please run that item again, Abby?

LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: With pleasure: Runaways, dial 1-800-231-6946. An operator will telephone your parents anywhere in the U.S. and convey a message from you. ("I'm alive, don't worry about me" is typical.)

There will be no lecturing or counselling. Your call will not be traced, and the only question asked of you will be: "Do you need anything?" If you do, you'll be told where you can obtain it for free. No attempt will be made to bring you home, regardless of your age.

Runaways, please forget the past and call that tollfree number now. Let somebody know that you are alive. You will sleep better tonight, and so will they.

P.S. This wonderful program originated in Texas and has been adopted by 37 states! It's staffed by volunteers, including some grateful runaways who have come home.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently invited to a friend's home for dinner. The table was beautifully set, but after the guests were seated, I was surprised to see that the hostess had not set a place for herself.

She said that she was "on a diet" and had already eaten her diet dinner. Then she served us and didn't even join us at the table.

Was this proper? I felt as though we were invited to her home to be given a free meal — like a couple of charity cases. What is your opinion of this? — Fed, Not Entertained.

DEAR FED: Your hostess should have sat with her guests and eaten her "diet dinner" unceremoniously while you ate yours.

DEAR ABBY: I date a man who takes me to a place where people sit around and drink beer. There's music, and every now and then one of the women will ask one of the men to dance.

Last night I was feeling pretty good, so for the first time I asked my man friend if he would dance with me. He said he didn't feel like dancing. In less than a minute, a strange woman came over and asked him to dance with her. He said "yes" without batting an eye. (The woman didn't know that he had just turned me down, so it wasn't her fault.)

When he started for the floor, I said, "Okay, you just turned me down. Now there's gonna be big trouble!"

I really blew my top and asked to be taken home. He said I acted like a baby. (I'm nearly 50.)

I say, a man's lady friend should be more important to him than a stranger. He said he was just being polite. We may break up over this although I'm sure we love each other. Who was wrong? HURT.

DEAR HURT: Your man friend owes you an apology for accepting another woman's invitation to dance after having turned you down. And you owe him one for having made a scene in public. Kiss and make up. Maybe you both learned something.

If your doctor has put you or anybody in your family on a low fat-low cholesterol diet or has told you to reduce the intake of saturated fats, you will find the 44-page "Low Cholesterol Recipes" extremely helpful.

These recipes avoid the use of fat meats, egg yolks, cream, cheese, butter and other solid fats. They also prove that anybody on such a special diet need not forego all gourmet delights.

There is also an abundance of tasty fish dishes, among them Spanish-style tuna, marinated fish fillets and fish oriental.

Of special interest are the recipes for salad dressings. You will see how to prepare a good low cholesterol mayonnaise without egg yolks. Also handy to have in the fridge is the magic French dressing. This can be altered by adding a garlic clove for a few hours, or by adding chopped chives, minced onions or any favourite herb.

Another imaginative recipe is for a spring salad. This is prepared from jelly powder, crushed pineapple and skim milk cottage cheese. It should be served with low cholesterol mayonnaise.

If you are on a low fat-low cholesterlol diet, you can obtain a copy of this recipe booklet by writing to: Home Economics Department, St. Lawrence Starch Company, 141 Lakeshore Road East, Port Credit, Ont. L5G 1E8. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Twist Her Arm And She Grows

Washington Post

Growing up Skipper is a new "fashion doll," another of those little plastic toughies who sneak into innocent families and then drain budgets with their endless demands for more and more miniature tacky clothes.

But the terrific thing about G. U. Skipper is that if you twist her arm, she grows plastic breasts, right before your eyes.

This is quite a thrill for parents who are ever searching for just the right playthings for their sensitive little children. It's educational, too, and if your precocious daughter's arms is sprained as she tries to twist her own way into growing up or out, you can call it exercise.

It's also a good lesson for those parents who thought that they hated the Barbie doll. (Skipper is Barbie's younger sister, although the number of years between them naturally decreases as other factors increase.) Barbie never actually violated the laws of decent public behavior, yet she is reviled by many parents simply because of her looms.

For this she is even banned from the houses of some particularly strong-willed parents who have a high resistance to whining. Most, however, take the more pragmatic approach, as adopted by a woman who had had a wall-sized dollhouse custom built for her daughter, filled with correct period furniture, swatches o fthe best materials as upholstery and curtains and even a scaled-down sterling Barbie doll in it. "Oh well," said the mother, "she isn't the first blonde hussy who moved into a fine old family house."

In its favor, it might be noted that this doll does not make shrill noises, does not stain the rug, is not poisonous and is too big to be swallowed whole. Thus it is also useful for teaching children that in this life, you can't have everything.

It does however, outclass all contenders in the surprise-and-disgust-your-parents line up until now, the record had been held by Baby Alive, a doll that swallows a pasty yellow goo mixed by the child then rapidly transmits this material into its diaper.

The Baby Alive doll is a descendent of the old Dy-Dee doll, which only wet itself and thus had a limited attraction for realists. Baby Alive was hailed as real progress in the continuing vindictive effort of parents to give their children the experience of knowing how much fun it is to be a parent.

What next, now that we have Growing Up Skipper? All you have to do to find out is to change the first couple of letters in her name.

Welch Medical Report

By Dr. William J. Welch

(Dr. Welch is a practicing physician and an associate professor of clinical medicine.)

Another clue as to why alcoholics get sick when so-called social drinkers do not seems to have turned up in a study of the blood-levels of a chemical called acetaldehyde, a digestive breakdown product of alcohol.

Acetaldehyde is toxic to heart muscle, liver cells and brain tissue, which is important because of the well known tendency of alcoholics to develop cirrhosis of the liver, heart trouble and evidence of nerve and brain damage.

The study, reported recently in the New England Journal of Medicine, showed that acetaldehyde levels rose more than 60 per cent higher in the bloodstream of alcoholics than in those of non-alcoholics when both groups received equal amounts of alcohol.

In order to eliminate variations in the rate of gut-absorption of alcohol taken by mouth, each subject in this study took his "drink" through a needle in an arm vein. Then for eight or 10 hours, the blood level of alcohol and of acetaldeyde was measured simultaneously at regular intervals.

The results were consistent, but nobody is quite sure whether the alcoholics' tendency to have higher levels of this powerful and toxic chemical in their blood is the result of their alcoholism or exists as a predisposing tendency which leads to alcoholism.

More studies will have to be done to find out, for example, whether the tendency can be picked up in the so-called normals and thus tag them as potential alcoholics.

If this were so, a whole new approach to preventing alcohol-induced disease might open up. And the possibility of identifying those who are alcoholism-prone suggests the possibility of a way to forestall and indeed prevent the disease itself.

Acetaldehyde appears to rise to a fixed level in the blood and stay there without further increase, even if more alcohol is consumed. This is because the normal body processes that break down acetaldehyde take over at the plateau level and prevent further rise.

It has been known for a long time that "antabuse," used in the treatment of alcoholics, blocks this breakdown of acetaldehyde.

If a person who takes antabuse regularly as treatment for alcoholism intentionally consumes alcohol or unintentionally, as with unsuspected sherry in soup, for example, there is a sudden increase of acetaldehyde in his blood far beyond the normal plateau. The subject is seized with nausea, breaks into a sickening sweat, he flushes, his blood pressure drops and he may collapse.

It is the threat of such a drastic reaction that is counted on to encourage antabuse takers to stay on the wagon. Those who think they must drink, know they will have to stop the drug and wait several days before they will dare take one. By then, the hope is that he or she will have thought better of the impulse.

An example of the simple-in-retrospect technique that wins local duplicate games (and major tournaments) can be observed in today's deal. It was played in a recent duplicate game in Washington, D.C.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ K 7
♥ 8 6 5 2
♦ A 10 2
♣ A 8 6 3

WEST	EAST
♠ J 9 5 4 2	♠ Q 10 8 6
♥ Q 10	♥ J 9 3
♦ J 3	♦ 9 7 5 4
♣ J 10 9 4	♣ K Q

SOUTH
♠ A 3
♥ A K 7 4
♦ K Q 8 6
♣ 7 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

North's two-club response was the initiation of the Stayman Convention. When South showed his four-card heart suit, North contracted for the game in hearts.

Dummy's ace of clubs was played on the opening lead, East following suit with the queen. South deduced from East's play that the latter had probably started with the doubleton K-Q of clubs. Thus South knew that he could throw East into the lead with the club king any time he wished.

At tricks two and three declarer cashed the ace and king of trumps. When both opponents followed suit, only the high jack of trumps became outstanding. Next came a diamond to dummy's ace, after which the diamond deuce was led to South's king. When West's jack fell on this latter lead, East was revealed as being the possessor of four diamonds originally.

South's eight of diamonds was then led to the board's ten-spot, West discarding a spade. The king of spades was cashed next, and this was followed by a spade to South's ace. Spades had just been eliminated from both the North and South hands.

Now the queen of diamonds was played, a club being discarded from dummy. With diamonds and spades having been eliminated from both the North and South hands, the time was now ripe for leading a club, which South did. As is evident, East was forced to win the trick with his king and, simultaneously, East was end-played.

After East had cashed his high jack of trumps, he had no choice but to play back a spade. On this trick South discarded his remaining club as he ruffed the trick with the board's last trump. And so South's only losers were a club and a trump.

At rubber bridge this deal would have passed by unnoticed. But this was a duplicate game, and the overtrick gave South a top score on the deal.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Wednesday, June 18

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid rushing to conclusions. Conditions, to put it mildly, may be in confused state. Means contracts, past agreements are likely to be radically revised, if not, overturned. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure in picture. If married, mate makes demands — and they are firm and fair.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message. Have fun without scattering efforts. You will be popular, socially active — but there are also responsibilities to fulfill. Gemini, Sagitarius are in your personal aura. A secret is revealed and you could be in position of trust.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Restrictions, red tape can be dealt with if you maintain steady pace. Avoid sensationalism. Be specific, factual — don't promise more than can be delivered. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons figure prominently. Member of opposite sex is more "emotional" than usual. Don't be trapped into argument!.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Seeking abrupt changes now might be an error. Key is to work with material at hand. Don't shake up authorities by making what might be considered unreasonable demands. picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message; maintain even, steady pace. Be diplomatic, especially where family, home relationships are concerned. Taurus, Libra figure in picture. Postpone trips, if possible. Be aware of details, fine points — take nothing for granted. One you care for expresses appreciation, perhaps love.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't be deceived by money promises, statement. Planetary aspects now coincide with pressure in financial area. Protect your own interests. See situation in realistic light. You probably will be dealing with another Virgo — and a Pisces.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get action. You find that your judgment is accurate, although circumstances hurl obstacles in your path. Key is to recognize priorities — and to organize them. You'll get co-operation from responsible source.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Employment picture may be emphasized. You are finishing one phase of activity — and should be preparing for "new regime." Aggressive individual is forced to admit mistake. Be gracious. You will receive proper credit for correct summary.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friend with problems may not be thinking too clearly. Know it and dont' get caught up in vortex of confusion. Leo, Aquarius persons could be involved. Avoid basing actions on impulse. Highlight creativity. Pioneering concept is most likely to bring success.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan. 19): You get co-operation by confiding in one who is older and has taken an interest in you. There is room for you at a more elevated position. But, first, there might appear to be rejection, a setback. This is in the form of a test and you will make a comeback.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Confusion reigns — Enjoy social activity without becoming involved in senseless controvery. Gemini, Sagittarius types command your attention. Long-range plans, especially connected with vacation travel, could be subject to abrupt change.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Conserve energy — and cash. Someone wants something from you for nothing. Be gracious, not foolish. Don't give up valuables for mere whipsered flattery. You must hold what you have in high esteem. Aquarius, Taurus and Leo figure prominently.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are attracted to law, medicine, theatre. Your interests are multifaceted. You find it difficult to concentrate on only one book, one subject, even one person. You are in a new field, cycle, fresh encounter this year. July will be a most significant month. Aries, Libra persons play key roles in your life. You are not easy to know but very hard to forget.

Garden Watering Main Work Now

The vegetable garden is making rapid growth due to warmer night temperatures and the main work now is maintaining sufficient moisture, sowing winter radish and hot weather peas, making succession sowings of earlier crops, weeding, and thinning if sowings have been made too thickly.

To maintain sufficient moisture down at the level of the lowest roots or vegetables or shrubs, requires a thorough soaking every 10 days. The only exception is seedlings which may need watering with a watering can twice a day.

Soils low in humus will have to be watered more frequently because there is nothing in the soil to prevent water dropping below root level.

Always water in the morning before the soil and the plants become heated. This allows the foliage and the surface of the soil to dry before the night chill sets in.

Between watering days, break the surface as soon as the soil can be walked on, using a hand hoe or a wheel hoe. Maintain a two-inch dust mulch until the next watering day.

This dust mulch breaks the natural capilliary action which permits moisture to rise to the surface overnight as the heat of the upper layers is released into the air, leaving it at the surface to evaporate as the surface heat increases the next day.

Water is too expensive to be wasted in this way. Anything the gardener can do to keep it where it is needed is well worth doing.

Mid-June is a good time to make a small sowing of Winter Radish for use in early fall. The winter radish is quite different to the common summer radish, both in size and flavor. Maturing time is 55 days compared to 28 days for the summer varieties.

The roots of the winter radish are the giants of the radish family, some round like small beetroot, others long and cylindrical. Chinese Rose and Black Spanish produce the round roots; the roots of Chinese White are four to five inches long and nearly two inches in diameter.

Flavor is mild compared to the summer types (which become woody and hot if left in the ground too long) and are used in soups, casseroles, as a cooked vegetable, or a crunchy addition to a raw salad.

This sowing will be ready to use around mid-September, the roots being lifted as needed. Another sowing made in July will supply roots for use during late fall and over winter.

To extend the season of garden peas, another sowing can now be made.

For this sowing it is often profitable to use the variety called Wando. This makes a vine about three feet high, needing early staking for best results.

The feature of Wando is that it will flower and produce in the greater heat of summer. Many other varieties fail to do this, which is the possible reason for the glut of peas found in home gardens by early summer and no more for the rest of the season.

Should you be growing asparagus from seed and have the second year plants set out in nursery rows, check carefully for any plants which produce flowers, and later on, berries.

These are female plants which produce only thin spindly spears that are tough and fibrous, and useless for the table.

Remove and discard any plants of this type right away. If they get into the final bed you will have seedlings popping up everywhere, and you will have wasted a lot of precious time in transplanting them.

BCFP Challenges Fisheries Rules

Larry Candido told court Monday he will argue that Section 33 of the act, under which the company is charged, is invalid.

The company is accused of three counts of unlawfully depositing an oil dispersant in waters frequented by fish.

The charges arise from a bunker oil spill Aug. 9, 1974, at the company's Crofton dock.

Pollution control officer Hal Paulsen told court he saw oil spilling on the deck and over the side of the tanker barge Gulfalladin.

The crown is contending that under Section 33 of the Fisheries Act, chemical dispersants shall only be used with the express permission of Environment Canada or provincial authorities.

Hospital Charges Union in Court

EDMONTON (CP) — University Hospital is launching action to have the Civil Service Association of Alberta declared in contempt of court.

The decision to proceed with legal action followed a meeting Monday of directors of the hospital where non-medical employees, members of the CSA, have refused to honor an Alberta Supreme Court back-to-work order.

The CSA has stated it will proceed with legal action to have its members placed under the Alberta Labor Act rather than the Crown Agency Employees Act which has no provision for strike action.

CSA President Bill Broad said Monday the union will defy the back-to-work injunction issued Saturday to stop the protest against province's refusal to place workers at Foothills Hospital in Calgary under the Alberta Labor Act.

The CSA also wants the courts to prohibit the W. W. E. Cross Institute in Edmonton from assigning its bargaining rights to the Alberta Hospital Association, the bargaining agent for the hospitals.

SASKATOON (CP) — More than 12,000 provincial employees will have the option of working flexible hours beginning July 1 on an experimental basis.

Fred Cuttington, a Saskatchewan Government Employees Association Official, said employees throughout the province can begin work as early as 7:30 a.m. and stay as late as 6 p.m. There is a five-hour core period during the middle of the day when employees are required to be on the job, he said.

Cuttington said the scheme was introduced as an alternative to the four-day week and growing demands to have the work week reduced.

EDMONTON (CP) — The Keep Our People Safe Committee has asked Edmonton city council to increase spending on safety and supervision of parks and to design future parks with an eye to public protection.

The group recommends that improved supervision be provided at critical hours in children's playgrounds and that future ravine and river valley parks include access roads for police patrolling, watchtowers overlooking nature trails, wardens on horseback and well-lit public telephones.

CALGARY (CP) — More trouble is looming at the construction labor front in Alberta with the announcement that plumbers in Southern Alberta may walk out Saturday.

About 1,000 plumbers in Southern Alberta, mostly in Calgary and Medicine Hat, are serving strike notice and will walk out Saturday "if no settlement is reached this week," a spokesman for the United Association of Plumbers and Pipefitters said in Calgary. The construction industry in southern Alberta is already faced with the strikes by 1,000 general laborers and by 300 painters.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The chronic shortage of jobs in northern Manitoba will get even worse during the next five years without concerted efforts by both governments and private industry, Northern Affairs Minister Ron McBryde says.

There are already twice as many persons of working age as there are jobs in the north; and the situation could be twice as bad by 1980, he told the legislature.

McBryde made the comments while introducing his department's $17.3-million spending estimates for the year that began April 1.

Liquor Changes Softened

A controversial section in the government's new liquor legislation was withdrawn Monday by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald after opposition criticism.

The section would have held liable, the person who "furnished or gave liquor" to an intoxicated person who died or was injured because of the intoxication.

Independent MLA Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said the section prompted "horrendous possibilities" and placed upon licencees the obligation of determining when a person is in a state of intoxication.

"It seems to place a terrible onus on people who serve liquor," said Williams during clause by clause debate of the Liquor Control and Licensing Act.

Macdonald said he bowed to opposition argument and would leave retribution to common law.

In the old section of the act, he said, liability was limited to $1,500 and only in the case of death. Because of the unreasonable low limit his department proposed the new section.

"But common law will be satisfactory."

The attorney-general said also that new regulations under the legislation will likely come into effect by the end of July.

He said his department is drawing up regulations to coincide with principles in the legislation which provides for a five-member commission to list and delist liquor for sale.

"The listing committee," he said, "will be encouraged to clear up the disorder and delistings will be subject to appeal to the Liquor Administration Branch."

Independent MLA Pat McGeer (Vancouver-Point Grey) urged the government to investigate apparent irregularities in listings and asked why the price of imported wines is higher by half than comparative products in other provinces.

"I'm quite preparted to tell the house that we're looking at pricing at the present time," said Macdonald, adding he has asked for a report.

"But alcoholism is a problem too, and that has to be investigated in conjunction with other studies."

"I don't think even a millionaire could develop an alcoholism problem on the price of imported wines," quipped McGeer.

Socred MLA Bob McClelland (Langley) requested the government publish its new liquor regulations, specifically those which will affect proposed sale of beer and wine at corner grocery stores.

During clause by clause scrutiny of a comparative bill, the Liquor Distribution Act, McClelland asked that a non-discriminatory system be worked out for choosing those stores.

Macdonald said the expansion of sales outlets to include small corner groceries would not be implemented before the next legislative sitting.

"We'll publish the regulations and have debate on them when the house is sitting," he added.

ICBC 'WENT TOO FAR'

The provincial government exceeded its powers in creating a monopoly like the Insurance Corp. of B.C., a lawyer for 37 private insurance companies told the B.C. Court of Appeals Monday.

Legislation which gives ICBC a monopoly in the field of compulsory automobile insurance conflicts with the federal power to regulate trade and commerce, said R. F. Wilson.

The insurance companies are appealng a B.C. Supreme Court decision which upheld the provincial government's right to have excluded private competition with ICBC in the field of auto insurance.

Wilson said the provincial legislature has no power to create a monopoly which affects the business of Dominion companies, and which related to trade and commerce.

"It is not open to provincial legislatrs to balkanize . . . trade within the confines of the whole country," he said.

The appellants challenge the government claim that ICBC is a social welfare plan, similar to a public utility, and therefore a "matter of a merely local or private nature in the province" as defined by the British North American Act, he said.

ICBC began operation March 1, 1974.

Private insurance companies in the province were not licenced to handle auto insurance in B.C. after that date.

The appeal, which began Monday, continues today.

Bennett Side of Road-Land Deal

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A road built in 1967 on Bennett family property near Kelowna was constructed by the highways department in exchange for land and a sum of money, R. J. Bennett said Monday.

Bennett, the son of former premier W. A. C. Bennett and brother of current Socred leader Bill Bennett, told a different story of construction of Gellatly Road than the version offered the legislature last week by Highways Minister Graham Lea.

Lea said Scottish Cove Holding Ltd., the Bennett company which controls the property in Westbank on Okanagan Lake, used a "series of the most fortunate circumstances" to construct cheaply a road across the property.

But Bennett said the company actually gave the government 350 feet of waterfront for parkland and granted a 66-foot road allowance through the property in exchange for construction of the road.

When the road was completed, he said, he decided to avoid any problems in the future by paying the highways department for the cost of the road through the portion of land he planned to subdivide, not the portion give over as a park.

Bennett said he could not remember exactly what the amount of money was but he said it was set up by the government.

Last Thursday, Lea read the legislature a report prepared in 1973 by associate highways deputy R. G. Harvey, which said the subdividers built Gellatly Road through the property but ran into some fortunate circumstances in relation to the government.

He decided to subdivide a portion of it along the lakeside where there was already a road separating the lake from the property.

But the road was not gazetted, according to Bennett, so he decided it should be moved back at least 150 feet from the lakeshore so the land could be subdivided into waterfront lots.

In constructing the new road, according to Lea's report, the subdividers were "fortunate" that the government ha ddecided to move a bridge at one end of the road and "this was done in conjunction with moving the road back from the waterfront."

Because the highways department was working near the site, the subdividers were also able to rent departmental equipment from the road construction at cheap rates and without having to pay transportation costs, said Lea.

A developer nearby gave the subdividers free fill from his excavations, said Lea, and the government gave them asphalt to mix into the fill.

Because of these money-saving circumstances, said the government report, the road cost only $3,000 to build when it would have cost three to five times as much if it had been done normally.

Bennett's explanation differs quite considerably, however, because he said the department built the road as part of the agreement to hand over a portion of the land for a park.

After the road was built, Bennett said he offered to sell the rest of the land to the regional district so the entire area would be a park but the offer was not taken and the land was subdivided into 12 lots and sold.

Bennett said the Scottish Cove company was set up as a trust for his children but he agreed there was some confusion over the directorship of the company.

Bill Bennett and R. J. Bennett's wife, Lois, were the original two shareholders of the company but Bill Bennett later gave up his share to accountant Gordon Courtice.

A check of companies office records show that the annual reports for the years 1966, 1967 and 1968 originally listed Bill Bennett as a shareholder but amended reports were filed in 1969 which showed Bennett transferred his one share to Courtice in 1965 and Courtice was a shareholder from then on.

But the original report filed for the year Sept. 16, 1967, to Sept. 16, 1968, was signed by Bill Bennett as a director.

Bill Bennett has continually said he never held any financial interest in the firm.

'Early Warning' On Carrion

MONTREAL (CP) — A former high-ranking official of the Quebec agriculture department testified Monday he warned the Quebec government in 1968 that illegal trade in dead animals had been going on for at least four years.

Dr. Marc L'Heureux told the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime he made the warning in a report submitted while he was the department's head of regional coordination for Montreal North, a position he held from 1964 until his retirement in 1973.

The report urged greater fines and stricter regulations to prevent meat from dead and sick animals from being sold to the public, Dr. L'Heureux said.

Asked what action the provincial government took once the report was received in March, 1968, he replied: "None, to my knowledge."

Dr. L'Heureux said the government also failed to outline conflict-of-interest regulations to prevent meat inspectors from engaging in business on their own.

He said conflict of interest was left as a question of personnel interpretation because there were no clear guidelines.

Earlier Monday, a former government meat inspector told the inquiry he was fired by the agriculture department because he sold tainted meat to retail butchers as a "sideline."

Raoul Courtemanche said he made $12,000 a year in addition to his $16,000 salary from the government by selling meat that came from Federal Packing Inc. of Magog, Que.

The former inspector testified the meat he sold came from the garbage pails of Federal Packing after it had been returned by retailers because it was damaged or had gone bad.

Mr. Courtemanche said he was suspended and subsequently fired three weeks ago after he appeared before a closed-door hearing of the inquiry. He was formerly an inspector at two Montreal subsidiaries of Federal Packing.

Another inspector, Arthur Legault, told of going into business for himself to supplement his $18,700 salary.

BCR: $15M NEEDED NOW

B.C. Rail needs $15 million in additional revenue immediately and $35 million by Aug. 15 to continue operations, Labor Minister Bill King told the legislature Monday.

"If the money is not voted expeditiously it could result in injury or inconvenience to the small people and the working people of the railway," King said, urging opposition members to speed debate on a bill to allow BCR increased borrowing power.

Debate on the B.C. Railway Co. Construction Amendment Act, introduced 11 days ago, has dwelt mainly on auditing procedures of the railway under the previous and current governments.

King said further opposition queries should be directed through the legislature's all-party committee on public accounts.

Funds needed — $15 million immediately, $10 million, July 2, $10 million, July 15, and $15 million Aug. 15 — will cover construction and operating costs.

They would be provided for under the bill which raises the borrowing limit to $650 million from the current ceiling of $440 million, said King in response to questions from Independent Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound.)

Williams asked whether government grants of $35 million in January and April would be repaid out of new funds allowed by increased borrowing.

Before Barrett left the legislature Friday, he urged the opposition to approve the legislation quickly because the railway's funds are exhausted. He said the government's only alternative if debate dragged would be to introduce an interim supply bill.

But King said outside the house Monday, he hopes this will not be necessary.

The bill has already received approval in principle, he said, and "I hope it will receive final approval in the next day or so."

Opposition debate consisted mainly of a "rehash of facts already before the house," he said. "And I hope the opposition recognizes it's responsibility.

"It is a resource railway that is required to give services to the northern area of B.C. and I don't think anyone wants to see its services curtailed."

Williams described recent debate on the bill as a "smokescreen" by both the government and Social Credit members to cover up the real financial situation of the railway.

Opposition leader Bill Bennett said the government should not complain about the emergency need for funds for the railway since the bill has been sitting on the order paper for months.

Pat McGeer (Ind.-Vancouver-Point Grey) asked King what changes the BCR has made in its own internal auditing system as a result of the external audit.

Without the scrutiny of an auditor-general in B.C., he said, Crown corporations must have much more "acute" internal auditing systems.

He also said the railway should not be "a world-wage leader."

If the railway could pay all its costs and still make a profit, said McGeer, then it might be reasonable for the BCR to offer top wages. But the railway can not even pay its day to day operational costs, he said.

Some 101s Still Grounded

OTTAWA (CP) — Several of Canada's air defence fighters still are virtually grounded, a month after a crash in Quebec showed possible defects in engine casings.

Indications from the armed forces Monday were that at least some of these CF-101s would be on highly restricted service into the next month and perhaps longer.

A spokesman Monday would say only that significantly more than 18 of the 38 CF-101s devoted to air defence and the eight used for training are back in normal serice.

The aircraft that crashed at Bagotville, Que., May 14 had cracks in the combustion and exhaust casings.

Dredging Jury Studies Payola 'Score Sheet'

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton harbor trial jury got its first look at a "score sheet" Monday when a battered business card was introduced as evidence.

The jury has heard testimony from three dredging industry officials, saying dredging firms regularly practised bid-rigging and kept track of their under-the-table obligations to each other on pieces of paper they called score sheets.

The business card produced Monday belonged to Robert Schneider, one-time vice-president of Canadian Dredge and Dock Ltd. on the back of the card, scrawled figures recorded more than $100,000 in illicit credits and debits.

Schneider is one of the Crown's witnesses in the case against former Hamilton harbor commissioner Kenneth Elliott and businessman Reginal Fisher. The two men are charged with 10 counts of conspiracy, fraud and uttering in connection with alleged kickbacks and payoffs on dredging and construction work in the harbor in 1970-72.

Schneider, Horace Rindress, former president of the J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., and Louis Quinlan, a former vice-president of the marine division of McNamara Corp., all have testified to misdeallings in connection with the dredging industry.

Schneider told the court earlier he met Rindress in Toronto to discuss a dredging project which was to be called by the Hamilton Harbor Commission

Schneider's earlier testimony described how he placed a high bid in a 1971 tender call for a federal dredging job in the St. Lawrence River. In return, the successful consortium of J. P. Porter and McNamara agreed to pay Canadian Dredge two per cent of the gross contract price, or about $400,000.

That sum was on the Canadian Dredge score sheet when he met Rindress, he said.

Schneider told Malcolm Robb, Elliott's defence counsel, that during the meeting, Rindress told him he wanted the Hamilton contract for Porter.

The witness said Rindress also told him there were heavy cash expenses involved in the contract — $50,000 for each of the three commissioners, and an extra $10,000 for George Kerr's campaign fund.

The witness said he told Rindress such payments were unnecessary.

However, he told the lawyer, "I perceived it was Mr. Rindress's intention to proceed and I had no influence over him."

Two former harbor commissioners who resigned in 1973, Delbert Hickey and Joseph Lanza, are named but not charged in the 10-count indictment against Elliott and Fisher.

Kerr, former Ontario environment minister, resigned his cabinet post as solicitor-general when his name was linked to the harbor scandal but has maintained he is innocent.

Schneider said he finally reached an agreement with Rindress on the Hamilton project.

In return for a high bid by Canadian Dredge, Rindress promised to produce $200,000 in cash for Schneider, the court was told. Schneider said that for his part, he was to wipe out $300,000 of the money owed to his company from the St. Lawrence project.

The witness said he received $125,000 in United States bills from Rindress in February, 1972. In adddition, he said, he later was given a bank draft for $75,000.

'JUST LIKE BANANA REPUBLIC'

OTTAWA (FP) — Canada was acting like a "banana republic" when a Federal Court issued a writ ordering the British Royal Navy's helicopter carrier HMS Hermes impounded, the opposition spokesman said Monday.

The issue was raised in the House by Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West). Addressing Acting Secretary of State for External Affairs Mitchell Sharp he asked if the government believed the court was justified in issuing such an order to detain a ship of a friendly country.

"The writ was in support of a civil action against two members of the crew, an action which has not been proven.

Sharp said that justice department officers ruled that HMS Hermes "is a warship in the service of a foreign state." Consequently under International Law and as recognized both in common law and in various Canadian statutes such a warship would enjoy immunity he explained.

Lambert suggested that the attorney-general should inquire into the administration of the federal court to see whether any such action "which only befits a petty banana republic, would be justified by Canada."

An angry Donald Munro (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) was on his feet to question Sharp. Did he understand the minister to describe HMS Hermes as a "ship of a foreign state," he asked.

Sharp said he was using the term in a general sense. He said he hoped he did not offend the West Coast member's sensibilities. He realized he should perhaps have used the term "British ship" instead of describing HMS Hermes as a ship of a foreign state.

Ruling In Works On Quang

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision on whether Dang Van Quang, controversial former South Vietnamese general, can stay in Canada will be made shortly, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Monday.

He was replying in the Commons to Andrew Brewin (NDP-Toronto Greenwood) who asked whether the government has received information from the United States indicating that Quang was involved in the narcotics trade in South Vietnam.

Quang arrived in Montreal last month from a U.S. resettlement camp. He entered Canada on a one-year special permit and has since applied for landed immigrant status.

Meanwhile, a sworn statement from a former Saigon U.S. embassy official says Quang organized black market dealings, heroin smuggling and the selling of government jobs and is suspected of plotting political assassinations.

A copy of the affidavit has been obtained by Derek Blackburn (NDP-Brant) who said Monday he intends to hand it over to Immigration Minister Andras today.

The sworn statement, by Stephen Young, former assistant to the counsellor for economic affairs in Saigon in 1970 and 1971, says Quang's activities were known to the Vietnamese regime, the U.S. state department and the Central Intelligence Agency.

SENIORS GET ID CARDS

OTTAWA (FPI) — Canada's old-age pensioners, from today onward, will have government-issued cards to identify themselves.

The cards are to be sent automatically to all old-age security recipients.

Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde explained the identity cards will allow the bearer to benefit from certain consumer discounts, reduced travel fares granted by local and long distance carriers and other advantages.

'Shacking Up' Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — Women's rights legislation recognizing common-law relationships among pensioners might help undermine the institution of marriage, Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) said in the Commons Monday.

Baldwin cautioned Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde against "putting the good housekeeping seal of approval on shacking up together" by guaranteeing common-law spouses of veterans the right to veterans' pension benefits.

. . . Some Inside Info?

OTTAWA (CP) — A bundle of mail that arrived at Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield's official residence here has caused some embarrassment for Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey.

Mysteriously the mail was sent to Halifax, where Stanfield used to live, instead of to his Ottawa residence.

"You should tell your officials that my retirement to Halifax has been greated exaggerated," Stanfield told Mackasey in the Commons Monday.

Stanfield said the letters included an invitation to the unveiling of a painting of former prime minsiter Lester B. Pearson at external affairs headquarters here.

There ceremony took place last week before he got the letter.

Postal Code Law Eyed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will propose a law, if necessary, requiring use of the postal code on all mail, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Monday.

"We prefer to convince people to use the code rather than make it mandatory by law, but if this is necessary we won't hesitate to do so," Mackasey said in the Commons.

He was responding to complaints by former prime minister John Diefenbaker that the post office condones the "illegal" practice of stamping letters with the words Boycott the Postal Code.

Mackasey said the postal code represents "a certain degree of insecurity" to some postal workers who see their jobs threatened by automated letter sorting equipment.

He dismissed Diefenbaker's suggestion that the government take a hard line against postal workers who object to the code.

The working climate in the post office was the best in months and should not be disrupted, he said.

PM Blames Slump On Foreign Trade

He told George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) in the Commons Monday that domestic demand had resumed its growth in the first three months of 1975.

Gross national product, total of all goods and services produced, fell by 1.4 per cent in the first three months.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) said predictions of real growth made by Finance Minister John Turner in budgets since 1972 had overshot actual figures by a total of 6.6 percentage points.

That miscalculation meant hat $7.2 billion was lost to the economy in that time, he said.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield referred to "depressing figures" issued concerning the GNP and adverse trading balance and asked how the government's consensus program is "percolating," querying if MPs would get a report on it in the June 23 budget.

Turner said he would have a good deal to say about the consensus program on budget night.

Turner said the "national accountants in revising the accounts for 1971 revalued the 1972-73 year's figures so that the opposition's criticisms were not entirely correct."

He added that economic forecasting has been a very difficult art for the Canadian government, the United States and European governments.

This was because of the highly volatile international situation in terms of the movement of commodity prices and in the movement of food prices.

The Canadian economy's performance in the first quarter of this year was the worst performance in 14 years in any quarter, said Hees.

He urged the government to introduce measures to get at the root causes of the economic malaise now paralyzing the country.

Trudeau said the statistics showed that the main cause of the decline in economic activity was due to Canada's foreign trade. It has slumped. The countries to which Canada usually sells have not been able to buy from Canada.

Hees disagreed. He said the root causes were to be found within Canada. The malaise could be cured by the proper measures which had been outlined to the government by the opposition financial critics.

Stop using "band-aid" measures he appealed to Turner.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

BARRETT'S BEANERY?

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

At the hub of the Inner Harbor area which has already received substantial public funding for various improvement projects, the provincial government wants to operate . . . a sandwich bar.

Acting Mayor Ald. Alf Hood said today the proposal is to operate the food outlet in the Causeway Esso service station at the corner of the Causeway and Wharf, which the city purchased some two years ago as part of the overall redevelopment program for the Inner Harbor and later turned over to the Capital Improvement District Commission.

He first learned of the sandwich bar scheme when he was approached June 6 — "the anniversary of D-Day" — by the provincial government's executive chef, Yvon Chouinard.

Hood said he has since protested strongly to Public Works Minister Bill Hartley, pointing out that costly improvements have been carried out in the area to provide an attractive environment for pedestrians.

Even to think of installing a "beanery" there is "preposterous," he added.

Ald. Mike Young, the city's representative on the provincially-funded Capital Improvement District Commission, said the site was turned over to the CIDC on the understanding that the gas station would be demolished, the adjoining tower retained and the grounds beautified.

"Now it appears the title has somehow been transferred to the province, without any authorization from or consultation with the city," he said.

Hood said he understands the provincial food operation would not be preparing any hot foods. But a city official pointed out that a wider range of snacks would give Victoria its own version of Vancouver's PNE hamburger poll — complete with Barrettburgers, Bennettburgers et al.

Greenpeace Hit, Paris Court Rules

Fish Offer Made

BORED BRUIN lounging in the branches at Vancouver's Stanley Park zoo has an eloquent expression too good for Times photographer John McKay to pass up. Is he so smug because he can look down on the crowd for a change, rather than up from his pit enclosure? Or does the breeze blowing through his fur up there make him superior? Is it possible he's not bored but worried because he's stuck?

PARIS (Reuter) — A Paris court today ruled that a French warship deliberately rammed the Canadian protest yacht Greenpeace III near a nuclear bomb test site in the Pacific in June, 1972.

But the court declared it was not competent to judge another case brought by the Vancouver captain David McTaggart alleging that the French Navy illegally boarded his boat in the same area the following year.

The three-man tribunal ruled that the French government was responsible for damages caused to McTaggart's yacht when a French minesweeper, La Paimpolaise, rammed it near the South Pacific atoll of Mururoa. France was conducting atmospheric nuclear tests there.

McTaggart had sailed his yacht into the test zone to protest the tests, which provoked international complaints from many countries, notably Australia, New Zealand and Peru.

The court said that officials will be appointed to assess the amount of damages owed to McTaggart by the French government.

In a separate incident in the summer of 1973, McTaggart alleged in a plea to the court that French marines boarded his yacht, beat up his crew and seized the Greenpeace III.

The French government's defence was that the navy was entitled to board the yacht as a danger zone had been declared around the test site.

McTaggart, 42, said he was not satisfied with the verdict handed down by the civil court at the end of the two-month case, but that he will have to consult with his lawyers before deciding what further action to take.

McTaggart brought 24 civil charges against the French state as a result of the incidents during his incursions into the nuclear danger zone in 1972 and 1973 in a vain attempt to halt the atmospheric nuclear tests. The French government has since moved all its nuclear weapons tests underground at Fangataufa Atoll and has abandoned the atmospheric test site at Mururoa.

The court said if McTaggart wants to pursue the case he can only do so through administrative channels and the French Council of State, a political body that functions as supreme arbitration tribunal in legal cases within the government.

Mctaggart alleged that sailors armed with clubs attacked him and his crew and inflicted a serious eye injury on him.

The news that Mr. McTaggart has won a round in his fight with the French government comes only a couple of weeks after a British Columbia MP relayed a call for help to help pay his legal costs.

John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby - Richmond - Delta) released a letter from Paris, dated May 15, in which Mr. McTaggart said the case appeared headed for a higher court and that he was bound to win.

"My only problem would be that I have literally exhausted all my financial resources," the letter said. He asked Mr. Reynolds if he could name a group that could help with legal expenses.

McTaggart has sought $50,000 from the French government for damages resulting from the two incidents at Mururoa Atoll. He also sought $12,000 which the Canadian government gave him "ex-gratis" to have the Greenpeace returned to Canada after the French released the vessel in December, 1973.

B.C.'s salmon trollermen could be back at work soon after an increased offer by some independent fish companies in the price for coho salmon.

The trollers' association met with Fisheries Association officials Monday in an attempt to negotiate a new price and Fred Young, manager of the trollers' association, said today that some of the companies have now made a new offer of 73 cents a pound, the same rate now in effect in Washington and Oregon.

Trollermen are meeting today in Bamfield, Tofino, Uchulet and Kyuquot to decide whether to accept the offer and go back to work.

Results of those meetings will not be known until later today.

"All we wanted was for the market mechanism to function normally," Young said.

"If the companies want to buy fish they will come out with a sensible price and the fishermen will sell to those companies who have a sensible price," he said.

Communists Gain In Italian Elections

Times News Services

ROME — Thousands of jubilant Communists waved red flags in downtown Rome today to celebrate stunning election gains that threatened to bring down the government and give the Communists a role in running the country from which they have been banned since 1947.

The Communists, carrying banners emblazoned with hammers and sickles, sang the International during night-long demonstrations that choked traffic in the heart of the city for hours.

With nearly 99 per cent of the ballots counted, the Communists won 33.5 per cent of the vote, an increase of nearly six per cent. The Christian Democrats polled 35.2 per cent, a drop of nearly three per cent.

Italians voted Sunday and Monday for 15 of Italy's 20 regional assemblies, advisory councils in 86 of 94 provinces and municipal councils in 6,300 of 8,000 cities.

The elections did not directly affect the makeup of Parliament but spelled trouble for the Christian Democratic-led government of Premier Aldo Moro.

Beatinf Fatal

BURNABY (CP) — Anna Magdolna Horvath, 37, was found fatally beaten in her apartment Monday. The woman's husband told RCMP he returned home from work and found the body of his wife on her bed.

Saipan Joins U.S.

SAIPAN, Mariana Islands (Reuter) — The people of the Mariana Islands in the western Pacific today voted heavily in favor of becoming United States citizens. The islanders, voting in a plebiscite supervised by the UN, came out 76 per cent in favor of Commonwealth status within the U.S.

Fumes Threaten 500

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI)— Rain soaked a trainload of fertilizer and caused decomposition that unleashed poisonous fumes, forcing evacuation of about 500 persons Monday night. Authorities halted railroad and highway traffic in the area until further rainfall dispersed the cloud and diluted the fertilizer.

ACCUSED KILLERS WALKING STREETS

TORONTO (CP) — Seventeen persons charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in Metropolitan Toronto are free on bail, says a survey made by the Metro police homicide squad.

"You might as well be handing out cards inviting killers to come to court," he said in an interview Monday.

Cuba Will Give Back Ransom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuba has decided to return to Southern Airways $2 million in hijack ransom money, thus removing one of six obstacles on the state department's list of problems between Cuba and the United States.

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro made known his intentions in a letter to Senator George McGovern (Dem. S.D.) who visited the island last month. McGovern released the letter Monday.

The Southern Airways DC-9 was hijacked in November, 1972, and forced to fly to Havana, where the passengers and crew were released in return for $2 million in ransom. The Castro government took the money from the hijackers.

Castro's decision to release the money after 2½ years caught the state department by surprise. Officials did not say whether it will prompt a reciprocal gesture by the U.S.

"He had no claim to it, ideological or otherwise," one U.S. official said. "All he achieved was to drive Southern to the edge of bankruptcy."

Drinking Delayed MLAs

HALIFAX (CP) — Labor Minister Walter Fitzgerald said today drinking by some members of the Nova Scotia legislature "without a doubt" impeded passage Monday night of a bill designed to force 1,000 striking nurses back to work.

He said the drinking occurred during a supper break at a reception given by Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger who began a four-day visit to Nova Scotia on Monday.

Members who had attended the reception 'seemed to be in a jovial mood" when they returned to the house, Mr. Fitzgerald said in a CBC radio interview today.

Asked whether the drinking got in the way of serious house business, the labor minister replied:

TURKEY DEMAND

ANKARA (AP) — Turkey apparently retaliated against the four-month-old American embargo on arms aid with a demand today that the United States begin negotiations within 30 days on the status of U.S. bases in Turkey.

If "action is not taken to initiate the talks," the 20 U.S. military installations in Turkey will be subjected "to a new situation," said a note delivered to the U.S. embassy. There was no elaboration.

Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil said Turkey "has waited in vain for reversal of the American decision, which is both unjust and wrong in all its aspects."

"It was finally imperative for Turkey to consider retaliatory action as our hopes were upset by a growing anti-Turkish attitude."

Sources report that Turkey's National Security Council has drawn up a timetable for the withdrawal of U.S. forces.

The council announced Monday night it has given Premier Suleyman Demirel a package of proposals containing measures to be implemented against U.S. interests in Turkey."

Sources say the security council has called for the gradual shutdown of the 20 U.S. military bases. Three intelligence-gathering bases and the Incirlik air base for nuclear bombers are considered the most vital to Washington.

The ban on U.S. arms aid to Turkey was instituted because of the use of U.S. arms in the Turkish invasion of Cyprus last summer.

Use of U.S. arms in the invasion violated the terms of the agreements on which they had been furnished the Turks. Turkey has done nothing about removing its forces from Cyprus and instead has consolidated its hold on the northern 40 per cent of the island.

But the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots have resumed negotiations, the Greek and Turkish governments have discussed the dispute, and the U.S. Senate, under pressure from State Secretary Henry Kissinger, voted last month to lift the embargo.

Senior ICBC Man Fired For Interest Conflict

A top Insurance Corporation of B.C. executive was fired Monday because of a conflict of interest with his own business activities in a Regina adjusting firm.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan said D. A. Scrivener, ICBC vice-president in charge of claims, did not conform with conflict of interest standards established by the Crown corporation.

In a prepared statement, read to the legislature, Strachan also apologized to Socred MLA Bob McClelland (Langley) for attacking him when McClelland originally raised the issue of Scrivener's business interests outside B.C.

"I want to thank the member for Langley for drawing this matter to my attention," said Strachan, "and I apologize to him for any personal remarks I made about him."

When McClelland first raised the issue of Scrivener's interest in adjusting firms included on ICBC's list of preferred adjusters outside the province, Strachan told the house he had checked and was told Scrivener had sold his interests before joining ICBC.

Last week, however, McClelland raised the issue again and said he had learned Scrivener sold interests in Scrivener, Countryman and Western Ltd. of Calgary and Saskatoon, after he joined ICBC, but he still held shares in D. A. Scrivener Ltd. of Regina.

Strachan replied that he had received his information from Scrivener and if the executive had not told him the truth he would be fired immediately.

The minister reported to the house, however, that D. A. Scrivener Ltd. is not in the adjusting business but another firm, D. A. Scrivener Adjusting Ltd., not mentioned by McClelland, is still controlled by the ICBC executive.

"Although Mr. Scrivener claims no conflict of interest in an adjusting company, I cannot accept that. In my opinion, a continuing interest in an adjusting company does not meet the standards required by ICBC," said Strachan.

Asked later if he believed Scrivener had lied to him when he first replied to McClelland's charges, Strachan said:

"I don't think so. He just didn't realize the importance of the answer he gave me . . . he should have given me a complete answer."

Scrivener could not be reached for comment Monday.

Final details of the executive's dismissal were to be worked out later, according to Strachan, and the minister would not say whether the $34,000-a-year employee would be entitled to severence pay. (He has been with ICBC since July, 1973.)

The minister said he did not believe the management of ICBC was aware of Scrivener's holdings in the adjusting firm.

Lawson Urges Pay Restraint for Teamsters

Lawson told the convention of the Western Conference of Teamsters here that large wage increases are producing a form of "economic madness." Wage settlements in B.C. averaged a record 20.2 per cent for the first quarter of this year.

In a later interview the senator stressed he was not advocating wage restraints for all unions but was specifically referring to his own union.

He said there are about two dozen companies in Ontario and B.C. where the wages are higher than in the U.S. and the productivity is less.

He declined to name the companies, but warned continued large pay increases could drive companies to cease operations in Canada.

He said the situation has arisen because the Teamster locals have made a better case at the bargaining table. In calling for "sensible restraint," the senator said union leaders must be aware of the situation and it is no good negotiating large increases if "it drives our members into the ranks of the unemployed."

"There is going to have to be restraint by members of our union in industries that are higher paid than the U.S., but with lower productivity."

"We have a responsibility as trade union leaders to warn our members of impending economic disaster."

He said the net result is that companies paying higher wages and producing less will close down.

Meanwhile, C. C. McVeigh, who will take over as president of Construction Labor Relations Association later this year and he does not think wage settlements will fall from the first quarter average of 20.2 per cent.

McVeigh, who will replace Charles Connaghan in October said, "there is no evidence that it is going to change." He said he thinks the 20 per cent average will at least remain for the second quarter.

He bases his prediction on the attitude of forest unions at the bargaining table, a new two-year settlement with B.C. Hydro workers which he estimates will provide roughly 20-per-cent in total benefits this year and the fact CLRA has placed a 22-per-cent offer on the negotiating table in the current 10-week millwork strike with the International Woodworkers of America and the Carpenters Union.

TEACHER of Victoria children for five decades, Harry Smith, died Monday night at the age of 85. Smith's long career included 41 years at Victoria High School, 21 of them as principal, plus 10 years teaching at University School. He was to be honorary president of Vic high's centennial celebrations in 1976. (See story page 17.)

Municipal Student Jobs Doubled

A total of 123 young people have been hired by Oak Bay and Victoria municipalities, double the number originally planned, as a result of extra funds becoming available to a program organized by the provincial department of labor.

The students will work during the summer on parks, community programs and other tasks assigned by the municipalities.

The Students Working In Municipalities (SWIM) program originally had a budget of $50,000 in Victoria and $15,000 in Iak Bay.

However, these totals have been increased to $93,691 in Victoria and $47,700 in Oak Bay. The additional funds came from the Student Temporary Employment Program, which is not being conducted by the regional district this year. Earlier, it had been feared these funds would go elsewhere in the province but the department of labor has agreed to divert some of the money for use by the municipalities to hire students.

The STEP program had been cancelled this year as an aftermath of the municipal strike-lockout. The effects of the labor dispute are also hampering the SWIM program.

For example, $53,000 has been earmarked for student jobs in Saanich, $10,500 in Esquimalt and $4,050 in Sidney. None of these programs are operating because the necessary approval from the union concerned has not been obtained. In the case of Sidney, the municipality indicated early it would not be participating.

If the three municipalities are not participating by July 1, the June portion of their budgets will be available to the other municipalities.

Most of the young people are high school students and they will begin working as soon as school is out. A small number are university students and they are already working.

Central Saanich has hired 12 students and has been granted an increase in its budget from $4,200 to $14,800. North Saanich has hired two and is only spending $2,080 of its $3,000 budget. It is looking for an additional student to hire.

Leslie Fiddler, organizer of the SWIM project for the provincial department of labor, said about $80,000 of the $197,090 of the STEP budget had been retained in the Victoria area so far and there was a chance that more of the money could be used here to hire additional young people.

She said she was hopeful that Saanich would join the program soon and she would also freeze the Esquimalt funds so that municipality could join, if it wished, at some point during the summer.

If all four core municipalities join the program, more than 200 young people would be hired for the summer.

Of the 83 students hired in Victoria, 30 were in grade 11, 33 in grade 12 and the remaining 20 were university students.

U.K. BOWING TO IDI?

LONDON (AP) — Britain will send an envoy to Kampala soon to try to persuade Ugandan President Idi Amin to save two Britons from the firing squad, informed sources said today.

The move comes after a demand by Amin that a British minister personally hand over to him a letter signed by Prime Minister Harold Wilson replying to his terms for pardoning the condemned Britons.

Amin has demanded that the British government expell all Ugandans who have sought refuge in Britain and bar all British media from criticizing him.

The two condemned Britons are lecturer Dennis Hills, 61, and businessman Stanley Smolen, 38. Hills in an unpublished manuscript, referred to Amin as a "village tryant." Smolen has been charged with hoarding.

Family Fire Hall Opening

Mrs. Ernie LeQuesne has had close links with Langford's fire department for many years and that will be recognized next Sunday when she cuts the ribbon to open the new fire hall.

The $261,000 hall at 2775 Millstream stands where the LeQuesne family home once was. Three of her sons have worked for the volunteer fire department and one of them, Al LeQuesne, is now chief.

Just about everything in the new hall is new except the fire trucks and the 34-member force has already completed its move from the old quarters at 716 Goldstream.

It also caused a sharp drop in stock prices.

Such big industrials as Fiat, Pirelli, Montedison anid Snia Viscosa fell 10 per cent.

Industrial circles foresaw negative repercussions for the Italian economy, with a further slowdown in investment and a sharp increase in the illegal export of capital.

Politicians said the results could bring down the seven-month-old Moro government if a majority of Parliament insists on bringing the Communists into the coalition and the Christian Democrats oppose the move.

Christian Democratic leader Amintore Fanfani, who has opposed Communist calls for a voice in the government, called an emergency meeting of party leaders Thursday to consider the results.

The Christian Democrats, who have ruled Italy for three decades, dominated a coalition that included the Socialists, Republicans and Social Democrats.

Support for Socreds Falling Off: Survey

Social Credit support in B.C. fell substantially in the first three months of this year, says a University of Victoria sociologist.

"Something happened between January and March that cost Social Credit about 10 per cent (of the voters)," said Dan Koenig today.

He said support for the party has dropped from 37.5 to 26.9 per cent — figures taken from his new survey of voter opinion.

Koenig has conducted voter surveys in B.C. every year since 1972 and has twice successfully predicted federal election results in B.C.

NDP support has remained unchanged at 30.3 per cent of the electorate, he said.

Socred support was likely still ahead of NDP in March because of uncommitted respondents — most of whom go Socred provincially, he said.

"I think they were still ahead in March but I wouldn't like to say that now."

Respondents numbered 1,480 of an original 2,754 solicited, and Koenig says they were randomly chosen and accurately represent voters.

His results show Liberal support increased in the first three months of 1975 from 13.8 to 15.5 per cent and Conservative support from 10 to 11.3 per cent.

Instability in the Liberal party since that time may mean more Conservative support than was indicated in March, said Koenig.

Factors leading to decreased Socred support may have been the party's policy on natural gas, its wind-up for an election that never occurred, and recent charges and counter-charges in the legislature, he said.

Imposed Unity Plan Cancelled

The provincial government has decided to stop pushing for amalgamation of the Greater Victoria area, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer indicated today.

In a meeting with mayors from the district last year he had said amalgamation would not be forced on any parts of the region.

Today's comments confirm that policy and Lorimer also added that the initiative for amalgamation of Victoria municpalities and outlying districts will have to come from local authorities or the people themselves.

In Kelowna and Kamloops, where the government legislated an amalgamation of outlying areas, Lorimer said the choice was no longer there.

On the question of amalgamation of Colwood, Langford and View Royal, the minister said public meetings will be held soon to gauge the feelings of people in the area.

Also during debate of Lorimer's departmental spending estimates, the minister said he has never defended the government's policy of providing grants in lieu of property taxes on government properties.

The issue of grants in lieu will be studied by the government's commission of inquiry into taxation.

Responding to complaints from Liberal leader David Anderson that Victoria is losing from $2 to $3 million in revenue because of low government grants in lieu, Lorimer said Burnaby and Coquitlam probably lose more than Victoria.

Anderson said the mill rate in Victoria had gone up substantially and the government's 15 mill grant in lieu is totally inadequate.

"It is a crushing and critical problem," said Anderson, especially in light of the government's plans to expand office space in the city.

New buildings are an offer the city can't refuse despite the costs of services borne by the city, he said.

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Membership in Alcoholics Anonymous is increasing at better than 10 per cent a year and includes growing numbers of women and young people, according to an officer of the organization.

Expanded membership also includes special new groups for gay, deaf and Spanish-speaking alcoholics, according to George D.

He said AA's basic philosophy of helping persons who want to stop drinking and protecting their identities has not changed even though increasing numbers of women and young people are changing the look of the organization.

MORRISON DIES

The man who was the first lay administrator of Royal Jubilee Hospital, Charles Morrison, died Thursday in West Vancouver.

Morrison, who was 89, came to Victoria at the end of the first World War and worked for the Jubilee about 30 years, until a stroke forced his retirement in 1948.

He and his wife Ida, who survives him, moved to West Vancouver upon his retirement.

Surviving him, besides his wife, are stepdaughters Mrs. A. F. C. Hean of West Vancouver, Mrs. C. C. Tompkins of Markham, Ont. and Mrs. R. H. Jupp of Victoria.

A private family service was held, followed by cremation.

the weather

Breaks in the cloud cover occurred along the coast and in the central interior overnight. Meanwhile clouds and showers persisted across the southern interior. Cool unstable air will continue to produce showers over most areas through Wednesday. Afternoon and evening thundershowers are also likely over much of the interior.

Board Bows To Dailly

Greater Victoria school board heeded Education Minister Eileen Dailly's wishes Monday and agreed to spend $65,000 to provide access for the physically handicapped to Spectrum community school.

Dailly told the legislature May 1 that she wanted to see ramps and other facilities for the handicapped in the school, which is now under construction.

The board decision means an elevator will be installed to give access to upper floors of the school to people who cannot use stairs.

Trustee Phil Perry, who made the motion approving expenditure of the $65,000, expressed mixed emotions.

"We're giving special privileges to a very, very small group," Perry said.

He said there are only 12 known paraplegic high school students in the district, and the board has already planned to provide facilities for the physically handicapped at the new Lambrick junior-senior secondary and at Frank Hobbs elementary.

Perry said he couldn't help feeling the money could be well spent on some school facility that would meet the needs of 400 or 500 students, not five or six.

However, if the board refused to provide the elevator now, it might be forced by the education department to build in handicapped facilities at a later stage, he said, and that would cost a lot more.

After the board meeting, Perry said he thought Dailly had reacted to a small pressure group in demanding handicapped facilities at Spectrum.

Construction and maintenance department head Sig Dietze told trustees that even with an elevator, the fire marshal would limit the number of wheelchairs on upper floors to only a few.

"By putting this in (the elevator) we have at least some accommodation for these people, but not a very large number," he said.

TOWN TALK

Mayor Peter Pollen, we suspect, isn't going to be too pleased when he returns from a European holiday late this week to read the report that the city's morality squad produced in his absence.

The special sub-committee, consisting of Aldermen Malcolm Anderson, Bob Ellis and Bill Tindall, was set up by Pollen about six weeks ago to study the whole question of possible controls on nude entertainment in licensed premises, and on Sunday store opening.

The aldermen finally submitted their report last week — it was to be discussed in detail at today's caucus meeting — and the two-page document is as skimpy as a topless dancer's g-string.

While recommending no action to curb either beer parlor stripping or Sunday trading, it states not a single reason for arriving at this conclusion.

Sounds like excuse enough for Pollen to trot out that immortal phrase, which he always uses to preface his most scathing comments: "With the greatest respect . . ."

If inflation has you on a margarine diet don't feel badly.

It's happening in the Owens' household too.

At a recent tea party at Government House for foreign exchange teachers, the fare consisted of tea (no coffee) and thinly sliced bread and margarine. Some guests were surprised.

"My, how English," a visitor from Australia declared.

O'GRADY

Former city solicitor Terence Pitt O'Grady is back where he started on the local municipal scene.

Before joining the city of Victoria legal department, Terry served Esquimalt back in the 1950s.

When the Insurance Corp. of B.C. was being set up, Terry resigned as city solicitor to become corporation counsel in Vancouver, a post that led to a difference of opinion, termination of his services and subsequently a breach of contract suit against ICBC.

Recently, Terry returned to the city in private legal practice and he has been retained to serve as part-time solicitor for Esquimalt.

The job starts officially July 1, but Terry got his feet wet by attending council meetings Monday night. Welcome back, T.P.

In an age when it seems easier to brew trouble than goodwill, Mrs. Winifred Harding believes "the old and the young have got to learn to live together."

She did her part last week in arranging a band concert for patients at Memorial Pavilion, formerly Veterans' Hospital, where she does volunteer work, although she is older than many of the patients, cheerfully admitting to having more than "three score years and ten."

About 75 men, many in wheelchairs, were taken into the front garden where the Lansdowne Junior Secondary band played for a half-hour that was too short for most of the ex-military audience. Afterward, the youngsters drank pop donated by Goodwill Bottling after Mrs. Harding tried to buy a couple of cases.

"There's so many bad things happening . . . I think this band should have a good deal of praise," she said.

And to prove her faith was not misplaced, two of the youngsters went to her later and thanked her for the pop.

A Vancouver resident, Helen Whiteside, sends along a letter of sympathy, following a story in the June 4 Times wherein it was explained that it rains a lot in British Columbia in June.

Her letter included a newspaper photograph of sunbathers at Vancouver's Kitsilano Beach plus a card with a suggested symbol for a possible June festival in Victoria.

Despite the ribbing, the weather office says that Vancouver has been as damp as Victoria this June.

With all our highly-touted 20th century know-how, why in the devil can't somebody manufacture a toothpaste tube that doesn't spring leaks after the first few days of use?

Surely, it's not a sinister plot by the toothpaste moguls to increase profits by forcing us to waste their product. It might be something for the consumer affairs department to chew on.

Press releases don't tell all. For instance the release on the Canadian Nature Art '75 show at the Provincial Archives which opened Friday, sponsored by the Canadian Nature Federation and the National Museum of Natural Sciences, mentioned the names of four Victorians whose work had been accepted. Omitted was mention of the youngest Victoria artist in the show, 19-year-old Michael Hunter.

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum, hard-working as he is, will never be remembered for his oratory, especially when he follows in the footsteps of Hugh Curtis, who learned how to manipulate his dulcet tones during his radio days.

Lum, however, waxes lyrical, when he speaks of his country. In a press release, announcing he has proclaimed June 24 to July 1 Canada Week in his municipality, Lum states:

"Canada is a colorful and picturesque country whose complexion changes with every season, which is never the same, yet never so different; a land we live and whose name we are proud to bear as a Canadian."

About 55 visiting Japanese Rotarians met in The Empress Thursday, a stop-off on their way home from the world conference in Montreal.

In a neighboring Empress room, about 100 local Rotarians were holding their meeting, but the two groups didn't get together — language problems prevented a joint meeting.

But one of the visiting club members got a royal tour of Victoria, all because he speaks Esperanto, the international language.

Wally du Temple of 930 Ardmore, local Esperanto advocate, said the visiting Rotarian had received similar tours in Montreal, Calgary and Vancouver, special guest of other Esperanto buffs in those cities.

All the other Japanese Rotarians, du Temple said, were all right in Montreal at the conference where they had headphones to provide simultaneous translation of the proceedings, but outside the conference rooms communication was difficult.

Du Temple suggests that both groups, visiting and local, should have a look at Esperanto.

A power failure at Town and Country Shopping Centre Monday which forced Woolco and Shoppers Drug Mart to close was an expensive experience . . . not only for the stores and B.C. Hydro who had to pay overtime to crews . . . but to one young would-be lady shopper.

A taxi drove to the front of Woolco, the young woman paid her bill and headed for the door. She seemed to be bewildered by the locked door, read the sign made a few comments and jumped right back into the cab. The driver read the sign before her and realized he had another customer.

B.C. Hydro said this morning that burned connectors were responsible for the outage at the centre and an adjoining street.

Power was off between 4:30 and 7 p.m.

And speaking of the Town and Country shopping centre, a young man and woman climbed into their car over there recently.

Before turning the motor on, the man tossed the cellophane wrapping from his cigarette package out the window. Then the woman tossed an empty coffee cup out the window on her side. Then the man emptied the ashtray out his side.

Then they drove off.

You could tell by their licence plate they were from out of town. It read: Ontario—Keep it beautiful.

A 25-year-old Colwood man died early this morning one hour after his car ran into a ditch at Goldstream and Hartsdale Drive and rolled over.

Dwayne Ramsey, of 596 A Langhelme, was pronounced dead at Victoria General Hospital at 2:44 a.m.

RCMP in Colwood said Ramsey, who was alone, at the time, was thrown out of the vehicle and apparently struck by the car as it rolled over.

Okay, So What's Nutritional?

Vending machines in Greater Victoria high schools will carry nothing but nutritional foods and beverages as of Sept. 1.

Decision to eliminate "junk" foods from schools was taken at Monday's school board meeting.

Only query came from Trustee Susan Brice, who asked just what will be considered nutritional.

Will cheese and crackers pass the test, she asked, or must it only be dried nuts and dates?

Mother Jailed for 3 Years On Drug Trafficking Count

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A 22-year-old mother of twin two-year-old children, three months pregnant with her third child, was sentenced Monday in county court to three years in penitentiary for possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

Also sentenced to three years in penitentiary was her co-accused, Robert Harold English, 27.

English and Gardiner were married May 9 and lived at 774 Sayward.

They were arrested Dec. 4, after police broke into a room at the Islander Motel, 35 Gorge, and found English, Gardiner, her two children asleep in bed, and various items indicating a heroin "capping" operation was in process.

The defence argued that while Gardiner planned to cap heroin she bought for $500 to assist in withdrawing from methadone, English knew nothing about it until just before the police broke in.

Immediately after Judge Stewart passed sentence, the accused kissed each other, said goodbye to friends and relatives, and were escorted holding each other's hand by sheriff's deputies.

The twins, who will be three in August, are being cared for by Gardiner's sister in Ontario.

Judge Stewart said if he could put off the moment of sentence "I would gladly do so."

Although both had misled the court, "or attempted to do so," he had formed a "not unfavorable" view of them.

"I wish there was a solution other than incarceration in our prison system but there isn't.

"It is almost heartbreaking when I think of the children involved but regrettably neither of you has considered the children in the past.

"It is simply a question of how long. I sentence each of you to three years," the judge said.

On the possession aspect of the charge, Judge Stewart said "in every single instance" the explanations of the accused were difficult to believe and "taken together, impossible to believe." He called it a "contrived defence."

He said the same comments apply "to a very substantial extent, and particualry on the matter of credibility" on the trafficking aspect.

There was, he said, a "powerful motive to give false testimony and I conclude that each succumbed to that temptation."

There was no reasonable interpretation of the evidence except that English and Gardiner had possession of the heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

Prosecutor Mike Hutchison said the heroin found in the motel room, diluted on a 10-to-1 basis, would amount to 407 caps. With the price of heroin then being $40 to $45 a cap there was "an immense profit available" for an investment of $500.

Defence lawyers Don Laughton, for Gardiner, and Doug Christie, for English, stressed that the amount of pure heroin found was 1-700th of an ounce.

Christie said the heroin was a very low quality and for the crown to say it was worth $16,000 "is the most incredible aspect of this case."

Court was told both English and Gardiner have criminal records and both were on probation when arrested.

Hutchison said he has "the utmost sympathy" for English and Gardiner, "but regret and sympathy cannot stand in the way of protection of the community" and deterrence of others.

He was Vic High's longest serving teacher, having taught at the school from 1914 to 1955, with more than 20 years as school principal.

Smith was to be honorary president of the Vic High centennial celebration planned for the school's 100th birthday in 1976.

Born July 12, 1889 in Charlottetown, P.E.I., Smith began teaching in Prince Edward Island in 1907.

In 1909 he entered McGill University, graduating in 1912 with first rank honors in English and winning the Shakespearian medal.

He returned to McGill in 1926 to get his M.A.

He began teaching at Vic High, where he was to stay for 41 years. There he met and married his wife Alice, a fellow teacher, in 1919.

When he retired from Vic High in 1955, at the age of 65, close to 1,100 former students and colleagues gathered at the school to honor him.

His retirement didn't last long. For the next 10 years, until 1965, he taught at University School.

Smith was active in athletics at McGill, and in Victoria played several years with the Victoria Rep Rugby Club and with the Victoria Senators hockey team.

He is survived by his wife Alice; sons H. Paul and Dr. Peter Smith, both on the faculty of the University of Victoria; and by daughters Mrs. Gordon (Brenda) MacDonald of Ottawa, Mrs. Benjamin (Barbara) Peterson of Victoria, and Mrs. Donald (Winsome) Oliver of Victoria.

DOCKYARD: 185 TODAY

Refit operations at the naval dockyards in Esquimalt and Halifax have been halted since the rotating strikes began June 5.

The Dockyard Trades and Labor Council has been negotiating for a new contract with the federal treasury board since March.

A mediator has been appointed in the dispute and talks are expected to start soon.
